'Smokey' makes CB contact

"Smokey...Smokey...We've got a smokey on the move in a red wrapper northbound on the boulevard...Ya better watch yer back door...He's at the 69 mile marker taking pictures." "Well thank you, good buddy. Sure appreciate that good information. Have a merry Christmas and a happy new year. See ya on the flip-flop." Cpl. Melvin Moyers of Sikeston and Daily Standard photographer Rick Morein were on Interstate 55 no longer than three minutes when the "Smokey" reports started to flow over the Citizens Band (CB) radio. His handle (CB call sign) is "Big Mo" and Moyers feels that the CB operators are doing a good job helping the patrol by giving them reports of accidents, drunken drivers and road hazard information. All highway patrol cars monitor CB channel nine for emergency broadcasts.

Patrol reports over 22,000 CB contacts

JEFFERSON CITY — The highway patrol has reported that 22,489 Citizen Band (CB) radio contacts were made with citizens by Patrol officers during August, September and October — the first three months of CB operation. These contacts concerned reports of traffic and criminal violations, accidents, dangerous road conditions and requests for assistance.

There were 17,277 contacts concerning requests for assistance and reports of dangerous road conditions. Included in these contacts were 3,859 reports of stranded motorists and 2,980 contacts in regard to traffic accidents.

A total of 5,212 CB contacts relating to violations were made with the Patrol by CB'ers during the three-month period. Highway Patrol officers made 1,307 arrests and issued 1,006 warnings as a result of these contacts.

CB radio contacts concerning felonies numbered 113 for the reported three-month period, and resulted in 52 arrests. Some examples of the CB reports dealing with felonies are as follows:

A CB'er directed officers to the location of two subjects who had escaped from a county jail.

Troopers received a call on CB Channel 9 from a man who was following a vehicle used in an armed robbery. The CB'er followed the vehicle until officers were able to stop the vehicle. A subject was arrested and the stolen money was recovered.

A check of a wrecked vehicle involved in an accident revealed that it had been stolen. No one was in the car. Truckers were contacted by CB to report any hitchhikers in the area. A short time later, officers were advised of four hitchhiking subjects. All four were arrested for investigation of auto theft. Three of the subjects made statements concerning the theft of the wrecked vehicle.

A report of an armed robbery at a shopping center was given to the Patrol by a CB'er. It was the first call any police agency had received on this incident and enabled an officer to quickly respond.

A farmer reported to a trooper via CB that two men were seen in his field and had apparently shot two heifers. A hind quarter had also been removed from one of the animals. The two men ordered the farmer and his son away at gunpoint when they went to the field to investigate. The trooper arrived afterward and arrested the two suspects in the area. Further investigation resulted in the arrest of a third suspect.

Information on a 15-year-old boy who had run away from home was passed on to CB'ers. The boy was located within 30 minutes through a CB contact.

A CB report by a truck driver of a suspected intoxicated driver possibly saved some lives. The suspect only tested .02 per cent on the breathalyzer but he was 'high' on some type of drug. He made the statement, "I am so freaked out that I don't know where I am or what I am doing." The trooper who responded to the CB report had attempted to stop the 'high' motorist for approximately five miles. The reporting CB'er was behind the Patrol car with his flashing lights on in an effort to warn other motorists.

An ill man overheard a "Smokey" location report over his CB and went to the officer for assistance. He was taken to a hospital for treatment.

There have been numerous CB reports concerning objects being thrown at vehicles, often from overpasses. Youngsters are usually involved in this type of incident and many of them are apprehended through immediate reporting by CB'ers.

Two truckers equipped with CB radios were recently instrumental in averting tragedy. A large rupture was discovered in one of the lines of a gasoline pipeline company. Wind and weather conditions were causing gasoline vapors to go across a heavily traveled highway creating a very dangerous situation. A truck driver who was inside the plant called this information to CB'ers.

Another truck driver approaching the area overheard the call. He stopped and flagged traffic approaching from the south while an employee of the company stopped traffic from the north.

The rupture was repaired and

CB directory planned

PORTAGEVILLE— A directory of area citizen band radio operators is being planned for publication in January, according to Lee Roy Kent of Portageville, who originated the idea.

Kent plans to include CBers from Southeast Missouri, Northeastern Arkansas, Western Tennessee, Kentucky and Southern Illinois. He has requested that all CB'ers write him and include their names, call letters, CB handles, towns, whether they are members of a CB Club and whether they own a single side band (SSB) radio.

This is the first such publication planned for this area, according to Kent, who plans to have the books ready for sale after the first of the year. The books will be available through CB clubs and several area businesses which handle citizen band equipment.

Kent urged all area CB operators to write him with the above information at Route Two, Box 492, Portageville, Mo., 63873. Local CB'ers are asked to pass this information along to others in outlying areas so a complete list of operators can be compiled.

Kent, who is known as the Drummer Boy to other citizen band operators, said the project is being backed by the Southeast Missouri Weather Watch Club of Portageville with the cooperation of our CB clubs.

Cheap food policy can be costly, farmers told

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Some big farmers and key men in firms which do business with them listened for a full day to assessments of agriculture's problems and prospects, and many of them were stirred by this statement:

"I wich it could be made clear to the consumer groups in this country that advocate a cheap food policy by denying or restricting U.S. agriculture's right to export that such a policy will cost the consumer far more over the long run than any modest increase in food costs that result from agricultural exports."

The speaker was Dr. Brice Meeker, an administrator in the foreign agriculture service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

His forum on Tuesday was "Ag Time," a seminar sponsored annually by United Missouri Banks. It drew almost 500 farmers, researchers and scholars in agriculture and executives of feed processors, implement and equipment makers, fertilizer manufacturers, grain companies, flour mills, bakeries, packing houses and other food processors.

A special target was bankers who may be asked and want to lend money to farmers and the industries which sell to them and buy from them.

Meeker offered great reassurance to some of them when he expressed a belief there will be no return to the days when chronic overproduction had the country so glutted with grains and other farm products that the government was moved to buy up large stores of them to save agriculture from complete collapse.

Meeker hazarded his forecast in the face of official estimates that stocks of grain at this time next year will be higher than they are now, despite record exports. The latest estimate is that the carryover of U.S. wheat next July 1 may be as high as 425 million bushels, when 300 million bushels is generally accepted in the grain trade as a reasonable stockpile.

But Meeker felt the effective demand for American grains will continue to grow in foreign countries. And a good thing, too, he said. The money they earn abroad will keep the dollar strong in foreign trade and thus prevent all our imports from becoming more costly.

Almost half the conference was devoted to the energy problems of farmers and of the industries which supply them. and distribute their produce.

Farming uses only 2 per cent of the nation's energy consumption, but what it does use is vitally needed. With gasoline and diesel fuel, distribution is likely to be the problem because they usually are needed in large spurts to get a crop in or get it harvested.

Farming uses only 4 per cent of the flow of natural gas, yet without it there is no way to mass produce nitrogen fertilizers; and a lot of gas and its derivitive propane are needed to dry crops, heat farm homes and provide warmth for less hardy livestock.

Speaking for the baking industry and other food processors, Clifford L. Hayden, manager of transportation planning for Interstate Brands Corp. of Kansas City, said they should not have too much trouble reducing their use of fuel by 20 per cent simply by following the suggestions which have been made to all drivers of cars and trucks.

Back on the farm, Dr. Otto C. Doering III, a specialist from Purdue University, suggested the economic tilt may be nearing the point where it would save money to convert animal wastes and other farm residues into gas.

Meeker was joined by Robert Wisner, a farm economist at the University of Illinois, and by William Helming, president of Livestock Business advisory services of Kansas City, in a prediction that in the long run the price of feed grains will tend to go down.

5 injured

Five persons received minor injuries in three traffic accidents Saturday.

The highway patrol said two persons were injured in a one-car accident one mile south of Illmo on a blacktop county road at 4:30 p.m.

Tommy Hale, 46, of Illmo was driving a car north which blew out a tire and left the pavement, overturning once and coming back to rest on the wheels.

Passengers Terry Brant, 11, and Edwin Pruitt, 9, of Illmo, both received minor injuries and were taken to Chaffee General Hospital for treatment.

In another one-vehicle accident the driver, Ricky Bickings, 18, of Oran, lost control of his eastbound car on a curve two miles east of Chaffee on Route A at 6:30 p.m. and ran off the road.

Billy Allred, 20, also of Oran, and Bickings were taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau for treatment.

At 7:45 p.m. on Highway 61 in Kelso a two-vehicle accident injured one man

Robbery suspect charged

Jerry Lee Summers, 18, of 224 Young St. has been charged with the armed robbery of Arthur Zigler, 614 W. North St., which occurred about 7 p.m. Wednesday and for possession of under 35 grams of marijuana. Further details of the robbery are being withheld until the investigation is complete, police said.

Steve Adam Craddock, 21, 504 Kirkendall, East Prairie, was released on $800 bond after being booked for having no operator's license and possession of a concealed 410 guage sawed-off shotgun on Friday.

No trash pickup Thursday

Sikeston residents normally receiving trash pickups on Thursdays will not have their solid waste picked up this Thursday, due to the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

Trash pickup will resume on Friday with the regular routes.

Residents with Thursday collections may set out bags on Monday their next scheduled pickup day, if their can are not sufficient to handle the trash.

People in the news

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Marion Concannon, daughter of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, says she wants to work in a local drug-treatment center as part of her sentence on drug charges.

Mrs. Concannon, a 41-year-old divorcee and mother of eight, was sentenced Friday by Bucks County Judge Edmund Ludwig of possessing and selling hashish, a concentrated derivative of marijuana.

She was sentenced to two years' probation and ordered to do at least two days a week of "socially useful" work or to spend weekends in jail for the next six months.

Mrs. Concannon, a registered nurse, said she wanted to work at Today, Inc., a drug and alcohol treatment center in nearby Newton.

On Nov. 10, Mrs. Concannon pleaded guilty to three counts of possession of a controlled substance and one count of delivery of a controlled substance.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — An elderly man who relies on a pacemaker to aid his heartbeat says he thought mostly about ice cream while lying helpless in his bathtub for three days.

Alphonso Crockett, 74, put some vanilla ice cream in his freezer before taking a bath Tuesday. While in the tub, he lost the use of his arms and legs and lay there until a cleaning woman found him Friday.

"The phone didn't do me any good — I couldn't get to it," says Crockett. "I was hardly thinking of anything except that ice cream."

He was in fair condition Friday as doctors sought to determine what caused his inability to move his limbs.

"I accept it and make the best of it," said Ford, now 30.

The California Department of Rehabilitation has named the Escondido man its rehabilitative success of the year in the San Diego area. The agency paid his tuition at the truck driving school after he was laid off last month as a garage helper for San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

Henry Wallace diary reveals observations

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — One-time Vice President Henry Wallace called Harry Truman "a small opportunistic man," said J. Edgar Hoover was becoming an "American Himmler" and mused about Franklin D. Roosevelt's interests in astrology.

The observations were made in the 42-volume diary of Wallace. unsealed Tuesday on the 10th anniversary of his death.

The University of Iowa library, which has custody of the diary, released excerpts from the 1944 volumes giving Wallace's characterizations of some of his contemporaries.

Wallace met with Truman in August following the Democratic convention where Wallace was dropped as vice presidential candidate in favor of Truman.

Wallace said of Truman in his diary, "He is a small opportunistic man, a man of good instincts but, therefore, probably all the more dangerous. As he moves out more in the public eye, he will get caught in the webs of his own making.

"'I went to Chicago to get out of being vice president, not to become vice president. It will be very hard on my family,'" Wallace quoted Truman.

On another occasion, Wallace wrote: "I got it on very good authority yesterday that Edgar Hoover continually has Drew Pearson shadowed.

"Hoover specializes in building up a file against the various public figures and especially against the columnists.

"He has not as yet built up much of a file on Walter Winchell. Winchell so far has been too smart for Hoover. Hoover is apparently on his way to becoming a kind of American Himmler," he said comparing the FBI director to the Nazi Gestapo chief.

Illmo-Scott City board contend

Annexation would mean revenue loss

SCOTT CITY — An officer of the Illmo- Scott City R-1 Board of Education says Cape Girardeau's annexation of Cape Municipal Airport and adjoining industrial areas would mean a substantial loss of revenue to the R-1 School District because the area to be annexed would be transferred into the Cape Girardeau school district.

Kenneth Raney, treasurer of the Illmo-Scott City Board of Education and president of the Scott County School Board, contends loss of revenue to the school district would result from the city's eventual annexation into north Scott County because the area would have to be transferred to the Cape Girardeau district.

However, an examination of Section 162.421 of the Revised statutes of Missouri raises a question over whether the area which would be annexed by the city would necessarily have to be transferred into the Cape Girardeau school district.

The area of questionable concern is over wording in the statute which allows exemptions in relation to extension of city limits and school district lines as it applies to second class counties.

If annexation into the existing Illmo-Scott City school district mean the area would be transferred intothe Cape Girardeau district, it would mean the loss of about 17 per cent of the Illmo-Scott City district's total assessed valuation, Raney stated.

He said the transfer to the Cape Girardeau district would result in a valuation loss of $1,347,460 to the Illmo-Scott City district, representing a revenue loss of approximately $55,000, based on current tax rates.

The Illmo-Scott City district's total assessed valuation is $7,936,465, he noted, which based upon about 1,200 pupils represents lower tax money per pupil than any other school in the area.

Raney, also pointed out that the transfer would mean a loss of $134,000 in the district's bonding capacity, which presently is $793,646, based upon 10 per cent of the total assessed valuation within the district.

"It isn't that we don't understand orderly growth," Raney said. "We simply think that our school is much more important than the orderly growth of Cape Girardeau into our county and our school district," he stated.

He said residents of Illmo-Scott City are justified in fearing the loss of the area to the Cape Girardeau district because they are "proud of one of the best schools in the area, although it is handicapped by receiving less tax money per student than any other area school.

Whether Cape Girardeau's annexation into Illmo- Scott City's school district would mean the area which would be annexed would be taken by the Cape Girardeau district is an unanswered question which could become an issue in any eventual annexation lawsuit.

Section 162.421 specifies that cities with less than 75,000 population not in a first class county shall "automatically extend the boundaries" of its school district in the event of annexation from one six-director school district into another.

But, it continues "... and except in counties of the second class, if the extension of the limits of the city or town includes territory contained in another six-director school district which maintains a high school, then the school district boundaries shall not be enlarged to include territories in said six-director district by reason of the extension of the city or town limits."

The question arises over the fact that Cape Girardeau, in a second class county, would be annexing into the Illmo-Scott City district, located in a third class county.

Based upon the interpretation, Cape Girardeau possibly could annex into the Illmo-Scott City district and the district could remain unchanged, deriving revenue from the airport and industrial area.

The question of a school district change as a result of annexation by Cape Girardeau came into focus when the city asked the Scott County Court to allow it to implement zoning in a portion of north Scott County as a part of the city's plan to implement two- mile extra-territorial zoning.

Scott County Court turned thumbs down to the proposal, contending, among other things, that the two-mile zoning simply was a preliminary step for annexation.

Mayor Howard C. Tooke has said the city likely will propose annexation of the airport in Scott County and the Greater Cape Girardeau Industrial Tract on Nash Road in Cape Girardeau County at the next opportune time.

The city's request for extra-territorial zoning in that portion of its two-mile periphery in Cape Girardeau County presently is before the Cape Girardeau County Planning and Zoning Commission, which has given strong indication it will recommend to Cape Girardeau county Court that the request be allowed. The commission has said several questions must be answered concerning specific proposed zones in relation to farming operations before it decides on a recommendation.

Unknown patriot hardly a footnote

EDITOR'S NOTE — Oliver Pollock, one of the major financiers of the American Revolution, was an Irishman and "that was reason enough to hate the British," says an historian. He also worried that if England won, his trading empire in the West would be lost.

By PTER HERNON
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORELANS (AP) — George Washington may have fought the battles but Oliver Pollock paid the bills — at least many of them.

Pollock is credited with raising $300,000 for the American Revolution, most of it out of his own pocket. Only France, Spain and Holland gave more.

For his concern he landed in a debtor's prison and is hardly a footnote in most history books.

The barrelchested Irish immigrant was much more than a footnote in the wartime journals of George Rogers Clark. He referred almost daily to Pollock's financial assistance during his campaign against the British on the young nation's western frontier.

The battles eventually led to American control of the land between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Clark, then a general, said Pollock put up almost every penny his 200-man army needed.

Pollock also bankrolled an expedition against the British in western Florida, which at that time included a good slice of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

He begged, borrowed and bartered the money and funneled most of it straight to the Continental Congress.

Why all this patriotic benevolence?

"He was an Irishman and that was reason enough to hate the British," says John Chase, a local historian. "He also was worried that if England won, the trading empire he had carved out west of the Mississippi would be in jeopardy."

Pollock arrived in Pennsylvania in 1760 virtually penniless at the age of 23. By 1762 he was a successful merchant in Havana and six years later he had his own trading business in Spanish controlled New Orleans.

He made a bundle selling flour to the Spanish during one of their miniwars with the French Creoles and by the time the bullets started flying at Lexington and Concord he was one of the city's wealthiest men.

When the Continental Congress had difficulty raising tax money from a population that had been shouting "no taxation without representation" Pollock came to the rescue. He put his considerable fortune on the line and what he couldn't loan personally, he borrowed.

When Washington won at Yorktown, Pollock's creditors began clamoring for their money and he took a quick trip to Philadelphia seeking repayment. Congress, howevever, was broke.

"He finally got most of his money back but not until years later," Chase said. "He even landed in a debtor's prison in Cuba for a while."

Pollock spent his final years with a daughter on a plantation in western Mississippi and died in 1823.

Everything's not so fine

HERMISTON, Ore. (AP) — Justice of the Peace John Smallmon has issued a stern warning to a court reporter for making it appear he suspended the fine for his daughter's traffic ticket.

The case was actually heard by Municipal Judge Marvin Dick, but the court reporter listed the case on his docket, Smallmon said.

"If she does it to me again, I'll do more than fine her," he said. "I'll take away the car keys."

The court reporter is his daughter — Debbie.

Solzhenitsyn denies report

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled Soviet writer, has denied reports that he is suffering from depression.

The reports about his alleged depression came on the eve of the international P.E.N. congress in Vienna. Solzhenitsyn, a Nobel Prize winner. was invited to attend the writers' conference but did not respond.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A group of San Francisco Bay yachtsmen are starting a small craft museum dedicated to pleasure boats in the region.

They plan to collect and display all manner of pleasure boat memorabilia including yachting clothing, early publications, marine hardware and instruments and paintings and photographs.

He said residents of Illmo-Scott City are justified in fearing the loss of the area to the Cape Girardeau district because they are "proud of one of the best schools in the area, although it is handicapped by receiving less tax money per student than any other area school.

Whether Cape Girardeau's annexation into Illmo- Scott City's school district would mean the area which would be annexed would be taken by the Cape Girardeau district is an unanswered question which could become an issue in any eventual annexation lawsuit.

Section 162.421 specifies that cities with less than 75,000 population not in a first class county shall "automatically extend the boundaries" of its school district in the event of annexation from one six-director school district into another.

But, it continues "... and except in counties of the second class, if the extension of the limits of the city or town includes territory contained in another six-director school district which maintains a high school, then the school district boundaries shall not be enlarged to include territories in said six-director district by reason of the extension of the city or town limits."

The question arises over the fact that Cape Girardeau, in a second class county, would be annexing into the Illmo-Scott City district, located in a third class county.

Based upon the interpretation, Cape Girardeau possibly could annex into the Illmo-Scott City district and the district could remain unchanged, deriving revenue from the airport and industrial area.

The question of a school district change as a result of annexation by Cape Girardeau came into focus when the city asked the Scott County Court to allow it to implement zoning in a portion of north Scott County as a part of the city's plan to implement two- mile extra-territorial zoning.

Scott County Court turned thumbs down to the proposal, contending, among other things, that the two-mile zoning simply was a preliminary step for annexation.

Mayor Howard C. Tooke has said the city likely will propose annexation of the airport in Scott County and the Greater Cape Girardeau Industrial Tract on Nash Road in Cape Girardeau County at the next opportune time.

The city's request for extra-territorial zoning in that portion of its two-mile periphery in Cape Girardeau County presently is before the Cape Girardeau County Planning and Zoning Commission, which has given strong indication it will recommend to Cape Girardeau county Court that the request be allowed. The commission has said several questions must be answered concerning specific proposed zones in relation to farming operations before it decides on a recommendation.

Unknown patriot hardly a footnote

EDITOR'S NOTE — Oliver Pollock, one of the major financiers of the American Revolution, was an Irishman and "that was reason enough to hate the British," says an historian. He also worried that if England won, his trading empire in the West would be lost.

By PTER HERNON
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORELANS (AP) — George Washington may have fought the battles but Oliver Pollock paid the bills — at least many of them.

Pollock is credited with raising $300,000 for the American Revolution, most of it out of his own pocket. Only France, Spain and Holland gave more.

For his concern he landed in a debtor's prison and is hardly a footnote in most history books.

The barrelchested Irish immigrant was much more than a footnote in the wartime journals of George Rogers Clark. He referred almost daily to Pollock's financial assistance during his campaign against the British on the young nation's western frontier.

The battles eventually led to American control of the land between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Clark, then a general, said Pollock put up almost every penny his 200-man army needed.

Pollock also bankrolled an expedition against the British in western Florida, which at that time included a good slice of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

He begged, borrowed and bartered the money and funneled most of it straight to the Continental Congress.

Why all this patriotic benevolence?

"He was an Irishman and that was reason enough to hate the British," says John Chase, a local historian. "He also was worried that if England won, the trading empire he had carved out west of the Mississippi would be in jeopardy."

Pollock arrived in Pennsylvania in 1760 virtually penniless at the age of 23. By 1762 he was a successful merchant in Havana and six years later he had his own trading business in Spanish controlled New Orleans.

He made a bundle selling flour to the Spanish during one of their miniwars with the French Creoles and by the time the bullets started flying at Lexington and Concord he was one of the city's wealthiest men.

When the Continental Congress had difficulty raising tax money from a population that had been shouting "no taxation without representation" Pollock came to the rescue. He put his considerable fortune on the line and what he couldn't loan personally, he borrowed.

When Washington won at Yorktown, Pollock's creditors began clamoring for their money and he took a quick trip to Philadelphia seeking repayment. Congress, howevever, was broke.

"He finally got most of his money back but not until years later," Chase said. "He even landed in a debtor's prison in Cuba for a while."

Pollock spent his final years with a daughter on a plantation in western Mississippi and died in 1823.

Everything's not so fine

HERMISTON, Ore. (AP) — Justice of the Peace John Smallmon has issued a stern warning to a court reporter for making it appear he suspended the fine for his daughter's traffic ticket.

The case was actually heard by Municipal Judge Marvin Dick, but the court reporter listed the case on his docket, Smallmon said.

"If she does it to me again, I'll do more than fine her," he said. "I'll take away the car keys."

The court reporter is his daughter — Debbie.

Solzhenitsyn denies report

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled Soviet writer, has denied reports that he is suffering from depression.

The reports about his alleged depression came on the eve of the international P.E.N. congress in Vienna. Solzhenitsyn, a Nobel Prize winner, was invited to attend the writers' conference but did not respond.

The case of the intimidating elephant

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Farmer Jones' horse Samson had absolutely no enthusiasm for work and expended energy only when he yawned. Consequently, Farmer Jones had little choice, one hot summer afternoon, but to sit with great patience atop a wagon loaded with hay as Samson took his good old time pulling the wagon along a narrow and lonely highway.

But then, suddenly, the whole scene changed. Samson happened to look up from the dusty road long enough to see an elephant being lead towards him from the opposite direction.

Taking one wide-eyed look at the massive pachyderm, Samson kicked up his heels like Man O'-War and, with uncharacteristic speed, bolted for the sancity of his distant pasture like it was a matter of life and death. Unfortunately, in doing so, he overturned the wagon and dumped poor Farmer Jones on his head.

"Leading an elephant along a highway," he insisted in court, "was pure negligence. "Any boob would have realized that an animal that big and ferocious would scare the blue out of any horse it might meet on the highway."

"Ridiculous!" responded the elephant owner. "While he may have been big, my elephant was as gentle as a lamb. And he had as much right to the use of the highway as any one else."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the elephant owner liable for Farmer Jones' injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the accident did not occur because the owner of the elephant had been careless but, rather, because Farmer Jones' horse Samson lacked courage.

Dr. Lamb

Reader's 'jolts' are quite normal

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a puzzling condition that I have been unable to get an answer to. It is what I call "jolts." I will be lying prone— on my back — usually asleep or at rest, and a portion of my body will feel as if the muscle is jumping. This has occurred at my foot, at many points along each limb, at the heart, and, as I recall, even at the head. The jolts are so strong that they have shaken my entire frame as well as the bedstead. Other than the jolt, there is no effect or result, although I tend to seem to feel better afterwards — the same kind of good feeling that you get after a sneeze. I would appreciate your comments regarding this.

DEAR READER — This may give you another jolt, but those reactions are perfectly normal and even common. The sudden involuntary contraction of a muscle or set of muscles will do this.

In some ways they are like a limited momentary convulsion. Every voluntary muscle in your body is related to a specific set of cells in your brain. You can map out the area in the brain for the hand, foot, knee, elbow and all moving parts. When these cells are destroyed, as in a stroke, the part becomes paralyzed.

You can stimulate any of these cells and cause the appropriate muscle to move. In the laboratory we can do this in animals with an electrical probe to the cell. The neurosurgeon uses such information to tell where he is cutting in some instances. He can ask the patient to move a hand or a foot or give other responses or stimulate an area and observe the response.

When an electrical charge builds up in the cell it can discharge and stimulate the muscle to contract forcefully, causing the sensation of a jolt. This is really what happens in the more serious condition of a convulsion. A large enough electrical discharge occurs to cause muscles to contract, and with a series of discharges, in no organized fashion, the irregular contractions of the convulsion may occur.

The simple jolt reaction you have is not a convulsion, and it does not mean you have anything wrong with your brain. It is a normal discharge of a build up of conditions within a muscle itself that leads to contraction and then relaxation. In the process the factors leading to contraction are dissipated, and the muscle returns to a normal resting state.

Why do you feel better? People often feel more relaxed after dissipation of chemicals related to muscle contraction. This may be one factor why a person feels better after exercise. When a convulsion occurs the person may be relaxed afterward, as after a hard day's physical work. A good example here is electrical shock treatment. The patient tends to sleep after treatment and is much calmer. The electric shock causes widespread muscle contractions, or, in essence, a convulsion.

The pastor speaks

By Arthur C. Fulbright

Friendship is impossible without real honesty and our society is simply too dishonest for meaningful relationships. We get this screwed-up notion that we have to put the best face on things or people won't like us. And then we have a whole world full of people who cannot even know one another because everybody is deceiving everybody else.

As odd as it may sound, our loneliness is often a sign that we haven't cared enough about others, enough to be honest and to risk exposing who we are to them, enough to put their problems and needs above our own and minister to them, enough to do something about the world's loneliness and quit complaining about ours.

The compelling thing about the Christian gospel has always been its story of faith, hope and love taking the initiative. Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior, never waited for others to show kindness to him and never appeared to be bargaining for response. He put no price tag on his compassion.

Arthur Fulbright

True, he was crucified. That is part of the ugly reality of life in a world still struggling with evil and alienation. The good die young, as the saying goes, and the compassionate often get hurt.

But no other antidote exists for the loneliness and fragmentedness of society. Somebody has to plunge in first without measuring the cost. It is not always necessary to die a physical death to save others.

Every time we do this - sacrifice ourselves emotionally and compassionately - we reestablish the only ground for true friendship. We fulfill the commandment of Jesus to love others in the way he has loved us. We overcome separation that way and reintroduce the only ground there is for real human unity.

Mr. C. L. Blanton, Jr.
The Sikeston Standard

Dear Charlie:

Enclosed, herewith, is a statement by Frank Ikard, President of the American Petroleum Institute, commenting on the proposed "compromise" energy act recently agreed to by the Senate- House Conference Committee. For the reasons set out therein, we think the act is not a compromise, but a continuation of the policies of strict controls with artifically low prices which will assure us a continuation of shortages and provide only disincentives for producing new domestic supplies.

Since the energy bill is of such pervasive public importance and the political connotations are so great, the position of the Nation's news media will be vital to President Ford's decision.

We would appreciate your reading the enclosure and hope you might wish to make some comment editorially on the effect of the bill.

Very truly yours,
John H. Denman
Executive Director

JHD:lw

STATEMENT BY FRANK N. IKARD PRESIDENT AMERICAN PETROLEUM INSTITUTE

The Congressional Energy Conference Committee has agreed on a Composite Price Plan to continue controls on crude oil prices for a 40-month period, and to reimpose price controls on all domestic crude oil from which controls have previously been lifted.

Presently, old oil is controlled at $5.25 a barrel, New oil is sold at free market prices, which average $13.00 a barrel. The overall average of all domestic crude oil is now $8.25.

This plan, as we understand it dimensions from what has been made public up to now, would drop that average price for all domestic oil to $7.66 a barrel.

The bill does provide for price increases to cover industry's costs from inflation up to a maximum of 7 per cent per year period. It does not provide for inflation in excess of 7 per cent. In addition, up to 3 per cent per year could be allowed to provide incentives for particular high cost or high risk production. The President has some additional flexibility to increase incentive pricing. However, under the terms of the bill either House of Congress could disapprove any such steps he might propose.

Additionally, beginning in February, 1977, the President could propose to exclude high-cost Alaskan oil in computing the Composite Price ceiling and place it under a different ceiling. Again, either House of Congress could disapprove such a Presidential request.

This approach of a Composite Price Plan is only a variation of domestic price controls that will worsen the nation's energy supply problem in the long run, and work to the serious long-term problem disadvantage of the American consumer.

It is not a "compromise," as it has been depicted. Rather, it would be a surrender of competitive market concepts which have up to now been the basis of the President's position on energy. This plan, in effect, would put Congress in charge of running the oil industry as a public utility.

The plan would discourage domestic production, stimulate domestic consumption, continue to subsidize the importation of foreign oil and increase our nation's dependency on OPEC oil -- an uncertain foreign source of supply.

It would lead to a doubling of oil imports by 1985, and almost all of the increase would need to come from the nations which boycotted us.

It would not produce the widely- publicized reduction of 3½ cents per gallon in retail gasoline prices. A proper calculation indicates only about 1.7 cents a gallon. In addition, competitive market conditions have already brought gasoline prices to the consumer below the price levels allowed by present regulations. The new plan would therefore lead to a very small further drop, if any.

The plan extends the price control philosophy that has been proven a failure where natural gas is concerned and has led to consumer shortages of gas. While it may have superficial appeal inthe first 12 months, before a national election, it would be disastrous to the nation. The unproductive cost of administering controls still would remain. Domestic production still would be decreased. Unecessary consumption still would be stimulated. Our reliance on insecure foreign supplies would be increased.

Specifically:

2. The President would be faced with a dilemma in trying to work within this composite price straitjacket. To retain old oil prices even at present levels, he would have to cut back drastically the price for new oil, thus depressing new exploration and projects to recover hard-to-get oil. On the other hand, if new oil prices were held at present levels, the price of old oil would have to drop well below the present $5.25 per barrel thus making it economically impossible to produce much of that oil.

3. The plan would increase U.S. reliance on imports from OPEC by 4 million barrels per day by 1980, over the level of these imports of prices were decontroled. This translates into an increase of $17 billion on U.S. payments to OPEC in 1980.

Without this price control plan, this money would stay in the U.S. to pay wages for American workers who produce steel, manufacture pipes and pumps, and otherwise contribute to finding and producing new supplies of U.S. crude oil.

4. If the Composite Price Plan were extended beyond the stipulated 40 months (which is quite possible as the difference between domestic and foreign oil will very likely be greater than it is now), imports from OPEC would be 7 million barrels per day more than they would be if prices were decontrolled. The added U.S. payments to OPEC in that year would be $31 billion.

Again, these extra payments mean we would be exporting American jobs.

5. Under this plan, it is very unlikely that there could be any further exploration in Alaska. Exploration in other high-cost frontier areas (such as the Outer Continental Shelf) would be seriously curtailed.

6. High-cost projects to increase recovery from existing reserves would have to be abandoned because prices would not cover costs.

7. The administrative complications built into this plan, coupled with the uncertainties created by the likelihood of Congressional vetoes of Presidential efforts to lessen its serious adverse consequences, would lead to even more chaos than the present regularatory nightmare.

We earnestly recommend that it be vetoed by the President.

Taking one wide-eyed look at the massive pachyderm, Samson kicked up his heels like Man O'-War and, with uncharacteristic speed, bolted for the sancity of his distant pasture like it was a matter of life and death. Unfortunately, in doing so , he overturned the wagon and dumped poor Farmer Jones on his head.

"Leading an elephant along a highway," he insisted in court, "was pure negligence. "Any boob would have realized that an animal that big and ferocious would scare the blue out of any horse it might meet on the highway.".

"Ridiculous!" responded the elephant owner. "While he may have been big, my elephant was as gentle as a lamb. And he had as much right to the use of the highway as any one else."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the elephant owner liable for Farmer Jones' injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the accident did not occur because the owner of the elephant had been careless but, rather, because Farmer Jones' horse Samson lacked courage.

Dr. Lamb

Reader's 'jolts' are quite normal

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a puzzling condition that I have been unable to get an answer to. It is what I call "jolts." I will be lying prone—on my back — usually asleep or at rest, and a portion of my body will feel as if the muscle is jumping. This has occurred at my foot, at many points along each limb, at the heart, and, as I recall, even at the head. The jolts are so strong that they have shaken my entire frame as well as the bedstead. Other than the jolt, there is no effect or result, although I tend to seem to feel better afterwards — the same kind of good feeling that you get after a sneeze. I would appreciate your comments regarding this.

DEAR READER — This may give you another jolt, but those reactions are perfectly normal and even common. The sudden involuntary contraction of a muscle or set of muscles will do this.

In some ways they are like a limited momentary convulsion. Every voluntary muscle in your body is related to a specific set of cells in your brain. You can map out the area in the brain for the hand, foot, knee, elbow and all moving parts. When these cells are destroyed, as in a stroke, the part becomes paralyzed.

You can stimulate any of these cells and cause the appropriate muscle to move. In the laboratory we can do this in animals with an electrical probe to the cell. The neurosurgeon uses such information to tell where he is cutting in some instances. He can ask the patient to move a hand or a foot or give other responses or stimulate an area and observe the response.

When an electrical charge builds up in the cell it can discharge and stimulate the muscle to contract forcefully, causing the sensation of a jolt. This is really what happens in the more serious condition of a convulsion. A large enough electrical discharge occurs to cause muscles to contract, and with a series of discharges, in no organized fashion, the irregular contractions of the convulsion may occur.

The simple jolt reaction you have is not a convulsion, and it does not mean you have anything wrong with your brain. It is a normal discharge of a build up of conditions within a muscle itself that leads to contraction and then relaxation. In the process the factors leading to contraction are dissipated, and the muscle returns to a normal resting state.

Why do you feel better? People often feel more relaxed after dissipation of chemicals related to muscle contraction. This may be one factor why a person feels better after exercise. When a convulsion occurs the person may be relaxed afterward, as after a hard day's physical work. A good example here is electrical shock treatment. The patient tends to sleep after treatment and is much calmer. The electric shock causes widespread muscle contractions, or, in essence, a convulsion.

By Arthur C. Fulbright

Friendship is impossible without real honesty and our society is simply too dishonest for meaningful relationships. We get this screwed-up notion that we have to put the best face on things or people won't like us. And then we have a whole world full of people who cannot even know one another because everybody is deceiving everybody else.

As odd as it may sound, our loneliness is often a sign that we haven't cared enough about others, enough to be honest and to risk exposing who we are to them, enough to put their problems and needs above our own and minister to them, enough to do something about the world's loneliness and quit complaining about ours.

The compelling thing about the Christian gospel has always been its story of faith, hope and love taking the initiative. Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior, never waited for others to show kindness to him and never appeared to be bargaining for response. He put no price tag on his compassion.

Arthur Fulbright

True, he was crucified. That is part of the ugly reality of life in a world still struggling with evil and alienation. The good die young, as the saying goes, and the compassionate often get hurt.

But no other antidote exists for the loneliness and fragmentedness of society. Somebody has to plunge in first without measuring the cost. It is not always necessary to die a physical death to save others.

Every time we do this - sacrifice ourselves emotionally and compassionately - we reestablish the only ground for true friendship. We fulfill the commandment of Jesus to love others in the way he has loved us. We overcome separation that way and reintroduce the only ground there is for real human unity.

Dear Charlie:

Enclosed, herewith, is a statement by Frank Ikard, President of the American Petroleum Institute, commenting on the proposed "compromise" energy act recently agreed to by the Senate- House Conference Committee. For the reasons set out therein, we think the act is not a compromise, but a continuation of the policies of strict controls with artifically low prices which will assure us a continuation of shortages and provide only disincentives for producing new domestic supplies.

Since the energy bill is of such pervasive public importance and the political connotations are so great, the position of the Nation's news media will be vital to President Ford's decision.

We would appreciate your reading the enclosure and hope you might wish to make some comment editorially on the effect of the bill.

Very truly yours,
John H. Denman
Executive Director

JHD:lw

STATEMENT BY FRANK N. IKARD PRESIDENT AMERICAN PETROLEUM INSTITUTE

The Congressional Energy Conference Committee has agreed on a Composite Price Plan to continue controls on crude oil prices for a 40-month period, and to reimpose price controls on all domestic crude oil from which controls have previously been lifted.

Presently, old oil is controlled at $5.25 a barrel, New oil is sold at free market prices, which average $13.00 a barrel. The overall average of all domestic crude oil is now $8.25.

This plan, as we understand it dimensions from what has been made public up to now, would drop that average price for all domestic oil to $7.66 a barrel.

The bill does provide for price increases to cover industry's costs from inflation up to a maximum of 7 per cent per year period. It does not provide for inflation in excess of 7 per cent. In addition, up to 3 per cent per year could be allowed to provide incentives for particular high cost or high risk production. The President has some additional flexibility to increase incentive pricing. However, under the terms of the bill either House of Congress could disapprove any such steps he might propose.

Additionally, beginning in February, 1977, the President could propose to exclude high-cost Alaskan oil in computing the Composite Price ceiling and place it under a different ceiling. Again, either House of Congress could disapprove such a Presidential request.

This approach of a Composite Price Plan is only a variation of domestic price controls that will worsen the nation's energy supply problem in the long run, and work to the serious long-term problem disadvantage of the American consumer.

It is not a "compromise," as it has been depicted. Rather, it would be a surrender of competitive market concepts which have up to now been the basis of the President's position on energy. This plan, in effect, would put Congress in charge of running the oil industry as a public utility.

The plan would discourage domestic production, stimulate domestic consumption, continue to subsidize the importation of foreign oil and increase our nation's dependency on OPEC oil -- an uncertain foreign source of supply.

It would lead to a doubling of oil imports by 1985, and almost all of the increase would need to come from the nations which boycotted us.

It would not produce the widely- publicized reduction of 3½ cents per gallon in retail gasoline prices. A proper calculation indicates only about 1.7 cents a gallon. In addition, competitive market conditions have already brought gasoline prices to the consumer below the price levels allowed by present regulations. The new plan would therefore lead to a very small further drop, if any.

The plan extends the price control philosophy that has been proven a failure where natural gas is concerned and has led to consumer shortages of gas. While it may have superficial appeal inthe first 12 months, before a national election, it would be disastrous to the nation. The unproductive cost of administering controls still would remain. Domestic production still would be decreased. Unecessary consumption still would be stimulated. Our reliance on insecure foreign supplies would be increased.

Specifically:

1. The proposal immediately would drop the average U.S. crude oil price.

2. The President would be faced with a dilemma in trying to work within this composite price straitjacket. To retain old oil prices even at present levels,he would have to cut back drastically the price for new oil, thus depressing new exploration and projects to recover hard-to-get oil. On the other hand, if new oil prices were held at present levels, the price of old oil would have to drop well below the present $5.25 per barrel thus making it economically impossible to produce much of that oil.

3. The plan would increase U.S. reliance on imports from OPEC by 4 million barrels per day by 1980, over the level of these imports of prices were decontroled. This translates into an increase of $17 billion on U.S. payments to OPEC in 1980.

Without this price control plan, this money would stay in the U.S. to pay wages for American workers who produce steel, manufacture pipes and pumps, and otherwise contribute to finding and producing new supplies of U.S. crude oil.

4. If the Composite Price Plan were extended beyond the stipulated 40 months (which is quite possible as the difference between domestic and foreign oil will very likely be greater than it is now), imports from OPEC would be 7 million barrels per day more than they would be if prices were decontrolled. The added U.S. payments to OPEC in that year would be $31 billion.

Again, these extra payments mean we would be exporting American jobs.

5. Under this plan, it is very unlikely that there could be any further exploration in Alaska. Exploration in other high-cost frontier areas (such as the Outer Continental Shelf) would be seriously curtailed.

6. High-cost projects to increase recovery from existing reserves would have to be abandoned because prices would not cover costs.

7. The administrative complications built into this plan, coupled with the uncertainties created by the likelihood of Congressional vetoes of Presidential efforts to lessen its serious adverse consequences, would lead to even more chaos than the present regularatory nightmare.

We earnestly recommend that it be vetoed by the President.

Indian on the run

Southeast Missouri State University's Bobby Everage is pulled down by the shoestrings by Northeast Missouri State's Steve Ernst (24) but scored a touchdown on another occasion to help the Indians to the MIAA conference championship Saturday at Houck Field. The Indians won 17-14.

Indians trip Northeast Mo. to win MIAA title

CAPE GIRARDEAU—A 26-yard field goal by star kicker Mike Wood in the fourth period lifted the Southeast Missouri State University Indians to a 17-14 victory over Northeast Missouri State and gave the Indians sole possession of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship.

Wood, an All-America candidate who had kicked field goals of 61 and 54 yards earlier this season, made sure of a much easier boot and drilled it through the uprights with 10:48 left in the game.

The Indians had taken a 7-0 first period lead after their first possession. Following the opening kickoff, quarterback Rick Wieser directed Semo on an 82-yard touchdown drive. A pair of big pass completions put the Indians within scoring range, and it was Wieser himself who went over from the one on a keeper. Wood booted the extra point.

Wood, who is ranked fifth in the nation among collegiate punters, had a punt go off the side of his foot later in the period. Northeast capitalized on the good field position by scoring on the last play of the period. Quarterback Steve Rampey found Tony Groso wide open over the middle for a 20-yard scoring strike. Kent Fensom tied the game with the extra point.

The Indians regained the lead late in the second quarter. This time, the drive covered 80-yards and was capped by a five-yard sprint by fullback Bobby Everage. Wood's kick was good again, and Semo held a 14-7 halftime advantage.

The Bulldogs, who had lost their first MIAA game only a week ago to Southwest Missouri, struck back in the third period. Keith Meadows carried the ball over from the one to cap a 33-yard TD drive, and Fensom again knotted the score with the point after. The game remained tied until Wood's fourth-period field goal.

The victory enabled coach Jim Lohr's Indians to complete an undefeated MIAA season and finish 7-4 overall. It was also the seventh victory in a row for Semo, which dropped their opening four games to non-conference opponents when Wieser was injured.

Oregon downs Oregon State

EUGENE, Ore. — Oregon's Chuck Wills returned an interception for one touchdown and the Ducks' Kim Nutting recovered a fumble to set up another as Oregon posted a 14-7 Pacific-8 conference victory over intrastate rival Oregon State.

The loss spoiled Dee Andros' last game as Oregon State coach and ended the most dismal football seasons in the school's history. The Beavers finished with a 1-10 record while Oregon was 3-8. It was only Andros' second loss to Oregon in his 11 seasons as Oregon State coach.

Oregon State's lone score came when Jay Locey stepped in front of Oregon's Tommy Garrett, picked off Jack Henderson's pass and returned it down the sideline 94 yards for the score.

Henderson, a sophomore who was fourth in the nation in passing going into the contest, completed just four of 18 passes for 36 yards and had two intercepted. Oregon's running game fared considerably better as George Bennett rushed for 129 yards in 34 carries.

Oregon had driven to the Oregon State five-yard line late in the first quarter, but Locey's pickoff of Henderson's sideline pass erased the apparent Oregon advantage.

Oregon tied the game early in the second quarter when Wills intercepted a pass by Oregon State's Kyle Grossart at the Beaver 15 and returned it for the score.

The winning touchdown came aftr Oregon State's Lee Overton fumbled Oregon's opening kickoff in the second half and Oregon's Kim Nutting recovered at the Oregon State 19.

Bennett picked up all 19 yards on four straight carries, the last being a three-yard scoring run.

Hudson loses

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — The nation's longest prep football winning streak was snapped at 72 Saturday as Ishpeming defeated Hudson High School 38-22 for the Michigan Class C State Championship.

Hudson High, representing a tiny Michigan town of about 2,500 persons, had set the record last week in the semifinal round of the playoffs, the first state championships in modern Michigan history.

Hudson High last lost in the opening game of the 1968 season. Over the last decade, the school has won 86 games, lost five and tied one.

California clinches Pac-8 tie by downing Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Chuck Muncie scored California's first four touchdowns, passed for a fifth and rushed for 166 yards Saturday to lead the Bears to a 48-15 defeat of Stanford and at least a share of the Pacific-8 football championship.

The four touchdowns by Muncie, who may have been playing his last collegiate game, equaled a school record and the senior tailback established several other records in the convincing victory before 88,000 fans at Stanford Stadium.

The 13th-ranked Bears finished the regular season with a 8-3 record. Their conference mark is 6-1.

But the UCLA Bruins will go to the Rose Bowl to face Big Ten champion Ohio State if they match California's 6-1 record by beating Southern California next Friday night. If UCLA loses, California wins the Pac-8 and goes to the Rose Bowl. There is a possibility Cal could go to the Fiesta Bowl as a consolation.

Stanford, in a three-way tie for the Pac-8 lead going into Saturday, finished 5-2 in the conference and 6-4-1 overall.

Muncie made touchdown runs of one and 16 yards and caught a seven-yard scoring pass from quarterback Joe Roth in the first half. In the final quarter, after Stanford scored a safety and a touchdown to pull within eight points, Muncie made a three-yard touchdown run and threw a 46-yard touchdown pass to Wes Walker.

Stanford's offense, unable to move the ball on the ground, relied almost completely on the passing of Guy Benjamin, who threw touchdown passes to Tony Hill and Jim Jenke. He was also intercepted three times.

Buckeyes bounce back to beat Michigan; earn Rose Bowl bid

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Top-ranked Ohio State, behind with less than four minutes remaining, rebounded on Cornelius Greene's passing and Ray Griffin's interception that set up touchdowns by fullback Pete Johnson to send the Buckeyes to a 21-14 victory over fourth-ranked Michigan for the Big Ten title.

Johnson scored three touchdowns—two of them in a 59-second span of the final four minutes Saturday—to secure the Buckeyes' fourth straight Rose Bowl appearance.

The victory marks the first time in four years either team has won the conference title outright. The two arch-rivals had tied the last three years, although the Buckeyes went to the Rose Bowl each time.

Griffin, brother of of Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, set up Johnson's winning three-yard touchdown run by intercepting a Rick Leach pass and returning it 30 yards to the Michigan three-yard line with 2:23 left. Johnson, who raised his Big Ten-record season touchdown total to 25, scored on the next play.

Less than a minute before that, the powerful Johnson had scored on a one-yard plunge to climax an 80-yard, 11-play drive—only the Buckeyes' second substantial march of the game which saw Michigan go ahead 14-7 with six minutes remaining.

Archie Griffin managed only 46 yards rushing for Ohio State, snapping at 31 his record string of consecutive regular-season games of rushing for more than 100 yards.

The Buckeyes stopped Michigan on the game's first series and then drove 63 yards in 15 plays on their first possession to score on a seven-yard Cornelius Greene-to-Johnson pass. It was only Johnson's second catch of the year and this was to be Ohio State's last major offensive thrust until the final minutes of the game.

Turnovers marred the rest of the first half, but Michigan did drive 80 yards in 11 plays to score on an 11-yard pass from tailback Gordon Bell to wingback Jim Smith 24 seconds before intermission.

On the ensuing kickoff, with a record, regular-season college crowd of 105,543 howling, the Wolverines recovered Archie Griffin's fumble and were poised to take the lead. But Bob Wood missed on a 37-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the half.

At one point, there were six turnovers in eight series in the first half, three by each side.

The Wolverines' punter, John Anderson, whose short kicks had been hurting Michigan all afternoon, managed a 33-yarder early in the fourth period that put the Buckeyes on their own six. It was the first time Ohio State was deep in its own territory.

The Buckeyes were forced to punt and Michigan then drove 43 yards in nine plays to get the one-yard TD plunge by freshman Leach midway through the period that gave the Wolverines a 14-7 lead.

Behind for the first time all day, Ohio State suddenly snapped out of its offensive lethargy to come back on Johnson's two late touchdowns.

In the second half, Michigan's defense stymied the Buckeyes at virtually every turn. Archie Griffin was unable to break through the Wolverines' hard-charging defense which frustrated the option-type plays Ohio State has been so reknown for with Greene and Griffin.

The Buckeyes' initial first down in the march that tied the game at 14-14 was only their second in 35 minutes in which they had the ball.

The victory raised Ohio State's record to 11-0 and 8-0 in the conference. Michigan is 8-1-2 overall and 7-1 in the Big Ten.

Sooners headed for Orange Bowl after big win over Nebraska

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Seventh-ranked Oklahoma survived three early scares at the cost of a lone field goal and then turned five Nebraska errors into touchdowns Saturday to defeat the previously-unbeaten and second-ranked Cornhuskers 35-10.

The triumph earned Oklahoma a trip to the Orange Bowl and a share of the Big Eight championship and means Nebraska will not go to a bowl game.

The Sooners came from behind twice, on Steve Davis' fourth down, one-yard run in the second period and Horace Ivory's second chance, five-yard dash in the third quarter. It came two plays after a touchdown run by Elvis Peacock was nullified by a penalty.

Peacock added an insurance touchdown, scoring from three yards out with 10 minutes left. The Sooners then added insult to injury, scoring twice in the final three minutes on runs of eight yards by Davis and four yards by freshman Billy Sims.

The final gun erased the last shred of Oklahoma's NCAA probation. And college football's defending national champions will meet Michigan in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night, their first bowl appearance in three years. Fourth-ranked Michigan lost to No. 1 Ohio State 21-14 Saturday and the Buckeyes are headed for the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska, which finished in the regular season with a 10-1 record like Oklahoma, had earlier turned down a bid from the Fiesta Bowl.

But Fiesta Bowl officials said they would ask the Cornhuskers to reconsider.

It was Nebraska's first setback in 12 games, since a 28-14 loss to Oklahoma in the 1974 regular season finale. Nebraska's defeat left Ohio State, third-ranked Texas A&M and eighth-ranked Arizona State as the nation's only unbeaten-untied teams.

Although Nebraska marched 67 yards to the Oklahoma 13 following the opening kickoff and recovered fumbles at the Sonners' 38 and 32 yard lines before the first period was over, the Cornhuskers managed only a 3-0 lead on Mike Coyle's 24-yard field goal.

Nebraska later forged ahead 10-7 on Monte Anthony's one-yard run after another Oklahoma fumble, but that was the Cornhuskers' last lead and the Sooners were soon in control.

Will experiment with 10-inch length limit on crappie

The chances are he won't be around to hear it.

Beginning in 1976, Missouri will have a length limit on crappie of 10 inches on the James River arm of Table Rock Lake. It may be the only such regulation in the nation; certainly is one of very few.

Traditionally you just don't think of length limits on crappie. Crappie are Missouri's most sought-after fish and there never has been a problem with them.

Well, there has been one. It just wasn't recognized.

Fred Vasey, fisheries biologist for the Department of Conservation, specialized in crappies and he has studies the fish on several Missouri lakes--Table Rock, Stockton, Pomme de Terre, Lake of the Ozarks and Thomas Hill.

"Crappie can live to seven years or older but you rarely find a four-year-old crappie," he says. "The bulk are 10 inches long and in their third year. We can't prove yet that the largest ones are taken by anglers. But if it's something else, it's a mortality factor outside all our experience."

The length limit is experimental and it probably will be in effect for at least several years. "We hope for a good 1976 spawn," Vacey says. "Then we can follow that year class for several years to see what happens to it. If that year class grows to 10 inches in good numbers, then we can be sure that angling is what now keeps the bigger fish cropped off."

Table Rock last had a good spawn in 1973. "The 1973 fish are just reaching 10 inches," Vacey says. "And there aren't very many of them. Anglers caught the socks off them last spring.

"We've never looked at crappie management this way. In most states the big problem apparently has been in harvesting enough crappie so the population won't become stunted.

"Generally fishermen fish an area when the fishing is good, but leave when it turns poor. It's self-limiting. But with the James River arm people kept going back because of the area's reputation for fine crappie fishing.

"They'd think 'we used to catch big crappie here. I must not be fishing right.' I talked to people who brought in limits of six or seven inch crappie. That's all they could catch." These fish were only in their second year of life.

Vacey has proof that Table Rock can produce big crappie. Long Creek arm still gives up crappie of two pounds or larger which are 6 and 7 (up to 10) years old. "Long Creek is very clear in the spring when crappie are most vulnberable.

"And water clarity dictates the depth where crappie will be during the spawning period. Most fishermen fish shallow and few go as deep as 18 feet. But Long Creek crappie may be that deep during the spring.

"At the same time, the James River arm is turbid and the crappie may be only five feet down--the area where most fishermen fish."

Mizzou ends season as Kansas wins big, 42-24

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — "Fantastic..."

Bud Moore, in his first season as football coach at Kansas, spoke the words Saturday and referred to Laverne Smith.

Smith ran 67 and 56 yards for touchdowns and set up a third with a 41-yard burst, leading Kansas to a 42-24 victory over 18th-ranked Missouri and into the Sun Bowl.

"Laverne Smith is as fine a running back as there is in the country," Moore added. "We're glad he had his chance today to show what he can do. We were able to use our fullbacks and then give the ball to Smith, and he did a fantastic job."

Moore might have used the word for other reason, too. His Jayhawks piled up 556 yards rushing, the most ever against the Tigers. The old record of 498 was set by Oklahoma, beaten only by Kansas this season, in 1974.

Moore praised his quarterback, converted safety Nolan Cromwell, and the offensive tackles also.

"Without a doubt, Nolan Cromwell is the best wishbone quarterback that I've ever seen," said Moore, who came to Kansas from wishbone-wise Alabama. "I wouldn't trade him for anyone in America.

"A lot of credit has to go to our offensive tackles. They were really controlling their men and allowing us to run where we wanted to."

Asked about the difference between the Kansas team which lost to Washington State, 18-14 last Sept. 13 and now, Moore:

"They're the same young men but they know what they're capable of doing now. They didn't then."

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said Kansas "took it to us from the beginning and we just couldn't get back he momentum our way in the second half. Smith punished us. The draw took the momentum away from us. We couldn't stop it."

The Jayhawks, predicted by many at the season's start to be incapable of winning a single game, finished the regular season with seven victories and four losses and a 4-3 record in the Big Eight.

Kansas, hurt by early fumbles, had to overcome a 10-point Missouri lead; but Smith saw to it personally.

On the third play of the second half, he broke loose behind a wave of blockers and stormed 67 yards. Two and one-half minutes later, he was gone again on a 56-yard jaunt, lifting the Jayhawks to a 21-10 advantage.

After Tony Galbreath ran nine yards for a Missouri touchdown, Smith galloped 41 yards to set up another one for Kansas. It was scored by Dennis Wright on a 20-yard burst up the middle.

Earlier, Wright had gone the distance on a similar play for the initial Kansas touchdown. Bill Campfield twice ran two yards for the final Kansas scores.

Steve Pisarkiewicz hit his favorite receiver, Henry Marshall, for two Missouri scores, one for five yards and again for three. Tim Gibbons kicked a 29-yard field goal for the Tigers, who ended the season 6-5 and 3-4.

Kansas will play Pitt in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., on Dec. 26.

Buckeyes bounce back to beat Michigan; earn Rose Bowl bid

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Top-ranked Ohio State, behind with less than four minutes remaining, rebounded on Cornelius Greene's passing and Ray Griffin's interception that set up touchdowns by fullback Pete Johnson to send the Buckeyes to a 21-14 victory over fourth-ranked Michigan for the Big Ten title.

Johnson scored three touchdowns—two of them in a 59-second span of the final four minutes Saturday—to secure the Buckeyes' fourth straight Rose Bowl appearance.

The victory marks the first time in four years either team has won the conference title outright. The two arch-rivals had tied the last three years, although the Buckeyes went to the Rose Bowl each time.

Griffin, brother of of Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, set up Johnson's winning three-yard touchdown run by intercepting a Rick Leach pass and returning it 30 yards to the Michigan three-yard line with 2:23 left. Johnson, who raised his Big Ten-record season touchdown total to 25, scored on the next play.

Less than a minute before that, the powerful Johnson had scored on a one-yard plunge to climax an 80-yard, 11-play drive—only the Buckeyes' second substantial march of the game which saw Michigan go ahead 14-7 with six minutes remaining.

Archie Griffin managed only 46 yards rushing for Ohio State, snapping at 31 his record string of consecutive regular-season games of rushing for more than 100 yards.

The Buckeyes stopped Michigan on the game's first series and then drove 63 yards in 15 plays on their first possession to score on a seven-yard Cornelius Greene-to-Johnson pass. It was only Johnson's second catch of the year and this was to be Ohio State's last major offensive thrust until the final minutes of the game.

Turnovers marred the rest of the first half, but Michigan did drive 80 yards in 11 plays to score on an 11-yard pass from tailback Gordon Bell to wingback Jim Smith 24 seconds before intermission.

On the ensuing kickoff, with a record, regular-season college crowd of 105,543 howling, the Wolverines recovered Archie Griffin's fumble and were poised to take the lead. But Bob Wood missed on a 37-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the half.

At one point, there were six turnovers in eight series in the first half, three by each side.

The Wolverines' punter, John Anderson, whose short kicks had been hurting Michigan all afternoon, managed a 33-yarder early in the fourth period that put the Buckeyes on their own six. It was the first time Ohio State was deep in its own territory.

The Buckeyes were forced to punt and Michigan then drove 43 yards in nine plays to get the one-yard TD plunge by freshman Leach midway through the period that gave the Wolverines a 14-7 lead.

Behind for the first time all day, Ohio State suddenly snapped out of its offensive lethargy to come back on Johnson's two late touchdowns.

In the second half, Michigan's defense stymied the Buckeyes at virtually every turn. Archie Griffin was unable to break through the Wolverines' hard-charging defense which frustrated the option-type plays Ohio State has been so reknown for with Greene and Griffin.

The Buckeyes' initial first down in the march that tied the game at 14-14 was only their second in 35 minutes in which they had the ball.

The victory raised Ohio State's record to 11-0 and 8-0 in the conference. Michigan is 8-1-2 overall and 7-1 in the Big Ten.

Indians trip Northeast Mo. to win MIAA title

CAPE GIRARDEAU—A 26-yard field goal by star kicker Mike Wood in the fourth period lifted the Southeast Missouri State University Indians to a 17-14 victory over Northeast Missouri State and gave the Indians sole possession of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship.

Wood, an All-America candidate who had kicked field goals of 61 and 54 yards earlier this season, made sure of a much easier boot and drilled it through the uprights with 10:48 left in the game.

The Indians had taken a 7-0 first period lead after their first possession. Following the opening kickoff, quarterback Rick Wieser directed Semo on an 82-yard touchdown drive. A pair of big pass completions put the Indians within scoring range, and it was Wieser himself who went over from the one on a keeper. Wood booted the extra point.

Wood, who is ranked fifth in the nation among collegiate punters, had a punt go off the side of his foot later in the period. Northeast capitalized on the good field position by scoring on the last play of the period. Quarterback Steve Rampey found Tony Groso wide open over the middle for a 20-yard scoring strike. Kent Fensom tied the game with the extra point.

The Indians regained the lead late in the second quarter. This time, the drive covered 80-yards and was capped by a five-yard sprint by fullback Bobby Everage. Wood's kick was good again, and Semo held a 14-7 halftime advantage.

The Bulldogs, who had lost their first MIAA game only a week ago to Southwest Missouri, struck back in the third period. Keith Meadows carried the ball over from the one to cap a 33-yard TD drive, and Fensom again knotted the score with the point after. The game remained tied until Wood's fourth-period field goal.

The victory enabled coach Jim Lohr's Indians to complete an undefeated MIAA season and finish 7-4 overall. It was also the seventh victory in a row for Semo, which dropped their opening four games to nonconference opponents when Wieser was injured.

Oregon downs Oregon State

EUGENE, Ore. — Oregon's Chuck Wills returned an interception for one touchdown and the Ducks' Kim Nutting recovered a fumble to set up another as Oregon posted a 14-7 Pacific-8 conference victory over intrastate rival Oregon State.

The loss spoiled Dee Andros' last game as Oregon State coach and ended the most dismal football seasons in the school's history. The Beavers finished with a 1-10 record while Oregon was 3-8. It was only Andros' second loss to Oregon in his 11 seasons as Oregon State coach.

Oregon State's lone score came when Jay Locey stepped in front of Oregon's Tommy Garrett, picked off Jack Henderson's pass and returned it down the sideline 94 yards for the score.

Henderson, a sophomore who was fourth in the nation in passing going into the contest, completed just four of 18 passes for 36 yards and had two intercepted. Oregon's running game fared considerably better as George Bennett rushed for 129 yards in 34 carries.

Oregon had driven to the Oregon State five-yard line late in the first quarter, but Locey's pickoff of Henderson's sideline pass erased the apparent Oregon advantage.

Oregon tied the game early in the second quarter when Wills intercepted a pass by Oregon State's Kyle Grossart at the Beaver 15 and returned it for the score.

The winning touchdown came aftr Oregon State's Lee Overton fumbled Oregon's opening kickoff in the second half and Oregon's Kim Nutting recovered at the Oregon State 19.

Bennett picked up all 19 yards on four straight carries, the last being a three-yard scoring run.

Hudson loses

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — The nation's longest prep football winning streak was snapped at 72 Saturday as Ishpeming defeated Hudson High School 38-22 for the Michigan Class C State Championship.

Hudson High, representing a tiny Michigan town of about 2,500 persons, had set the record last week in the semifinal round of the playoffs, the first state championships in modern Michigan history.

Hudson High last lost in the opening game of the 1968 season. Over the last decade, the school has won 86 games, lost five and tied one.

California clinches Pac-8 tie by downing Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Chuck Muncie scored California's first four touchdowns, passed for a fifth and rushed for 166 yards Saturday to lead the Bears to a 48-15 defeat of Stanford and at least a share of the Pacific-8 football championship.

The four touchdowns by Muncie, who may have been playing his last collegiate game, equaled a school record and the senior tailback established several other records in the convincing victory before 88,000 fans at Stanford Stadium.

The 13th-ranked Bears finished the regular season with a 8-3 record. Their conference mark is 6-1.

But the UCLA Bruins will go to the Rose Bowl to face Big Ten champion Ohio State if they match California's 6-1 record by beating Southern California next Friday night. If UCLA loses, California wins the Pac-8 and goes to the Rose Bowl. There is a possibility Cal could go to the Fiesta Bowl as a consolation.

Stanford, in a three-way tie for the Pac-8 lead going into Saturday, finished 5-2 in the conference and 6-4-1 overall.

Muncie made touchdown runs of one and 16 yards and caught a seven-yard scoring pass from quarterback Joe Roth in the first half. In the final quarter, after Stanford scored a safety and a touchdown to pull within eight points, Muncie made a three-yard touchdown run and threw a 46-yard touchdown pass to Wes Walker.

Stanford's offense, unable to move the ball on the ground, relied almost completely on the passing of Guy Benjamin, who threw touchdown passes to Tony Hill and Jim Jenke. He was also intercepted three times.

Sooners headed for Orange Bowl after big win over Nebraska

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Seventh-ranked Oklahoma survived three early scares at the cost of a lone field goal and then turned five Nebraska errors into touchdowns Saturday to defeat the previously-unbeaten and second-ranked Cornhuskers 35-10.

The triumph earned Oklahoma a trip to the Orange Bowl and a share of the Big Eight championship and means Nebraska will not go to a bowl game.

The Sooners came from behind twice, on Steve Davis' fourth down, one-yard run in the second period and Horace Ivory's second chance, five-yard dash in the third quarter. It came two plays after a touchdown run by Elvis Peacock was nullified by a penalty.

Peacock added an insurance touchdown, scoring from three yards out with 10 minutes left. The Sooners then added insult to injury, scoring twice in the final three minutes on runs of eight yards by Davis and four yards by freshman Billy Sims.

The final gun erased the last shred of Oklahoma's NCAA probation. And college football's defending national champions will meet Michigan in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night, their first bowl appearance in three years. Fourth-ranked Michigan lost to No. 1 Ohio State 21-14 Saturday and the Buckeyes are headed for the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska, which finished in the regular season with a 10-1 record like Oklahoma, had earlier turned down a bid from the Fiesta Bowl.

But Fiesta Bowl officials said they would ask the Cornhuskers to reconsider.

It was Nebraska's first setback in 12 games, since a 28-14 loss to Oklahoma in the 1974 regular season finale. Nebraska's defeat left Ohio State, third-ranked Texas A&M and eighth-ranked Arizona State as the nation's only unbeaten-untied teams.

Although Nebraska marched 67 yards to the Oklahoma 13 following the opening kickoff and recovered fumbles at the Sonners' 38 and 32 yard lines before the first period was over, the Cornhuskers managed only a 3-0 lead on Mike Coyle's 24-yard field goal.

Nebraska later forged ahead 10-7 on Monte Anthony's one-yard run after another Oklahoma fumble, but that was the Cornhuskers' last lead and the Sooners were soon in control.

Will experiment with 10-inch length limit on crappie

COLUMBIA--Don't bother to sing Happy Birthday to your favorite crappie on his fourth anniversary.

The chances are he won't be around to hear it.

Beginning in 1976, Missouri will have a length limit on crappie of 10 inches on the James River arm of Table Rock Lake. It may be the only such regulation in the nation; certainly is one of very few.

Traditionally you just don't think of length limits on crappie. Crappie are Missouri's most sought-after fish and there never has been a problem with them.

Well, there has been one. It just wasn't recognized.

Fred Vasey, fisheries biologist for the Department of Conservation, specialized in crappies and he has studies the fish on several Missouri lakes--Table Rock, Stockton, Pomme de Terre, Lake of the Ozarks and Thomas Hill.

"Crappie can live to seven years or older but you rarely find a four-year-old crappie," he says. "The bulk are 10 inches long and in their third year. We can't prove yet that the largest ones are taken by anglers. But if it's something else, it's a mortality factor outside all our experience."

The length limit is experimental and it probably will be in effect for at least several years. "We hope for a good 1976 spawn," Vacey says. "Then we can follow that year class for several years to see what happens to it. If that year class grows to 10 inches in good numbers, then we can be sure that angling is what now keeps the bigger fish cropped off."

Table Rock last had a good spawn in 1973. "The 1973 fish are just reaching 10 inches," Vacey says. "And there aren't very many of them. Anglers caught the socks off them last spring.

"We've never looked at crappie management this way. In most states the big problem apparently has been in harvesting enough crappie so the population won't become stunted.

"Generally fishermen fish an area when the fishing is good, but leave when it turns poor. It's self-limiting. But with the James River arm people kept going back because of the area's reputation for fine crappie fishing.

"They'd think 'we used to catch big crappie here. I must not be fishing right.' I talked to people who brought in limits of six or seven inch crappie. That's all they could catch." These fish were only in their second year of life.

Vacey has proof that Table Rock can produce big crappie. Long Creek arm still gives up crappie of two pounds or larger which are 6 and 7 (up to 10) years old. "Long Creek is very clear in the spring when crappie are most vulnberable.

"And water clarity dictates the depth where crappie will be during the spawning period. Most fishermen fish shallow and few go as deep as 18 feet. But Long Creek crappie may be that deep during the spring.

"At the same time, the James River arm is turbid and the crappie may be only five feet down--the area where most fishermen fish."

Mizzou ends season as Kansas wins big, 42-24

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — "Fantastic..."

Bud Moore, in his first season as football coach at Kansas, spoke the words Saturday and referred to Laverne Smith.

Smith ran 67 and 56 yards for touchdowns and set up a third with a 41-yard burst, leading Kansas to a 42-24 victory over 18th-ranked Missouri and into the Sun Bowl.

"Laverne Smith is as fine a running back as there is in the country," Moore added. "We're glad he had his chance today to show what he can do. We were able to use our fullbacks and then give the ball to Smith, and he did a fantastic job."

Moore might have used the word for other reason, too. His Jayhawks piled up 556 yards rushing, the most ever against the Tigers. The old record of 498 was set by Oklahoma, beaten only by Kansas this season, in 1974.

Moore praised his quarterback, converted safety Nolan Cromwell, and the offensive tackles also.

"Without a doubt, Nolan Cromwell is the best wishbone quarterback that I've ever seen," said Moore, who came to Kansas from wishbone-wise Alabama. "I wouldn't trade him for anyone in America.

"A lot of credit has to go to our offensive tackles. They were really controlling their men and allowing us to run where we wanted to."

Asked about the difference between the Kansas team which lost to Washington State, 18-14 last Sept. 13 and now, Moore:

"They're the same young men but they know what they're capable of doing now. They didn't then."

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said Kansas "took it to us from the beginning and we just couldn't get back he momentum our way in the second half. Smith punished us. The draw took the momentum away from us. We couldn't stop it."

The Jayhawks, predicted by many at the season's start to be incapable of winning a single game, finished the regular season with seven victories and four losses and a 4-3 record in the Big Eight.

Kansas, hurt by early fumbles, had to overcome a 10-point Missouri lead; but Smith saw to it personally.

On the third play of the second half, he broke loose behind a wave of blockers and stormed 67 yards. Two and one-half minutes later, he was gone again on a 56-yard jaunt, lifting the Jayhawks to a 21-10 advantage.

After Tony Galbreath ran nine yards for a Missouri touchdown, Smith galloped 41 yards to set up another one for Kansas. It was scored by Dennis Wright on a 20-yard burst up the middle.

Earlier, Wright had gone the distance on a similar play for the initial Kansas touchdown. Bill Campfield twice ran two yards for the final Kansas scores.

Steve Pisarkiewicz hit his favorite receiver, Henry Marshall, for two Missouri scores, one for five yards and again for three. Tim Gibbons kicked a 29-yard field goal for the Tigers, who ended the season 6-5 and 3-4.

Kansas will play Pitt in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., on Dec. 26.

Lilbourn Panthers win NPHS tourney

WARDELL--The Lilbourn Panthers won their 45th consecutive basketball game and their third straight North Pemiscot Invitational tournament here Saturday night by turning back the Hayti Indians 78-54.

After a close call to the Delta C-7 Chargers in the semi-finals the Panthers geared themselves up for the Indians and with two-time all-stater Frankie Robinson, having his best game of the young season and Don Treadwell leading the attack Hayti was left behind early in the first period and was never able to keep up with the fast moving Panthers.

Robinson showed the fans who had collected for the finals, looking for the possible upset, why he is considered the best all-around player in southeast Missouri. His quickness and ball handling as well as his shooting was more than the Hayti defenders could cope with as they popped in 28 points in the game.

Lilbourn raced past the slower Indians in the first period to take an 18-12 lead behind the leadership of Robinson and forward Don Treadwell. Treadwell finished the game with 20 points as he muscled his way under the bucket.

Sylvester James and Dwight Jones were the only offensive threats for the Indians as each scored 12 points apiece for coach Don Tomlinson.

Coach Don Tomlinson took his Indians into the dressing room at halftime to draw out some strategy to stop fastbreak offense of the Panthers and try to map out some offensive plays to counter the scoring of Lilbourn but when the third period started the Panthers showed no signs of letting up and completely ignored Hayti's defensive efforts and stymied the Indians offensive threats to increase an already insurmountable lead by outscoring Hayti 20-14 to lead 57-38 going into the final eight minutes of the game.

Lilbourn coach Bob Phelps began to let his reserves filter into the game in the fourth period and Coach Tomlinson sent in some reserves to try to get the Indians back into the game.

Lilbourn takes on Risco Tuesday night in a New Madrid County conference for a tuneup before entering the Sikeston Invitational tournament December 1 where they have won the championship for the past two years and are the number one seeded team this season. The Panthers will come into the tournament with a 3-0 slate.

The North Pemiscot Mustangs, who were seeded second behind the Panthers but had to forfeit their game to Hayti because of a rule infraction, swept past the New Madrid Indians 67-44 to take third place in the tournament.

Sharp shooting Jerry Stewart fired in 29 points for the Mustangs as the smaller Indians couldn't cope with the muscle men from North Pemiscot. Chris Tanner was the only Indian in double figures with 13.

Penn State holds on for 7-6 win over Pitt.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Penn State's Steve Geise ran 29 yards for the winning touchdown with 8:18 left in the game and Pitt's Carson Long missed three field goal tries in the last five minutes as the Sugar Bowl-bound Nittany Lions scored a 7-6 college football victory here Saturday.

Chris Bahr's extra-point kick gave ninth-ranked Penn State, 9-2, the margin of victory, while Long had a point-after try blocked and missed field goal tries of 51, 23 and 45 yards down the stretch.

His 51-yard miss came with 4:41 left and his 45-yarder fell just wide and short with only nine seconds left on the clock in the clash for the unofficial Eastern title.

Sun Bowl-bound Pitt fell to 7-4 despite 125 yards rushing by Tony Dorsett, who had his first 100-yard game in three meetings with Penn State.

The 17th-ranked Panthers, who haven't beaten Penn State since 1965, took a 6-0 lead midway of the second quarter when Elliott Walker burst 37 yards for a touchdown.

However Long's extra-point kick was blocked by Penn State defensive back Tom Odell, snapping a string of 60 straight conversions.

Long had kicked 13 field goals this year, a Pitt single-season record, and had only missed five attempts. He had not previously missed from less than 45 yards, but he missed in critical situations Saturday, twice in the last two minutes when it appeared Pitt might finally upset its arch-rival.

Colorado routs Kansas State 33-7

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Billy Waddy raced 100 yards with the opening kickoff and hard-running fullback Terry Kunz added two more touchdowns, powering ninth-rated Colorado to a 33-7 rout of Kansas State Saturday in the regular season finale for both Big 8 football teams.

The victory boosted the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl-bound Buffaloes' record to 9-2 over-all and 5-2 in the conference. Kansas State, dropping its eighth straight game, finished at 3-8 and 0-7.

Colorado showed signs of turning the game into a rout early, scoring on its first two possessions. At the start, Waddy camped under the kikcoff near the goal line and sprinted through corridors of blockers, then outran the pursuing Wildcat defenders.

On their next possession, the Buffs marched 80 yards in 10 plays for another score. Kunz, who carried five times for 36 yards on the march, got the TD on a one-yard plunge.

In the third quarter, Kunz caught a screen pass from quarterback David Williams and, surrounded by blockers, loped 19 yards into the end zone for Colorado's final score.

Arkansas bulls its way past Tex. Tech

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas quarterback Scott Bull accounted for two touchdowns during a 96-second span and the 19th-ranked Razorbacks scored a 31-14 Southwest Conference football victory over Texas Tech Saturday.

With Arkansas leading 10-0, Bull hooked up with tight end Marvin Daily on a 44-yard touchdown pass, then came back 1:36 later to score on a one-yard sneak. That made it 24-0 with 1:18 left in the first half.

Bull also scored Arkansas' first and last touchdowns on one-yard runs.

The victory kept the Razorbacks in the SWC title chase and ended the Raiders' winning streak at four. Tech, in its first year under Steve Sloan, finished at 6-5.

Arkansas, already assured of a bowl bid, is 8-2 for the season and 5-1 in the conference. Arkansas would go to the Cotton Bowl if Texas A&M beats Texas Nov. 28 and Arkansas beats A&M Dec. 6. If not, the Razorbacks will play Southern California on Dec. 22 in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis.

Tech mistakes kept the Raiders in trouble. Arkansas moved 33 yards for its first touchdown after an 11-yard punt and the Razorbacks went 62 yards for their second touchdown.

With third-and-nine at the Tech 44, Bull backed up and looked for Daily down the middle. Free safety Curtis Jordan went for the ball and missed. Daily reached high, gathered in the ball at the 20 and galloped into the end zone untouched.

Washington nips Washington St.

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington charged from behind to score on a 93-yard interception return and a 78-yard pass play in less than a minute of the fourth quarter Saturday to defeat cross-state rival Washington State 28-27.

Washington State, intent on an upset, moved to a 24-14 halftime lead and picked up a second half field goal. The Cougars proceeded to dominate the second half and appeared en route to a clinching score in the fourth quarter.

Then, Al Burleson picked off a John Hopkins' pass and raced 93 yards to score.

After the ensuing kickoff, Washington State ran three plays and punted to Washington's 22-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Husky quarterback Warren Moon threw a pass that went into a crowd downfield. The ball was deflected into the hands of receiver Bob Gaines, who completed the 78-yard touchdown play that Washington the victory.

Those two big plays spoiled a fine overall performance by the Cougars, particularly fullback Vaughn Williams, who rushed for over 130 yards, and a defense that had kept the Huskies at bay.

The Cougars used four Washington fumbles to build their 24-14 halftime lead as Williams scored two touchdowns. Despite their second-half ball control, the Cougars could manage only one field goal in four tries.

Yanks deal Dobson for Indians' Gamble

Dobson, 33, with a career record of 103-105 in nine major league seasons with Detroit, San Diego, Baltimore, Atlanta and New York, was 11-14 with a 4.07 earned-run average for the Yanks during the 1975 season.

He got in several squabbles with Yanks' Manager Bill Virdon over not being given a chance to pitch every fourth day. Virdon later was fired by the Yanks and replaced by Billy Martin, although the managerial change apparently had nothing to do with Dobson, whose best year was 1971, when he was 20-8 with Baltimore.

Gamble, 25, who bats left-handed, hit .261 with 15 home runs and 45 runs batted in last season. In the past three seasons, he has hit a total 54 homers.

Harvard beats rival Yale 10-7

With less than two minutes remaining and faced with a fourth and 12 situation, Harvard quarterback Jim Kubacki rifled a pass over the middle to Bob McDermott. The play carried to Yale's 14-yard line and set up Lynch's game-winning kick in the 100th anniversary of this rivalry.

Harvard completed its season with a 7-2 record and 6-1 in the Ivy League. Harvard has tied for the league title four times, twice with Yale, since the Ivy League was formed in 1956. Yale wound up 7-2 overall and 5-2 in Ivy play.

Yale jumped on top 7-0 in the second quarter when quarterback Stone Phillips scored on a five-yard run.

The two closely matched squads appeared to be testing each other at the outset of the game with neither team showing much offense until Yale managed to grind out its touchdown on a 11-play series that covered 43 yards. Harvard didn't penetrate Yale territory until near the end of the first half, with Kubacki suffering two interceptions at the hands of the Yale defense.

Kubacki, the backbone of Harvard's offense, finished with 11 completions in 27 passes for 118 yards.

Cowboys stop Iowa State 14-7

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Sophomore tailback Terry Miller scored two touchdowns and was one of two players who passed the 1,000-yard season rushing mark as Oklahoma State defeated Iowa State 14-7 in a mistake-riddled Big Eight Conference football finale here Saturday.

Miller, who also became the third player in Cowboy history to get 11 touchdowns in a season, scored on runs of 1 and 20 yards in the second and third periods.

He finished with 1,026 yards on the ground. Iowa State's Jim Wingender, who entered the game as the Big Eight's third leading rusher, ran for 149 yards and a season total of 1,071.

Coach Jim Stanley's Cowboys finished 3-4 in the conference and 7-4 overall — their most regular-season victories since a 7-3 finish in 1958.

The loss marked the third consecutive 4-7 season for three-year Cyclone Coach Earle Bruce.

Iowa State, 1-6 in the conference, suffered its fifth straight loss. Both teams had rushed to 4-1 starts.

Cyclone fullback Mike Williams plunged one yard early in the third period to end a 98-yard drive.

Irish end year with 32-9 win

MIAMI (AP) — Defensive end Ross Browner set up a touchdown with a fumble recovery at Miami's three-yard line and gave Notre Dame a safety three minutes later as the Irish scored 16 points in the second period to take a 32-9 football victory Saturday night.

The Irish, ending their first season with Coach Dan Devine with an 8-3 record, got their other second-period tally after linebacker Doug Becker recovered another Miami bobble at the Hurricane's 19.

Browner pounced on a wild pitch by Miami quarterbacker Kary Baker at the start of the second quarter to set up a two-yard scoring run by Jerome Heavens that broke a 3-3 tie.

The safety came four plays later when Miami's Mike Archer, in punt formation in the end zone on fourth down, attempted to pass and was tackled by Browner. The pass attempt came when the Hurricanes needed 12 yards for a first down.

Steve Niehaus' jarring tackle of freshman fullback Otis Anderson late in the half resulted in the recovery by Becker. Irish quarterback Rick Slager threw to tight end Ken MacAfee for 16 yards and then hit McAfee for three yards and the score.

A fourth-quarter fumble recovery by Notre Dame's Willie Fry at Miami's 41 set up a touchdown early in the last quarter on a four-yard run by Al Hunter. The Irish added another touchdown with 55 seconds left to play on a 10-yard pass from Joe Restic to MacAfee.

Miami, 2-7, got a 29-yard field goal by Chris Dennis in the first period and a third-period touchdown on a 38-yard pass from Baker to Larry Cain. Notre Dame's field goal was a 26-yard effort by Dave Reeve.

Tennessee holds off Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Stanley Morgan and Randy Wallace provided the firepower as Tennessee grabbed a 17-0 lead early in the second period, then held on for a 17-13 Southeastern Conference football victory over Kentucky Saturday.

Tennessee's early lead was sparked by Morgan's 80-yard sprint on an off-tackle play with 2:48 left in the first period.

Wallace, a junior quarterback, provided the passing that led to a 32-yard Tennessee field goal with 7:55 left in the first period and a one-yard touchdown with 14:06 to go in the second.

In the fourth period, Ramsey hit sophomore end Dave Trosper with a short pass that turned into a 77-yard touchdown play.

However, Kentucky's try for a two-point conversion failed and the Wildcats could get no closer than the Tennessee 37 thereafter.

Morgan led Tennessee on the ground with 134 yards in 16 carries, while Wallace hit seven of 16 passes for 113 yards. He had two intercepted, however.

Three of Wallace's passes were to wide receiver Larry Seivers for 47 yards, giving Seivers 34 catches this year for a total of 769 yards.

Ramsey led the Kentucky rushing attack with 121 yards on 30 carries and connected on two of three passes for 80 yards.

Senior Sonny Collins, the Southeastern Conference's leading career rusher, had 53 yards on 13 plays, but didn't get into the game until 13:35 to go in the second period.

Terps bomb Virginia 62-24

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) Freshman Steve Atkins scored two touchdowns, one on a 60-yard dash, to cap a 27-point third-quarter outburst, helping Gator Bowl-bound Maryland, the nation's 20th ranked team, to a 62-24 rout over Virginia Saturday.

The victory for the Terps, 8-2-1 for the season, gave them a second consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference championship and extended their league winning streak to a record-tying 15 in a row dating back to 1973.

Senior John Schultz also scored twice for Maryland, which took a 21-10 halftime lead as quarterback Larry Dick passed for 209 yards. Dick did not see any action in the second half.

Atkins, who gained five yards in the first half, added 121 more before collapsing on the sidelines shortly after his 60-yard run.

Burroughs struck first on a 75-yard run by Earl Gerfen with 4:41 left in the first quarter. Gerfen went on to top all ground-gainers with 110 yards. Lee Bearman kicked the extra point.

South Shelby came back in the second period on a blocked punt. Mike Schwada picked up the ball and ran 21 yards for South Shelby, but the point after missed.

The two teams traded field goals later in the second quarter to make the score 10-9 at the half.

Burroughs got its biggest lead of the afternoon on a South Shelby fumble just before the end of the third period. Paul Yullman picked up the ball and took it 34 yards for a score. Bearman's kick made it 17-9.

Yanks deal Dobson for Indians' Gamble

Dobson, 33, with a career record of 103-105 in nine major league seasons with Detroit, San Diego, Baltimore, Atlanta and New York, was 11-14 with a 4.07 earned-run average for the Yanks during the 1975 season.

He got in several squabbles with Yanks' Manager Bill Virdon over not being given a chance to pitch every fourth day. Virdon later was fired by the Yanks and replaced by Billy Martin, although the managerial change apparently had nothing to do with Dobson, whose best year was 1971, when he was 20-8 with Baltimore.

Gamble, 25, who bats left-handed, hit .261 with 15 home runs and 45 runs batted in last season. In the past three seasons, he has hit a total 54 homers.

Terps bomb Virginia 62-24

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) Freshman Steve Atkins scored two touchdowns, one on a 60-yard dash, to cap a 27-point third-quarter outburst, helping Gator Bowl-bound Maryland, the nation's 20th ranked team, to a 62-24 rout over Virginia Saturday.

The victory for the Terps, 8-2-1 for the season, gave them a second consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference championship and extended their league winning streak to a record-tying 15 in a row dating back to 1973.

Senior John Schultz also scored twice for Maryland, which took a 21-10 halftime lead as quarterback Larry Dick passed for 209 yards. Dick did not see any action in the second half.

Atkins, who gained five yards in the first half, added 121 more before collapsing on the sidelines shortly after his 60-yard run.

Harvard beats rival Yale 10-7

With less than two minutes remaining and faced with a fourth and 12 situation, Harvard quarterback Jim Kubacki rifled a pass over the middle to Bob McDermott. The play carried to Yale's 14-yard line and set up Lynch's game-winning kick in the 100th anniversary of this rivalry.

Harvard completed its season with a 7-2 record and 6-1 in the Ivy League. Harvard has tied for the league title four times, twice with Yale, since the Ivy League was formed in 1956. Yale wound up 7-2 overall and 5-2 in Ivy play.

Yale jumped on top 7-0 in the second quarter when quarterback Stone Phillips scored on a five-yard run.

The two closely matched squads appeared to be testing each other at the outset of the game with neither team showing much offense until Yale managed to grind out its touchdown on a 11-play series that covered 43 yards. Harvard didn't penetrate Yale territory until near the end of the first half, with Kubacki suffering two interceptions at the hands of the Yale defense.

Kubacki, the backbone of Harvard's offense, finished with 11 completions in 27 passes for 118 yards.

Cowboys stop Iowa State 14-7

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Sophomore tailback Terry Miller scored two touchdowns and was one of two players who passed the 1,000-yard season rushing mark as Oklahoma State defeated Iowa State 14-7 in a mistake-riddled Big Eight Conference football finale here Saturday.

Miller, who also became the third player in Cowboy history to get 11 touchdowns in a season, scored on runs of 1 and 20 yards in the second and third periods.

He finished with 1,026 yards on the ground. Iowa State's Jim Wingender, who entered the game as the Big Eight's third leading rusher, ran for 149 yards and a season total of 1,071.

Coach Jim Stanley's Cowboys finished 3-4 in the conference and 7-4 overall — their most regular-season victories since a 7-3 finish in 1958.

The loss marked the third consecutive 4-7 season for three-year Cyclone Coach Earle Bruce.

Iowa State, 1-6 in the conference, suffered its fifth straight loss. Both teams had rushed to 4-1 starts.

Cyclone fullback Mike Williams plunged one yard early in the third period to end a 98-yard drive.

DEFEAT looms ahead for those supporting development of the B-1 bomber if Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) has his way. The unsuccessful 1972 Democratic presidential candidate has lined up enough votes in the Senate to block construction of 244 of the bombers which he says could cost more than $70 billion within a decade.

SPAIN'S ROYAL couple, Juan Carlos de Borbon y Borbon and his wife, Sophia of Greece, has distinguished connections. In succeeding Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Juan Carlos resumes a royal line interrupted when his grandfather, Alfonso XIII, was sent into exile in 1931. Juan Carlos is a great-great-great grandson of Britain's Queen Victoria and also a descendant of France's King Louis XIV. Sophia is the sister of Greece's exiled King Constantine.

WATERGATE becomes a part-time federal case with the appointment of new special prosecutor, Charles F. Ruff. Ruff, a law professor who once served as a trial attorney in the special Watergate prosecutor's office, takes over from Henry Ruth in November, but will not pursue the investigation full time.

THE PROBLEMS he's inheriting might make some strong men weep, but not Donald Rumsfeld, President Ford's Washington-wise choice for secretary of defense. Rumsfeld resisted congressional pressure during nomination hearings to renounce a possible vice-presidential spot on the 1976 Republican ticket.

Dexter hospital hires new chief of nursing

DEXTER — The Dexter Memorial Hospital Board hired a new director of nurses, put a slight raise on semi-private room rates, and discussed the possibility of a nursing scholarship program at the regular monthly Board meeting last week.

Mrs. Barbara Jones, R.N., was hired to become director of nurses, and Mrs. Mary Allen, R.N., was named assistant director of nurses. Both appointments become effective Jan. 1, 1976, according to Hospital Administrator L. J. Daniel.

Mrs. Jones was formerly a director of nurses for the Dexter hospital, and has recently been nursing director at the Dexter Convalescent Manor. Mrs. Allen has been the acting director of nurses.

Semi-private room rates were reviewed by the board and a $5 per day increase was noted to become effective Nov. 24. Board members noted that this is the only room increase in the past 12 months of operation. It was also pointed out that private room ratres are not affected by this increase.

A proposal to establish a nursing scholarship fund to help area students interested in nursing careers was made by the Board and a committee, consisting of directors Tom Burris, Ruth Nichols and administrator Daniel was appointed to study the costs of such a fund and consider the criteria by which the funds would be made available.

In other business:

-- The Board decided to seek bids for air conditioning the kitchen and provide separate air conditioning for the operating room suites. The bid is to be formulated by Bob Stearnes of Buchmueller, Whitworth, Foust and Stearnes, Inc., an architectural firm from Sikeston.

Directors John W. Ringer and Frank Schneider reported on the activities of the Missouri Hospital Association and the recent convention they attended at Osage Beach. They encouraged other directors to attend similar meetings, citing the necessity of continuing education in the health care fields.

Despite lower grain costs and a general feeling that the country is overstocked with beef cattle, Helming found other factors which led him to conclude that prices for cattle are due to rebound.

He predicted $42.50 a hundred pounds will be the lowest price through February for a good fed steer in western Kansas. They were up $1 or $2 the past week at around $46.

A reasonable projection for January, he said, would be $47.50 to $48. Then may come some easing, with the arrival on the market of some of the increasing number of animals now being put into feed lots. After May, the price might go up to $50.

Helming predicted the worst is over for the farmer who breeds cows and raises their calves until they are weened or continues grazing them until they are ready for feed-lot finishing.

He said the next three years will definitely be better than the past three for the cow-calf farmer, and prices they get for their feeder cattle will be steady to somewhat higher in the next six months to a year.

Wisner said what happens to corn prices depends a lot on how many animals are put on feed by hog and cattle producers. He forecast a price range of $2.30 to $2.50 a bushel in the Corn Belt through March, perhaps a little higher near the big cattle feeding lots.

Glen Grimes, livestock marketing specialist at the University of Missouri, said there are signs that the hog business is not acting like it has in the past.

Hogs aren't quite as sky high as they have been but the top for butchers still was $52.50 at St. Joseph Friday. This normally would stimulate every hog farmer to breed every sow he has and in-and-outers to start feeding every pig they could buy up.

Not so this time, Grimes said. The shrewd are not too sure that feed prices won't go back up. Some feel the recent high prices at the meat counter got people out of the habit of eating ham, bacon, sausage and pork chops. There is no big rush to raise pigs and glut the market.

He pjedicted hog prices will average about $50 the remainder of the year, go above $50 in the first nine months of 1976 and perhaps drop into the $40-$50 range in the last quarter of next year.

"Hog production is almost sure to be very profitable at least until mid-1967," Grimes concluded. End Adv

Film presented

Bicentennial film presented schools

An exclusive documentary motion picture, marking America's Bicentennial was presented Wednesday morning to the Sikeston Public Schools as a public service by Associated Natural Gas Co., a subsidiary of Arkansas- Missouri Power Co. of Blytheville, Ark.

The film was conceived, photographed and produced by The Screen News Digest, which has been honored repeatedly by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., for its "outstanding contributions to a better understanding of the American Way of Life."

"The Associated Natural Gas Co. is privileged and proud to be able to make this significant contribution to the celebration of the 200th anniversary of our nation's founding," Jerry Halsell of Blytheville, director of public relations, said of the presentation.

The film is titled "Faith in Ourselves" and is a timely and timeless tribute to America's history and heritage, he explained.

"People, places and events come alive in a unique and moving way," Halsell added, "as The Screen News Digest spans the years and miles to give new meaning to the worlds of Patrick Henry, 'I know of no way of judging the future but by the past.'"

"Faith in Ourselves" takes viewers on a journey through history as cameramen capture the mood and meaning of the Minuteman statue at Concord, Mass., Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Ft. McHenry in Baltimore, the Living History Farms near Des Moines, Iowa, Gettsburg, Pa., Ellis Island in New York Harbor, the Tomb of the Unknowns in the Arlington (Va.) National Cemetery and the USS Arizona Memorial in Hawaii.

An imaginative blending of historic and original motion pictures, appropriate music and relevant narration reinforce the film's basic theme that for 200 years, American has been full of promises. Not all of these promises have been realized, not all the dreams have come true, the film points out.

The picture emphasizes that as the United States passes out of its second and into its third century, the Spirit of '76 still lives and America continues to seek and to fulfill her promises and her destiny.

"In making 'Faith in Ourselves' available to students and schools in this area," Halsell said, "Associated Natural Gas Co. is keeping faith with John Adams, who wrote in 1776 that the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence should be celebrated 'from one end of this continent to the other ... from this time forward ... forever more.'"

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Long before Sherman's march through Georgia during the Civil War, the British had a march of their own — across the colony from the coast to Augusta following the British capture of Savannah on Oct. 9, 1779. The British campaign in Georgia has been considered of little military importance, but it was a brutal occupation that left countless dead, both military and civilian, The World Almanac notes.

Insurance company presents district award

Greenwood, manager of the South Middle Tennessee District, is the son of Mrs. Charles Greenwood of Nashville, formerly of Parma, and the late Charles Greenwood.

The South Middle Tennessee District produced 3,505 new Blue Cross applications and over $14 million in life insurance volume.

Perhaps the most significant accomplishment for Greenwood and his men was the fact each of the three group specialists in the South Middle Tennessee District surpassed their individual quotas for the year, according to William H. Stolzenburg, vice president of marketing for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Tennessee.

Greenwood was the only district manager to have all of his men above the quota and produced more total applications than any other district, including the larger six and seven-man districts.

Greenwood was promoted to district manager in September 1973. While a group specialist in the Nashville office prior to his promotion, he exceeded his quota three consecutive years.

He has also received recognition as an Outstanding Young Citizen.

Mobile home fire safety high

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Statistics published by the National Fire Protection Association and the California and Oregon state fire marshal offices show mobile homes are safer from fires than other dwellings, according to the Manufactured Housing Institute of Chantilly, Va.

The 1974 NFPA statistics show mobile homes nationally provide their inhabitants with better fire protection while conventional dwellings have a fire incidence 1.27 times greater than mobile homes. Only one (1) fire was reported for every 120 mobile homes in the nation while one (1) conventional dwelling caught fire for every 94 units in the nation.

The 1974 statistics from the Oregon fire marshal's office are even more favorable to mobile homes -- one fire occurred in conventional dwellings for every 128.3 units while mobile homes were nearly twice as safe (only one for every 226.27 units).

The California safety statistics show overwhelmingly that mobile homes in the 49er state are less fire prone than conventional housing units. While other dwelling units had one fire per 126 units, the mobile housing rate was only one for every 450 mobile homes in the state or a performance of 3.57 times better.

While the Oregon statistics show the loss value, that is, dollar loss, was higher in mobile homes than other dwellings, Mrs. Betty Nivens, chairman of the Oregon Housing Council, reports that this can be accounted for in the delayed "response time" by fire fighting equipment. Current zoning practices regulate mobile housing families to outlying areas with minimum fire protection where equipment response time runs as high as 20 minutes when two minutes is the desired goal.

Consumer safety has been one of the mobile home industry's major programs since the mid-1950s when the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association (now MHI), the Trailer Coach Association (western states) and the National Fire Protection Association created a national mobile home safety standard working the American National Standards Institute (then known as American Standards Association).

Originally adopted by ANSI in 1959, the standard covered only the areas of plumbing, heating and electrical installations. since then, the standard encompasses structural standards, including wind and snow loads, undercarriage, running gears (for moving down the assembly line and to homesite).

The ANSI committee on mobile homes is composed of representatives from NFPA, state fire marshals, insurance firms, industry, consumer groups, state code enforcement agencies, building officials, HUD and other government groups.

To make certain that American families had the best and safest homes at affordable cost, the industry encouraged passage of state laws to govern mobile home manufacturing. Using the ANSI-NFPA standard as a base, 46 states now have state laws enforcing mobile home standards.

President Ford signed into law the 1974 Housing Act which charged HUD with the creation of a national mobile home standard. The act also called for the creation of that National Mobile Home Advisory Board, composed of eight representatives each from government (either local, state or national), consumer groups (home-owners, advocates) and the mobile home industry to advise HUD on the adoption of the standard. The final mobile home standard is expected to be substantially modeled after the ANSI-NFPA standard and will be administered by the U..Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) when it becomes effective in 1976.

The mobile home industry standard has already innovated such consumer protection devices as smoke detectors which alerts persons to possible dangers. This prevention device is still not required in single-family conventional housing throughout the United States.

Over the years, mobile homes have been faced with such obstacles as restrictive zoning practices of local jurisdictions, high interest rates and short term financing comparing to other housing forms ,which tend to deny Americans a full range of housing choices. Yet despite such adversity, the industry has reached a point where two of every five single- family homes sold in 1974 were built in a factory.

But even with such limiting factors, the industry has reached the envious position of being the nation's most economical and safe housing, because it believes in providing consumers with the best and safest housing through far-sighted standards developed and legislative enforcement. By the year 2000 the plastics industry is expected to employ 1.6 million people—about 1.3 percent of the labor force—and that's a lot of jobs for a lot of people. But many people believe that, in order to realize this figure, government action is necessary to allocate sufficient petrochemical feedstocks to the plastics industry and to derive power from other sources such as nuclear, solar or geothermal.

Though unemployment persists stubbornly around 9 per cent, relative calm in the Middle East and healthful business statistics are building confidence among stockbrokers.

Department stores anticipate substantial rises in Christmas selling, they report, referring to comments in various nationally circulated trade magazines.

Shoe production was up during July and August and shoe sales advanced 10 per cent in October, the investment community notes.

Domestic new car sales rose 12.7 per cent during the first 10 days of October.

And a 10 per cent rise in gross national product during the third quarter is estimated by a number of economists, customers' men point out.

Another favorable omen mentioned in brokerage houses is the rise in savings by California savings and loan associations.

The easing prime rate further bolsters confidence, suggest secrurities and Exchange Commission-registered equity analysts, pointing to the easement in reserve requirements by the Federal Reserve Board against long-term time and savings deposits.

This makes available $350 million (approximately) to the banking system, they note.

The President's efforts to improve world trade and his push for solutions to the energy problem and monetary matters at the Paris conference could have long-term beneficial effects on the stock market, say investment bankers.

Mr. Ford's more conciliatory attitude toward helping New York City back to solvency likewise tends to breed confidence in the market — an evident fact in the heavy volume days of the market week ending Nov. 14.

Here in the Mid-South, the fine soybean harvest will make more money available for investment, say stockbrokers.

And the fact of a generally good harvest across the nation also is a favorable circumstance for the market in coming months, investment people emphasize.

Industry would be the big loser in a power shortage, reminds the investment community, as a sharply curtailed production would result, along with the side effects of rising unemployment and decelerating economy.

A potentially short source of fuel is a challenge for the immediate period and for the future, investment people point out.

Especially is it a challenge to the Administration and to Congress, note investment bankers.

The investment community for the most part favors a free economy for oil and gas. In the long run, they insist, the competitive force of a hands-off policy by the government will make for abundance and lower prices.

By contrast, they emphasize, controls tend to stifle production, with resultant lower supply and higher prices, eventually, if not immediately.

Standard and Poor's Outlook recommends Central Telephone & Utilities, Dillon Companies and Melville Shoe, with these comments:

"Central Telephone & Utilities boasts the fastest share earnings growth rate among the six largest independent (non-Bell) phone companies," says S & P, which notes further that CT&U is expected to have another profit gain this year to $2.25 to $2.30 per share from 1974's $2.11.

Dillon Companies, notes S & P, is "a well-managed operator of supermarkets, convenience food shops and junior department stores," while Melville Shoe "has been highly effective in upgrading and broadening the market for its Thom McAn shoes."

By ALFRED C. SIKES
Director
Missouri Department of Consumer Affairs

JEFFERSON CITY — When a death occurs in the family, the last thing one wants to think about is money matters. Unfortunately, this is the situation that leads to vulnerability at the hands of a few disreputable dealers in the funeral industry.

Though the funeral industry in Missouri has maintained a good record, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has found abuse in this industry on a nationwide basis. Consumers should be aware of the cases of poor sales techniques discovered. One common abuse is the use of emotions in dealing with the bereaved. The dealer encourages customers to buy higher priced items or services to show their devotion to the deceased. In some cases, bait and switch tactics are used which lure a customer on the basis of low prices advertised, but then persuade him or her to buy higher priced items.

To eliminate some of these practices, the FTC has proposed a rule to regulate the funeral industry. It would prohibit funeral directors from:

— Using bait- and- switch tactics.

— Belittling a consumer's concern for price.

— Placing restrictions on advertising or other price disclosure information.

—Misrepresenting the legal or public health necessity for embalming, caskets or burial vaults.

— Profiting on items such as obituary notices, cemetary charges and flowers which are paid by the funeral home then charged to the family for reimbursement.

— Picking up or embalming corpses without permission of the family.

— Requiring those who want an immediate cremation to purchase a casket, and refusing to make inexpensive containers available for cremation.

— Making untruthful or unsubstantiated claims of watertightness or airtightness of caskets and burial vaults.

The rule also would require mortuaries to furnish to customers information about legal requirements for embalming, caskets and burial vaults, a price list of all services and merchandise offered for sale and a memorandum at the time funeral arrangements are made listing items selected and their prices.

Though the rule will offer some benefits to consumers if Missouri consumers can be best helped if they take some measures of their own.

The most important step to insuring that you and others do not become subject to abusive practices is to pre-plan your funeral. You should think about funeral arrangements now. Let relatives know what you would like your funeral to be so they won't be high-pressured into buying something "he would have liked." Once you have made these decisions, put them in writing.

If you are making funeral arrangements for a close friend or relative, have a clear-headed friend accompany you to funeral homes to help make the decisions. Ask for an itemized list of all funeral costs so you can compare prices and determine what services you want the funeral home to perform.

These are times when it's especially difficult to be the aware consumer you should be; but, usually, these are the most important times for awareness.

Auto sales increase

DETROIT (AP) — Three of the nation's auto makers reported today that their car sales in early November rose sharply above the dismal levels of the same year-ago period.

Ford Motor Co. said its sales were up 22 per cent, Chrysler Corp. reported a 47 per cent jump and American Motors Corp. said its sales rose 100 per cent.

General Motors Corp. was to report its figures later today.

Auto analysts predicted domestic new car sales for the first 10 days of the month would show an industrywide rise of 36 per cent over last year, when the auto makers were reeling from a recession-triggered sales slump.

Chrysler said it sold 25,732 cars in early November, compared with 17,530 a year ago. The firm said its latest selling tempo was the strongest for an early-month period since May 1974. For the year-to-date, Chrysler car sales of 856,055 are 21 per cent below 1974.

Ford reported sales of 53,973 cars in the early-month period, compared with 44,187 a year ago. The firm said its percentage gain would be lower than the other companies' because its performance a year ago was stronger than the rest of the industry. For the year-to-date, Ford car sales of 1,678,378 are off 15 per cent from 1974.

AMC said it sold 8,012 cars in the latest period, compared with 4,006 a year ago. For the year-to-date, AMC car sales of 281,130 are down 8 per cent from the already depressed levels of 1974.

By ALFRED C. SIKES
Director
Missouri Department of Consumer Affairs

JEFFERSON CITY — When a death occurs in the family, the last thing one wants to think about is money matters. Unfortunately, this is the situation that leads to vulnerability at the hands of a few disreputable dealers in the funeral industry.

Though the funeral industry in Missouri has maintained a good record, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has found abuse in this industry on a nationwide basis. Consumers should be aware of the cases of poor sales techniques discovered. One common abuse is the use of emotions in dealing with the bereaved. The dealer encourages customers to buy higher priced items or services to show their devotion to the deceased. In some cases, bait and switch tactics are used which lure a customer on the basis of low prices advertised, but then persuade him or her to buy higher priced items.

To eliminate some of these practices, the FTC has proposed a rule to regulate the funeral industry. It would prohibit funeral directors from:

— Using bait- and- switch tactics.

— Belittling a consumer's concern for price.

— Placing restrictions on advertising or other price disclosure information.

—Misrepresenting the legal or public health necessity for embalming, caskets or burial vaults.

— Profiting on items such as obituary notices, cemetary charges and flowers which are paid by the funeral home then charged to the family for reimbursement.

— Picking up or embalming corpses without permission of the family.

— Requiring those who want an immediate cremation to purchase a casket, and refusing to make inexpensive containers available for cremation.

— Making untruthful or unsubstantiated claims of watertightness or airtightness of caskets and burial vaults.

The rule also would require mortuaries to furnish to customers information about legal requirements for embalming, caskets and burial vaults, a price list of all services and merchandise offered for sale and a memorandum at the time funeral arrangements are made listing items selected and their prices.

Though the rule will offer some benefits to consumers if Missouri consumers can be best helped if they take some measures of their own.

The most important step to insuring that you and others do not become subject to abusive practices is to pre-plan your funeral. You should think about funeral arrangements now. Let relatives know what you would like your funeral to be so they won't be high-pressured into buying something "he would have liked." Once you have made these decisions, put them in writing.

If you are making funeral arrangements for a close friend or relative, have a clear-headed friend accompany you to funeral homes to help make the decisions. Ask for an itemized list of all funeral costs so you can compare prices and determine what services you want the funeral home to perform.

These are times when it's especially difficult to be the aware consumer you should be; but, usually, these are the most important times for awareness.

Auto sales increase

DETROIT (AP) — Three of the nation's auto makers reported today that their car sales in early November rose sharply above the dismal levels of the same year-ago period.

Ford Motor Co. said its sales were up 22 per cent, Chrysler Corp. reported a 47 per cent jump and American Motors Corp. said its sales rose 100 per cent.

General Motors Corp. was to report its figures later today.

Auto analysts predicted domestic new car sales for the first 10 days of the month would show an industrywide rise of 36 per cent over last year, when the auto makers were reeling from a recession-triggered sales slump.

Chrysler said it sold 25,732 cars in early November, compared with 17,530 a year ago. The firm said its latest selling tempo was the strongest for an early-month period since May 1974. For the year-to-date, Chrysler car sales of 856,055 are 21 per cent below 1974.

Ford reported sales of 53,973 cars in the early-month period, compared with 44,187 a year ago. The firm said its percentage gain would be lower than the other companies' because its performance a year ago was stronger than the rest of the industry. For the year-to-date, Ford car sales of 1,678,378 are off 15 per cent from 1974.

AMC said it sold 8,012 cars in the latest period, compared with 4,006 a year ago. For the year-to-date, AMC car sales of 281,130 are down 8 per cent from the already depressed levels of 1974.

Political note:

Labor leaders believe that in next year's elections, with the Watergate revulsion against the GOP fading, most freshman Democratic congressmen will be vulnerable to defeat. The AFL-CIO Executive Council says: "Millions of conservatives who didn't vote in 1974 out of disgust can be expected to resume their normal voting patterns." The Executive Council is asking each of the 14.1 million AFL-CIO members to contribute $2, plus $2 for each family member. The money will go to COPE -- The Committee on Political Education, the political action arm of organized labor.

It's a new ballgame at the United Nations. When the Third World brought up the question of Chile's credentials because Chile is a "military dictatorship," U.S. Ambassador Tapley Bennett found the point interesting and commented that the U.S. had compiled a list of forty U.N. members that were military dictatorships and 35 others that had been brought to power by the military. The U.S., he said, was prepared to discuss the credentials of all 75. And that stopped dead any efforts to raise questions about Chile.

According to Washington reports, the Soviet grain harvest is even more pitiful than previously thought. A top Kremlin official has disclosed that production in the Ukraine will fall one-third below expectations. Thus, Soviet predictions of a country-wide 215- million- ton crop are likely to fall at least 50 million tons short. "Given such a disastrous crop," said a State Department hardliner, "we should be able to extract real concessions for our wheat. But Henry (Kissinger) and 'Agriculture Secretary Earl) Butz don't appear to be interested."

THE GREAT LEAP FORWARD

WASHINGTON -- The power struggle in Washington goes on unabated and foreign ambassadors stationed in Washington are sending long cables back to their countries trying to explain it.

"Momentous historical events are taking place here in Washington with the opening salvo of President Ford's Great Cultural Revolution. At first it was believed that Henry Kissinger was behind the cultural revolution to bring disgrace on Defense Minister James Schlesinger. But now Kissinger is in disgrace himself and has been demoted to only one inconsequential post as Secretary of State. He has also been cited for contempt by the People's Congressional Subcommittee. Official American newspapers are predicting he will soon be sent to North Dakota to harvest grain at a state farm run by Agriculture Minister Earl Butz.

"Kissinger is now called a revisionist and counterrevolutionary by a majority of the People's Congress for advocating detente with the Soviet lackeys in the Kremlin.

"Defense Minister Schlesinger has been exiled to the John Hopkins School of International Affairs in the purge, and has been replaced by Doanld Rumsfeld, a young member of the Ford clique who has been involved in a power struggle with the Kissinger loyalists for over a year.

"Rumsfeld has denied he was the instigator of the palace revolt, but his picture with Ford has been plastered on posters all over the outside walls of the Pentagon.

"Another victim of the purge was William Colby, Director of the People's Central Intelligence Committee. Colby's main crime was that he publicly confessed to the People's Congress about antigovernment activities committed by his cadres in the name of national security.

"He is being replaced by another Ford disciple, George Bush, formerly Chairman of the People's Republican Party. He was sent to China when the party fell into disgrace after Nixon's fall from power after the August 1974 revolution.

"The biggest shock was the demotion of President Ford's Vice President, Nelson Rockefeller, who still reamins in his job, but only as a figurehead with no power.

"Rockefeller, with no dissent from Ford, was accused by conservative elements of the People's Republican Party, of being a counterrevolutionary bourgeois radical revisionist arrogant dog. The conservative faction led by Ronald Reagan, a former Governor of the province of California, threatened that unless Rockefeller and his ilk were brought to their knees, they would see that Ford was removed from the Presidency at the next People's Republican Congress in Kansas City.

"To appease this faction Ford made Rockefeller confess to the disastrous bond crop failure of New York and ordered all photographs of Rockefeller to be taken down from the country's Post Offices.

"The Reagan Guard still does not seem to be satisfied with the purge. There is now a power struggle going on in the People's Republican Party over the leadership, which may be fought out between the factions in the province of New Hampshire. Be advised when President Ford comes to the People's Republic of China next month he will be constantly looking over his shoulder to see if Reagan is standing there.

"At the moment Ford is attacking the People's Congress and blaming it for the failure of his two-year plan. He is calling on the peasants and workers to throw out the People's Democratic Party in 1976.

"How are the masses reacting to all this? So far they have refused to support Ford mainly because every time the President tries to make a Great Leap Forward, he trips over somebody's wheelchair."

A HAIRY STORY

False beards are won by actors, spies, criminals and men enjoying a break from their clean-shaven jobs. But in February a Maryland man reversed this custom: Charles Gannon wore an artificial chin to hid his beard so he could compete in the $70,000 Professional Bowlers Association Open in Virginia.

His attempt failed and he was evicted from the tournament under an association rule that a spokesman explained is "designed to prevent unkempt, untrimmed, facial growth." Mr. Gannon, proud of his well-kept beard, says he'll sue.

Mr. Gannon's effort at concealing his beard was novel, but his problem was not. History records that hirsute adornment has been alternately in and out of favor. The earliest Pharaohs wore chin beards. Later Egyptian rulers disdained barbarians—bearded ones—among their Arab and Greek neighbors. But these same rulers donned false beards for public appearances as insignia of their kingship. Even Egyptian queens and princesses wore false beards on coremonail occasions.

Razors made of obsidian, or volcanic glass, unearthed by archeologists in Mesopotamia indicate that men have been enduring razor nicks for more than 5000 years. Yet devout Jews and Arabs have cherished beards since ancient times in obedience to church laws.

To pluck a man's beard was the supreme insult. When the Ammonite King Hanun decided King David's ambassadord were spies, he ordered half of each man's beard shaved before casting them out. David told his shamed envoys: "Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown." In the ensuing war, the Israelites defeated Ammon.

Moslems still swear "by the beard of the Prophet." And the Turks long regarded facial hair as such a sign of truthfulness that a witness with a full beard was not required to take an oath.

In the fourth century A.D., Alexander the Great banned beards among his soldiers so their foes would have no whiskers to grab in hand-to-hand fighting. Ammiahus, a Roman historian of the same century, mocked the prestige accorded to bearded men by declaring: "Beards create lice, not brains."

The French philosopher Voltaire later took the opposite view, observing that "ideas are like beards—children and women never have them." For centuries, however, witches had been depicted with beards. A Basque proverb warns: "Beware of bearded women and men without them."

America's colonists generally were bearded, but the fashion declined during the eighteenth century. There were no beards or mustaches among the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Western frontiersemn revived the style, and in 1860 Abraham Lincoln became the first bearded President of the United States.

JOURNALISTS LOOK AT PRESS FREEDOM

Ten months ago, we commented on an article in the monthly Bulletin of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

In that article, ASNE board member Charles Bennett, executive editor of the Oklahoma City Times and Daily Oklahoman, mildly chided the journalism establishment for refusing to face up to the fact that a serious problem exists when a newsman's right to report the news depends on his willingness to finance certain labor organizations (the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, the American Newspaper Guild).

The issue he wrote, seems "provacative enough to deserve discussions." Yet, oddly enough, during the past two or three years of unprecedented preoccupation with professional morals and ethics, the matter of compulsory unionism and press freedom has been given virtually no consideration at all.

Happily, we can report today that Charlie Bennett's challenge has not gone unanswered. Just a few days ago more than a dozen journalists submitted a resolution to the Society of Professional Journalists-Sidma Delta Chi (SDX), which-if nothing else-should force the news establishment to take a very careful look at a problem which, we feel, threatens the very foundation stone of press freedom-the newsman's Right to Work.

Supporting the resolution "in opposition to any form of compulsory unionism for newsmen" is an all-star cast, including Edward J. Scripps, II, of Scripps-Howard newspapers, a former president of the society, Eric Sevareid, the popular CBS television commentator, columnists Ralph de Toledano and M. Stanton Evans, Ted Serrill of the National Newspaper Association, and Bob Casey and "Tack" Nail, past presidents of the Pittsburgh and Washington, D.C. SDX chapters.

The matter is in the hands of the SDX resolutions committee, awaiting possible discussion and action at the society's national convention this week.

The issue is not totally limited in its impact to the news professional-though the journalist is most intimately concerned. Since we are all consumers of the news, and must be concerned with the rules under which the news is gathered and disseminated, it's a matter which should concern all of us.

But the journalism establishment is where the debate must begin, and be resolved. As we write this, for example, the Baltimore-Washington newspaper guild is threatening to strip Washington Post staff members of their union membership if they continue to refuse to honor a picket line thrown up by the craft employees who tried to sabotage the paper out of existence last month.

Under compulsory unionism arrangements, and a hybrid of such an arrangement exists at the Post, these journalists-some of them among the most talented in the country-could lose their jobs if they lose their union membership. Let's hope SDX doesn't weasel on this one!

Ronald Reagan

It's part of the past now, but there was a time when a lot of teen-agers got after-school, weekend, and summer jobs simply because it was easy for local businessmen to hire them. At the end of the week the boss could dig into his pocket, pay the youngster the agreed wage, and not worry about a blizzard of tax forms to fill out.

No one would argue that the tax deductions and the paper work do result in some benefit for the working teen-agers, but the benefits may not outweigh the disadvantages. When you look at unemployment figures you see that teen-agers make up a large portion of the job-seeking group these days.

Human nature being what it is, many employers who might put teen-agers on part-time if they didn't have to contend with minimum wage laws and stacks of forms just don't do it.

A new bill in Congress could complicate things further so far as work for teen-agers is concerned. HR 10130 by Congressman John Dent of Pennsylvania would amend the Fair Labor Practices Act to raise the minimum wage, by degrees, to $3 per hour in July, 1977. (Present law calls for it to go to $2.65 by then.) It would tie the minimum wage level at that point to the consumer price index, thus making it contribute to the seemingly endless wage-price spiral. In other words, part of the problem instead of part of the solution.

Overtime would go from time-and-a-half to two-and-a-half times the basic wage rate, if the bill passes.

Organized labor has been pushing for this liberalization of the minimum wage law, but it doesn't seem to want to think about the fact that it will end up costing all consumers--including those it benefits directly--more for the things they buy.

It will more directly affect thousands of teen-agers in such businesses as "fast foods." One operator of fast-food franchises in several states says the net effect of the bill would be to shift the composition of his work force from mostly high school-age youngsters who now work a complicated pattern of odd-hour shifts, to fewer workers, adults who will work full-time. His reason: scheduling the teen-agers is time-consuming. If the minimum wage goes up that high, that fast, with promises of more and faster increases, it's simpler to let the teenagers go and hire full-time employes.

Now the labor hierarchy may say "Just fine" to that, because it will presumably make jobs available for the adult unemployed. Maybe so, but even if it were true, what do they suggest the newly unemployed teen-agers do? Tear around town on two wheels?

The fast-food franchise estimates there are a quarter of a million part-time teen-age workers in this field alone. What of the boys who drive delivery trucks after school for pharmacies, florists and other small businesses, or the kids who sweep out stores and do other odd jobs on weekends? Chances are, the escalating minimum wage will cause many an employer of teen-agers to decide he can do without them and either reduce services or distribute their work to other employes.

While Congress is considering these changes in the minimum wage law they might also study the possible effect on teen-age employment in particular and the work force in general of a two-tiered minimum wage system. One would be for full-time workers; the other, lower one, for part-time student workers.

So far the bill's proponents haven't come up with any suggestion to replace the benefits of part-time work for teen-agers who learn from it the value of work, self-reliance and the need to save for the future. Old-fashioned perhaps, but hard values to replace.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Odds On Presidential Candidates

with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON -- The 1976 presidential race, according to the gambling odds, is just about a tossup.

The foremost Las Vegas oddsmaker, Jimmy the Greek Snyder, who figures the political odds exclusively for us, rates President Ford as a narrow 6-to-5 favorite over the Democratic contenders.

Only Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has a chance to beat Ford by Jimmy's odds. He gives Humphrey a slight, 7-to-6 edge over Ford.

The President is a solid favorite, according to the oddsmaker, to win the Republican nomination. Those betting on him must put up $3 against $1.

The President's leading challenger, Ronald Reagan, has only a 7-2 chance to win the nomination. In other words, betters could collect $7 on a $2 bet if he should be nominated.

The Democratic favorite, at 3-1, is Senator Humphrey. A $1 bet on him, in other words, would bring $3 if he should become the nominee.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, 20-1; ex-North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, 20-1; Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, 20-1; Rep. Mo Udall, D-Ariz., 20-1; Alabama Gov. George Wallace, 20-1.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, 25-1; Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., 25-1; ex-Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., 40-1; Sargent Shriver, 40-1; Sen. George McGovern, 100-1; Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., 100-1.

Footnote: Jimmy also took one of his scientific polls to find out whether Americans support federal aid to New York City. Of 1,500 who were polled, 696 agreed that the federal government should bail out New York City and 504 opposed any aid. Another 195 didn't know and 105 didn't care.

COSTLY ROMANCE: The illicit romance between the Federal Power Commission and the oil-and-gas industry is an old story.

We have written repeatedly, for example, about the strange reluctance of the FPC to crack down on producers for withholding natural gas from the market.

Spokesmen have solemnly denied any conspiracy between the regulators and the regulated. But now we have learned that Frank Allen, boss of the FPC's Natural Gas Bureau, told staff attorney Bill Braun bluntly: "If you find producers withholding gas, you should do nothing."

This attitude has encouraged producers to hold back gas until prices increase. The more gas they keep off the market, the greater the shortage will be. As the shortage becomes more acute, the pressure will build up to deregulate prices.

If the corruption completes the full circle, price controls will be removed, prices will soar and gas useres will feel an acute pain in the pocketbook.

The FPC, of course, is supposed to protect the consumers' pocketbooks, not the companies' profits. But the reluctant regulators have become convinced by the oil-and-gas gang that deregulation is now necessary to stimulate exploration for new natural gas.

Allen is known inside the FPC as an apologist for the industry and an advocate of price deregulation. At the time of the incident, he denied that he had urged Braun to do nothing about gas manipulation. But when our associate Jack Cloherty pinned him down, Allen acknowledged that he had made the statement but contended that Braun had misinterpreted it.

What he had meant, Allen explained, was that producers may be holding back gas supplies so they will have enough to deliver during the winter months or to critical shortage areas.

This explanation doesn't square, however, with the available facts. When Allen told Braun to do nothing about gas held off the market, Braun was investigating why Transco, a major East Coast pipeline, was cuttin back on gas deliveries.

The clear implication of Allen's remark was that Braun should do nothing about Transco's gas curtailments. Earlier, Allen had given additional duties to the only staff member who had been helping Braun with the Transco investigation.

It appeared to Braun, at least, that Allen was trying to obstruct his investigation of Transco. The charge is denied by Allen. But Braun has moved up to Capitol Hill, meanwhile, where he can continue his investigation.

Footnote: Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., may attempt to determine whether any FPC offficials are guilty of misfeasance.

Can't Drink Oil:

U. S. Longshoremen Threaten Counter- Boycott If Arab League Blacklists Ships Servicing Israel

NEW YORK - A sword hangs over Damascus and it hangs by a very thin thread, especially above that Syrian city's Arab League's Israel- Boycott Office. No decorative scimitar this. Rather the actual threat of a counter- boycott by American longshoremen, whose leader Teddy Gleason already has proven he and his dockwallopers can bottle up billions of dollars worth of grain and other materials whenever they decide not to service freighters and tankers in most of America's ports.

Gleason's sharp threat of a boycott of vessels supplying Arab nations was floated quietly through maritime circles after Arab League boycott commissioner Gen. Mohammed Ahmed Mahjoub announced in Damascus Nov. 12 that freighters carrying Israeli cargo through the Suez Canal would be boycotted in all Arab ports.

This means no freighter or tanker with any cargo destined for Haifa, Tel Aviv- Jaffa, Ashdon, or Elath, for example, through the canal could be serviced, loaded or unloaded and would be blacklisted in all Arab ports, including Egypt. This is in absolute violation of the Jerusalem- Cairo agreement.

"Okay, then let them (the Arab League nations) eat oil," he snapped shortly after his return from an International Transport Workers Federation conference in London. "If they violate agreements,if they spit in the eye of our own national leaders who helped negotiate the step- by- step peaceful withdrawal pact, if they set their own maritime regulations, we'll show them that they who live commercially by the blacklist will die by the blacklist."

An International Longshoremen's Assn. (AFL-CIO) boycott is a powerful global weapon -- strong enough to have forced the Soviet Union to agree last month to a long-term grain purchase deal which would not disrupt prices in the U. S.

Arab lands depend considerably on American grain, especially corn and corn oil, wheat and thousands of machines, spare parts, drilling equipment and armaments as well as human expertise (still dependent on electronic equipment).

It's absolute," continued Gleason during a discussion in the ILA's international headquarters here. "If they go back on their agreement we'll counter- boycott. They've already ordered over $100 million worth of grain. And food is more important than oil. They're buying lots more equipment. There isn't anything they don't buy and try to get onto freighters. The only things they can't load up are the hotels they've purchased.

"Just look at the Saudi Arabian capital seaport, Jidda, where some 30 cement-carrying freighters are waiting because they can't get them into the jammed harbor. But they keep on buying. I'm making no idle threat. They push their boycott, we'll boycott."

For the moment the confrontation appears about to trigger another international crisis.Mr. Mahjoub doesn't seem to be backing down. Already the first of the Israeli cargo carrying freighters, the Greek craft Olympos, is on the Arab blacklist. The Arab League's stern warning to vessels serving Israel is blunt and unequivocal:

"This means that these vessels will not be allowed to anchor in any Arab port and will not be serviced," the boycott commissioner told newsmen.

He was supported by the regional boycott office in Egypt. It demanded that the Olympos be banned from Arab harbors, including Egypt's docks. It has been, according to Middle East reports.

Gleason's threat is just as serious -- and could have far more impactful international economic repercussions. For example, when I was in Hamburg, Germany, recently, I was told that an Arab nation actually had purchased 100,000 trucks. These would be moved out of the fine Hamburg river port. If there is an American counter-boycott those vessels servicing nations affiliated with the Arab League's Israeli- boycott organization would be counter-boycotted in American ports. No reaction has been reported from Harry Bridges's independent West Coast International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union. Bridges has been openly pro- Soviet, which of course, is strongly allied with Damascus.

Traditionally Gleason takes no action without consulting leaders of other maritime unions and AFL-CIO president George Meany. They are the men who spearheaded the recent boycott of wheat purchased by the Soviets.

It's as positive as sand in the Sahara that no one speaks for or can commit Meany to any action. But he did back the wheat boycott. He did lead the fight right into President Ford's Oval Office. And he does loathe the Arab enemies of Israel. He has the same passionate Bibical affection for the Jewish homeland as did the late Lyndon Johnson. Only stronger.

Not only did Meany denounce the recent anti-Zionist United Nations resolution, but he insinuated, and not subtly, that perhaps the time had come to abandon the UN.

"This action (passage of the resolution --VR) has shattered the moral authority of the UN," Meany said, "and raised clear doubts as to the value of its continued existence ... Congress must immediately reevaluate continued U.S. participation in the UN. How long can the American taxpayer be expected to bear a disproportionate share of the UN's bills when it produces this kind of evil.."

There's little doubt Gleason will have any difficulty in getting support for his counter-boycott.

THE GREAT LEAP FORWARD

WASHINGTON -- The power struggle in Washington goes on unabated and foreign ambassadors stationed in Washington are sending long cables back to their countries trying to explain it.

"Momentous historical events are taking place here in Washington with the opening salvo of President Ford's Great Cultural Revolution. At first it was believed that Henry Kissinger was behind the cultural revolution to bring disgrace on Defense Minister James Schlesinger. But now Kissinger is in disgrace himself and has been demoted to only one inconsequential post as Secretary of State. He has also been cited for contempt by the People's Congressional Subcommittee. Official American newspapers are predicting he will soon be sent to North Dakota to harvest grain at a state farm run by Agriculture Minister Earl Butz.

"Kissinger is now called a revisionist and counterrevolutionary by a majority of the People's Congress for advocating detente with the Soviet lackeys in the Kremlin.

"Defense Minister Schlesinger has been exiled to the John Hopkins School of International Affairs in the purge, and has been replaced by Doanld Rumsfeld, a young member of the Ford clique who has been involved in a power struggle with the Kissinger loyalists for over a year.

"Rumsfeld has denied he was the instigator of the palace revolt, but his picture with Ford has been plastered on posters all over the outside walls of the Pentagon.

"Another victim of the purge was William Colby, Director of the People's Central Intelligence Committee. Colby's main crime was that he publicly confessed to the People's Congress about antigovernment activities committed by his cadres in the name of national security.

"He is being replaced by another Ford disciple, George Bush, formerly Chairman of the People's Republican Party. He was sent to China when the party fell into disgrace after Nixon's fall from power after the August 1974 revolution.

"The biggest shock was the demotion of President Ford's Vice President, Nelson Rockefeller, who still reamins in his job, but only as a figurehead with no power.

"Rockefeller, with no dissent from Ford, was accused by conservative elements of the People's Republican Party, of being a counterrevolutionary bourgeois radical revisionist arrogant dog. The conservative faction led by Ronald Reagan, a former Governor of the province of California, threatened that unless Rockefeller and his ilk were brought to their knees, they would see that Ford was removed from the Presidency at the next People's Republican Congress in Kansas City.

"To appease this faction Ford made Rockefeller confess to the disastrous bond crop failure of New York and ordered all photographs of Rockefeller to be taken down from the country's Post Offices.

"The Reagan Guard still does not seem to be satisfied with the purge. There is now a power struggle going on in the People's Republican Party over the leadership, which may be fought out between the factions in the province of New Hampshire. Be advised when President Ford comes to the People's Republic of China next month he will be constantly looking over his shoulder to see if Reagan is standing there.

"At the moment Ford is attacking the People's Congress and blaming it for the failure of his two-year plan. He is calling on the peasants and workers to throw out the People's Democratic Party in 1976.

"How are the masses reacting to all this? So far they have refused to support Ford mainly because every time the President tries to make a Great Leap Forward, he trips over somebody's wheelchair."

No one would argue that the tax deductions and the paper work do result in some benefit for the working teen-agers, but the benefits may not outweigh the disadvantages. When you look at unemployment figures you see that teen-agers make up a large portion of the job-seeking group these days.

Human nature being what it is, many employers who might put teen-agers on part-time if they didn't have to contend with minimum wage laws and stacks of forms just don't do it.

A new bill in Congress could complicate things further so far as work for teen-agers is concerned. HR 10130 by Congressman John Dent of Pennsylvania would amend the Fair Labor Practices Act to raise the minimum wage, by degrees, to $3 per hour in July, 1977. (Present law calls for it to go to $2.65 by then.) It would tie the minimum wage level at that point to the consumer price index, thus making it contribute to the seemingly endless wage-price spiral. In other words, part of the problem instead of part of the solution.

Overtime would go from time-and-a-half to two-and-a-half times the basic wage rate, if the bill passes.

Organized labor has been pushing for this liberalization of the minimum wage law, but it doesn't seem to want to think about the fact that it will end up costing all consumers--including those it benefits directly--more for the things they buy.

It will more directly affect thousands of teen-agers in such businesses as "fast foods." One operator of fast-food franchises in several states says the net effect of the bill would be to shift the composition of his work force from mostly high school-age youngsters who now work a complicated pattern of odd-hour shifts, to fewer workers, adults who will work full-time. His reason: scheduling the teen-agers is time-consuming. If the minimum wage goes up that high, that fast, with promises of more and faster increases, it's simpler to let the teenagers go and hire full-time employes.

Now the labor hierarchy may say "Just fine" to that, because it will presumably make jobs available for the adult unemployed. Maybe so, but even if it were true, what do they suggest the newly unemployed teen-agers do? Tear around town on two wheels?

The fast-food franchise estimates there are a quarter of a million part-time teen-age workers in this field alone. What of the boys who drive delivery trucks after school for pharmacies, florists and other small businesses, or the kids who sweep out stores and do other odd jobs on weekends? Chances are, the escalating minimum wage will cause many an employer of teen-agers to decide he can do without them and either reduce services or distribute their work to other employes.

While Congress is considering these changes in the minimum wage law they might also study the possible effect on teen-age employment in particular and the work force in general of a two-tiered minimum wage system. One would be for full-time workers; the other, lower one, for part-time student workers.

So far the bill's proponents haven't come up with any suggestion to replace the benefits of part-time work for teen-agers who learn from it the value of work, self-reliance and the need to save for the future. Old-fashioned perhaps, but hard values to replace.

with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON -- The 1976 presidential race, according to the gambling odds, is just about a tossup.

The foremost Las Vegas oddsmaker, Jimmy the Greek Snyder, who figures the political odds exclusively for us, rates President Ford as a narrow 6-to-5 favorite over the Democratic contenders.

Only Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has a chance to beat Ford by Jimmy's odds. He gives Humphrey a slight, 7-to-6 edge over Ford.

The President is a solid favorite, according to the oddsmaker, to win the Republican nomination. Those betting on him must put up $3 against $1.

The President's leading challenger, Ronald Reagan, has only a 7-2 chance to win the nomination. In other words, betters could collect $7 on a $2 bet if he should be nominated.

The Democratic favorite, at 3-1, is Senator Humphrey. A $1 bet on him, in other words, would bring $3 if he should become the nominee.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, 20-1; ex-North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, 20-1; Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, 20-1; Rep. Mo Udall, D-Ariz., 20-1; Alabama Gov. George Wallace, 20-1.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, 25-1; Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., 25-1; ex-Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., 40-1; Sargent Shriver, 40-1; Sen. George McGovern, 100-1; Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., 100-1.

Footnote: Jimmy also took one of his scientific polls to find out whether Americans support federal aid to New York City. Of 1,500 who were polled, 696 agreed that the federal government should bail out New York City and 504 opposed any aid. Another 195 didn't know and 105 didn't care.

COSTLY ROMANCE: The illicit romance between the Federal Power Commission and the oil-and-gas industry is an old story.

We have written repeatedly, for example, about the strange reluctance of the FPC to crack down on producers for withholding natural gas from the market.

Spokesmen have solemnly denied any conspiracy between the regulators and the regulated. But now we have learned that Frank Allen, boss of the FPC's Natural Gas Bureau, told staff attorney Bill Braun bluntly: "If you find producers withholding gas, you should do nothing."

This attitude has encouraged producers to hold back gas until prices increase. The more gas they keep off the market, the greater the shortage will be. As the shortage becomes more acute, the pressure will build up to deregulate prices.

If the corruption completes the full circle, price controls will be removed, prices will soar and gas useres will feel an acute pain in the pocketbook.

The FPC, of course, is supposed to protect the consumers' pocketbooks, not the companies' profits. But the reluctant regulators have become convinced by the oil-and-gas gang that deregulation is now necessary to stimulate exploration for new natural gas.

Allen is known inside the FPC as an apologist for the industry and an advocate of price deregulation. At the time of the incident, he denied that he had urged Braun to do nothing about gas manipulation. But when our associate Jack Cloherty pinned him down, Allen acknowledged that he had made the statement but contended that Braun had misinterpreted it.

What he had meant, Allen explained, was that producers may be holding back gas supplies so they will have enough to deliver during the winter months or to critical shortage areas.

This explanation doesn't square, however, with the available facts. When Allen told Braun to do nothing about gas held off the market, Braun was investigating why Transco, a major East Coast pipeline, was cuttin back on gas deliveries.

The clear implication of Allen's remark was that Braun should do nothing about Transco's gas curtailments. Earlier, Allen had given additional duties to the only staff member who had been helping Braun with the Transco investigation.

It appeared to Braun, at least, that Allen was trying to obstruct his investigation of Transco. The charge is denied by Allen. But Braun has moved up to Capitol Hill, meanwhile, where he can continue his investigation.

Footnote: Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., may attempt to determine whether any FPC offficials are guilty of misfeasance.

Can't Drink Oil:

U. S. Longshoremen Threaten Counter- Boycott If Arab League Blacklists Ships Servicing Israel

NEW YORK - A sword hangs over Damascus and it hangs by a very thin thread, especially above that Syrian city's Arab League's Israel- Boycott Office. No decorative scimitar this. Rather the actual threat of a counter- boycott by American longshoremen, whose leader Teddy Gleason already has proven he and his dockwallopers can bottle up billions of dollars worth of grain and other materials whenever they decide not to service freighters and tankers in most of America's ports.

Gleason's sharp threat of a boycott of vessels supplying Arab nations was floated quietly through maritime circles after Arab League boycott commissioner Gen. Mohammed Ahmed Mahjoub announcd in Damascus Nov. 12 that freighters carrying Israeli cargo through the Suez Canal would be boycotted in all Arab ports.

This means no freighter or tanker with any cargo destined for Haifa, Tel Aviv- Jaffa, Ashdon, or Elath, for example, through the canal could be serviced, loaded or unloaded and would be blacklisted in all Arab ports, including Egypt. This is in absolute violation of the Jerusalem- Cairo agreement.

"Okay, then let them (the Arab League nations) eat oil," he snapped shortly after his return from an International Transport Workers Federation conference in London. "If they violate agreements,if they spit in the eye of our own national leaders who helped negotiate the step- by- step peaceful withdrawal pact, if they set their own maritime regulations, we'll show them that they who live commercially by the blacklist will die by the blacklist."

An International Longshoremen's Assn. (AFL-CIO) boycott is a powerful global weapon -- strong enough to have forced the Soviet Union to agree last month to a long-term grain purchase deal which would not disrupt prices in the U. S.

Arab lands depend considerably on American grain, especially corn and corn oil, wheat and thousands of machines, spare parts, drilling equipment and armaments as well as human expertise (still dependent on electronic equipment).

It's absolute," continued Gleason during a discussion in the ILA's international headquarters here. "If they go back on their agreement we'll counter- boycott. They've already ordered over $100 million worth of grain. And food is more important than oil. They're buying lots more equipment. There isn't anything they don't buy and try to get onto freighters. The only things they can't load up are the hotels they've purchased.

"Just look at the Saudi Arabian capital seaport, Jidda, where some 30 cement-carrying freighters are waiting because they can't get them into the jammed harbor. But they keep on buying. I'm making no idle threat. They push their boycott, we'll boycott."

For the moment the confrontation appears about to trigger another international crisis.Mr. Mahjoub doesn't seem to be backing down. Already the first of the Israeli cargo carrying freighters, the Greek craft Olympos, is on the Arab blacklist. The Arab League's stern warning to vessels serving Israel is blunt and unequivocal:

"This means that these vessels will not be allowed to anchor in any Arab port and will not be serviced," the boycott commissioner told newsmen.

He was supported by the regional boycott office in Egypt. It demanded that the Olympos be banned from Arab harbors, including Egypt's docks. It has been, according to Middle East reports.

Gleason's threat is just as serious -- and could have far more impactful international economic repercussions. For example, when I was in Hamburg, Germany, recently, I was told that an Arab nation actually had purchased 100,000 trucks. These would be moved out of the fine Hamburg river port. If there is an American counter-boycott those vessels servicing nations affiliated with the Arab League's Israeli- boycott organization would be counter-boycotted in American ports. No reaction has been reported from Harry Bridges's independent West Coast International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union. Bridges has been openly pro- Soviet, which of course, is strongly allied with Damascus.

Traditionally Gleason takes no action without consulting leaders of other maritime unions and AFL-CIO president George Meany. They are the men who spearheaded the recent boycott of wheat purchased by the Soviets.

It's as positive as sand in the Sahara that no one speaks for or can commit Meany to any action. But he did back the wheat boycott. He did lead the fight right into President Ford's Oval Office. And he does loathe the Arab enemies of Israel. He has the same passionate Bibical affection for the Jewish homeland as did the late Lyndon Johnson. Only stronger.

Not only did Meany denounce the recent anti-Zionist United Nations resolution, but he insinuated, and not subtly, that perhaps the time had come to abandon the UN.

"This action (passage of the resolution --VR) has shattered the moral authority of the UN," Meany said, "and raised clear doubts as to the value of its continued existence ... Congress must immediately reevaluate continued U.S. participation in the UN. How long can the American taxpayer be expected to bear a disproportionate share of the UN's bills when it produces this kind of evil.."

There's little doubt Gleason will have any difficulty in getting support for his counter-boycott.

Widowhood

Grief and how to deal with it

> "People need to build inner resources and come to grips with the world as God made it. We are born, grow up, mature, grow old and die."

Story by Jackie Schoeneman

The Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of the First Christian Church, suggests from his counseling experiences over the last 25 years, that the distraught should be willing to "release the dead person to God" and use inner resources to fall back on.

These inner resources, he says, are developed by a faith and a belief in God and the acceptance of the truths of the Bible. A religious person is constantly developing resources. "Every prayer prayed, every hymn that is sung and every act of love given or received is preparation." The key to overcoming grief, then, is to realize death will strike a loved one some day and lay a groundwork for the handling the situtation, he says.

However, Walker says those who are not religiously-oriented may have to resign themselves to death as an inner resource with the attitude of "Is that all there is?"

On the other hand, a woman who has developed inner resources can feel, "God will help me. God loves me and will see me through it."

Another resource can be the help of family and friends, he says. They can soothe the widow by saying anything truthful that "is kind, good or hopeful." For example, "Your husband was good to me, he made a wonderful contribution to the town or he always had a friendly greeting."

However, family members or close friends should not feel rebuffed, he said, if the widow asks for professional counseling from a minister, doctor or a lawyer. These people, he says, are more competent to analyze the widow's problems because they are free of prejudices and emotional conflicts a relative unavoidably may have. Also, Walker points out there are some personal problems that simply cannot be discussed with family members.

When a widow is "unable to function efficiently because of depression, unexpressed feelings, constant weeping or bitterness," she should seek professional counseling. He says if the widow cannot relate to her own minister she should not hesitate to find another she has confidence in. Walker says 90 per cent of his counseling cases are nonmembers of the church.

A widow, trying to come to grips with grief, may go through several stages of grief, especially when the husband's death was unexpected. A widow may zip through several stages but linger in another for months, Walker said. Also there is no comparison between the way older women and young widows, perhaps with children, grieve. Expressions of grief are based on personality, Walker said.

The first stage could be nonacceptance of the fact the husband is dead. A widow may ask herself, "Why did this happen to me?" Walker said that sometimes widows, even when standing beside the casket, refuse to believe the husband is dead.

The second stage may be anger--either at God or at the dead husband. The widow may feel angry with a husband for suddenly leaving her alone and unprepared.

The third stage may involve self-pity and much wringing of the hands. The widow feels alone, especially if the children are no longer home.

The last stage, hopefully, is acceptance of the husband's death. The widow may finally be able to say, "I'm going to make the best of it and try to handle the situation." Although a widow may not express her grief in these words, the underlying feeling the words represent is there, Walker said.

A way to accept a husband's death is through a funeral which should not be avoided, he said. A funeral "helps a family face up to a reality of a loved one. They see a corpse, cold and stiff. Death means separation--the spiritual from the physical."

Then, too, a funeral is an opportunity for the family to gather and give each other loving support. And very importantly, time to think about life and death, he says. "Why are we here? Where are we going in life? What is the meaning of life? Walker says even the death of a prominent man can stir these questions in the minds of people in the community. But only if they take the opportunity.

In addition, a widow should not attempt to isolate herself in grief. Walker says isolationism can create an "unhealthy" situation and points out the family needs loving and spiritual support from the widow. This is especially true if the widow has children, he says.

Putting on a brave, emotionless front is utterly useless, Walker says. He says crying is one of the best ways to relieve tension even for men. "I feel sorry for those who refuse to cry. Inside, their stomachs must be tied in knots." Those who refuse to cry may express grief by visiting the cemetery occasionally, he suggests.

Damaging ways to express grief are getting drunk, angry or irritable with the world and God, he says.

For widows with young children, informing them of their father's death may be an excruciating task. If this is the case, then it is advisable for a widow to ask her minister or someone close to her to break the news, Walker suggests.

However, he is strongly against telling children the often used reason, "Daddy went on a long trip." From his own experience, Walker explained a parent's death to two young children by saying the parent "had gone to live with God in his own special way. He is well but not sick and is not coming home to live."

Walker says a guideline in explaining death to children is to "tell them the truth the best way you can on their level of understanding." He realizes the difficulty a widow may have and says she should not languish over a way to tell children but "do the best you know how. Most parents make good decisions."

Walker says often a widow who has accepted a husband's death may keep him spiritually close by thinking of the wonderful times they shared. This way the dead husband is still a part of the family and the widow will find it easier to talk about him as a part of the past. However, a widow who constantly talks about her husband may be having troubles accepting his death, Walker said.

In addition, some widows may claim they have felt their husband's presence. Walker says if the experience is occasional, perhaps triggered by a fond memory or a picture of the dead husband, the widow should not feel ashamed or worried about her mental stability.

Walker believes there are spirits or souls around us who do try to communicate with the living. Imagination or the ability of the mind to form mental pictures and reality are synonymous. Therefore, occasional psychic experiences should not be discounted, he says.

Probably the biggest problem widows face is loneliness. Rather than setting up an appointment with a minister, Walker says many widows will telephone a minister to talk briefly when loneliness becomes unbearable.

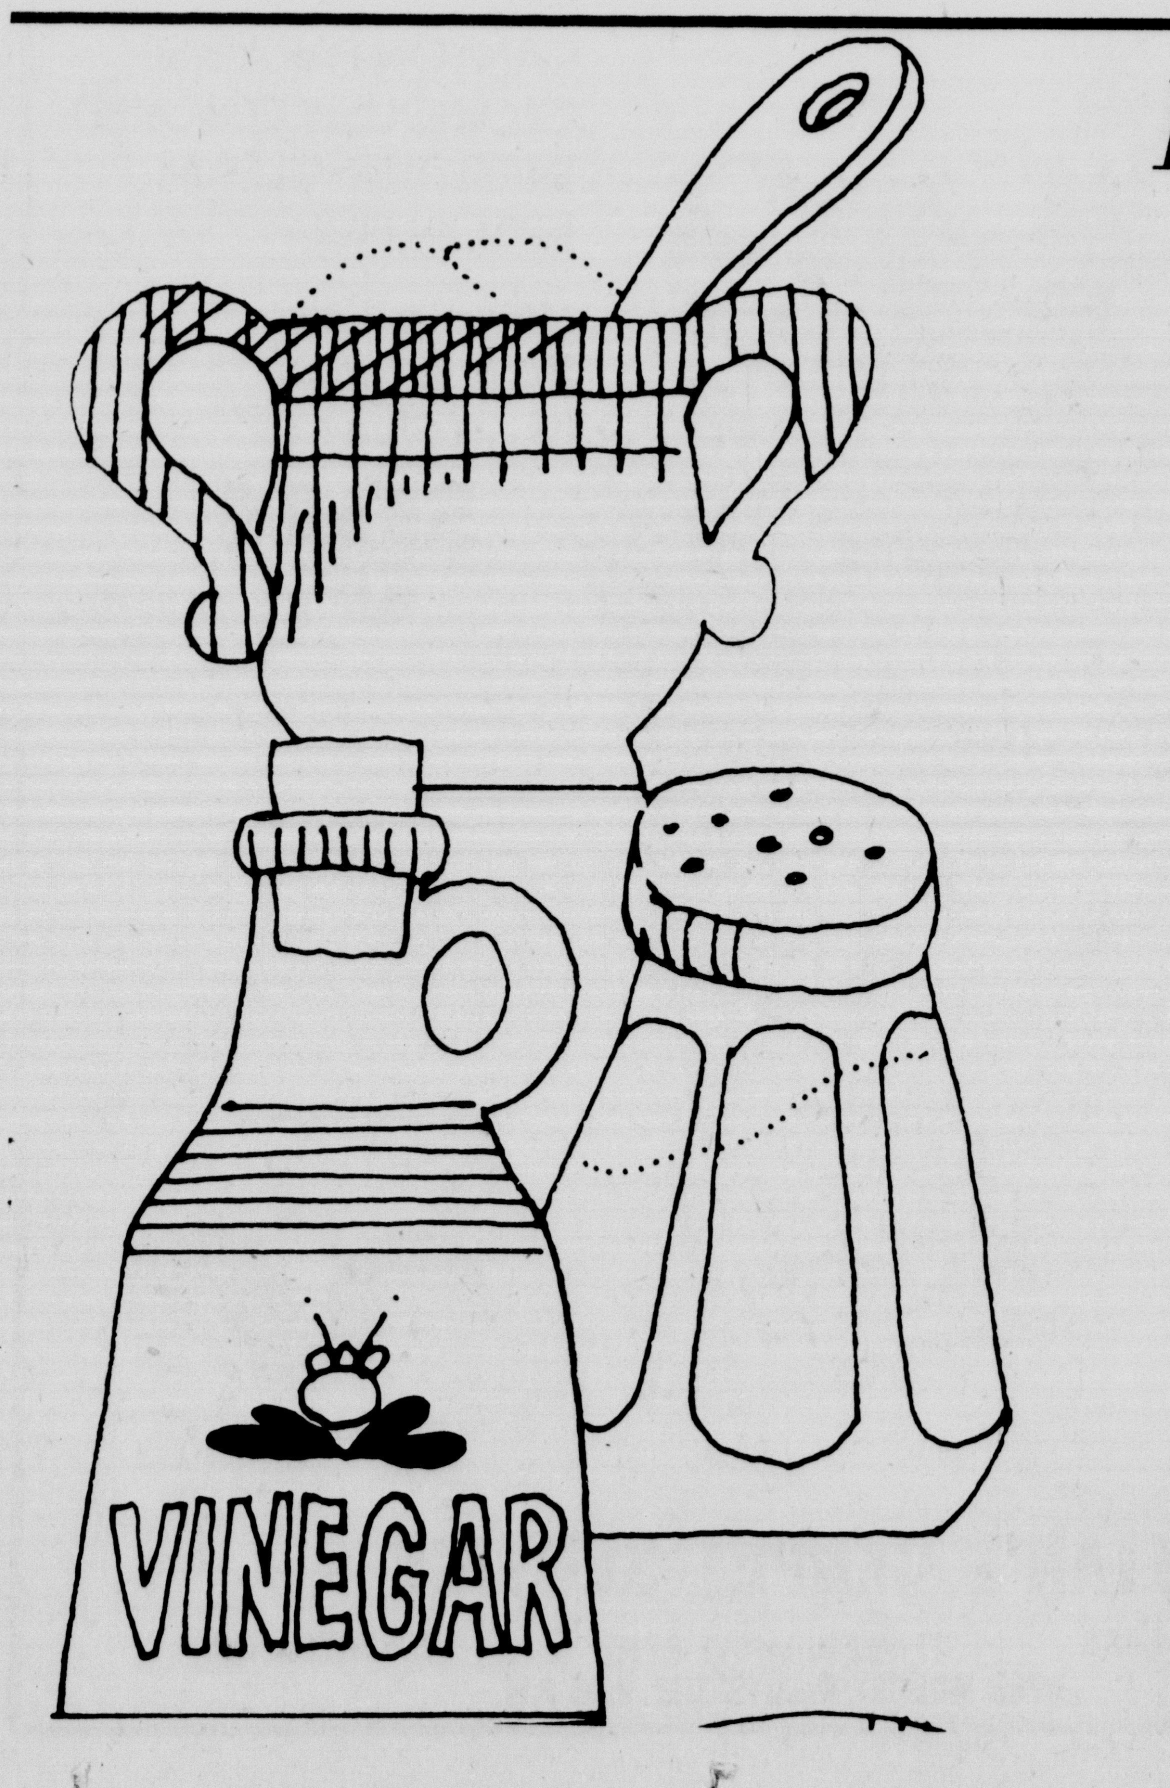
Walker suggests widows find other lonely persons and help them. Or get involved in church work, the community or politics. In other words, develop a spirit of volunteerism.

Also, a widow should not fear ostracism from a marriage-oriented society. Walker says, "People who are friends will still be friends. There's no reason a widow should feel out of place" at gatherings.

Some widows who suddenly reach out for God for strength, as they never did before, may feel they are being hypocritical about their faith. Walker strongly disagrees. "She had the need but was not aware of it. A hypocrite is someone who pretends to be something he is not.

A widow does not become a different person after her husband's death if she already has a good relationship with God."

What people need to do "is build those inner resources now. Don't wait until the storm hits."



Food additives— Are they dangerous?

Technical language creates a gap for consumer understanding

One of the most discussed and most misunderstood subjects is food additives. It has generated many comments and many more questions. To completely examine the subject of food additives it is necessary to review the current food scene and listen to the advice of the experts.

One such expert is Dr. J. Bryan Stine, internationally recognized in the field of food regulations. During the last 12 years, Dr. Stine has been involved with the United Nations international food regulations program, CODEX Alimentarius. Prior to this, he participated in the development of food standards that apply to U.S. food products and are authorized under the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938. Currently, Dr. Stine participates in a number of food safety programs and is active in the research and technical committees at a number of trade associations.

"One of the reasons for concern over additives," according to Dr. J.B. Stine, "is their strange appearing names. The law requires us to tell all and we're not against complete disclosure-but when an additive must be referred to by its common name and that name is ten syllables long, the consumer is prone to look more closely at labels and be confused."

Basically, food additives are added substances that in some way make a food product safer and more satisfying to consumers. They allow the food to stay fresh longer, spread more smoothly, whip more completely, rise during baking, remain evenly blended or provide more nutrients. These qualities and many others are expected from today's food products but, in many cases, cannot be provided by the basic foodstuffs. Additives make these qualities possible.

Although consumers want the added benefits provided by additives, some question whether additives are safe. Actually, additives have been examined more frequently and tested more carefully than any of the common and familiar foods provided by nature. A March 1975 position paper published by the Institute of Food Technologists (IFT) emphasizes that "agricultural chemicals, food additives, packaging materials and chemicals produced in foods during processing are not known to have been responsible for adverse effects on human health, when such materials have been used in accordance with good agricultural and manufacturing practices, and the intake of the foods involved has not been grossly excessive." The same cannot be said of natural foods. According to IFT, "The greatest known number of food-related injuries to man have occurred from normal components of natural food and from toxins produced in foods by microrganisms."

An assurance of complete and unconditional safety for any food or food component is not possible. In evaluating the merits of additives, the benefits provided must always be weighed against the risks. For example, consuming the recommended intake of vitamins and minerals is essential for maintaining good health but excessive amounts can be harmful. The same is true for additives. Additives have demonstrated their relative safety, value and even necessity in our present day food supply, when used in specified amounts under the appropriate conditions.

In developing each new product formulation, food technologists analyze the effects of each additive and include only those that perform a necessary function. Kraft periodically reviews existing product formulations to determine if the quantity of any additive can be reduced without diluting the desired effects. A new discovery in the method of preserving food, for example, may significantly reduce the required amount of a customarily used preservative or may eliminate its need completely.

When a consumer reads "sodium acid phosphate" on an ingredient panel, she automatically thinks "chemical" instead of "baking soda." The homemaker adds "salt" to her soup whereas the food technologists use "sodium chloride." Most people choose to say Vitamin C rather than citric acid, even though they are basically the same thing.

The Delaney Clause, which is part of the 1958 Food Additives Amendment, has caused the greatest controversy. It forbids the use of any substance in any amount that causes cancer in man or animal under any circumstance. Many scientists have argued that reliable conclusions cannot be drawn from experiments where animals have been tested by using an additive in an exaggerated amount or by using an unrealistic method such as injecting the substance directly into the brain. They believe that scientific judgment should be used in evaluating the risks versus the benefits of a given substance. Safe human tolerances can be established for some substances that have induced cancer in experimental animals which have been submitted to questionable tests. Even necessary substances such as vitamins and minerals can cause serious problems if consumed in excessive quantities.

Commercial additives are essential for our coast to coast food distribution system and for feeing our ever expanding population. With only 5 per cent of the U.S. population growing food for the remaining 95 per cent, much of the food would spoil before reaching the dinner table if it were not for additives. Considering our present production and distribution systems and consumer preferences, providing nutritious and appetizing meals daily for everyone in this country is almost impossible without the use of additives.

On a worldwide scale, additives play an essential role in the food exported to foreign nations or donated to countries in desperate need. Additives allow the food to withstand lengthy transportation and the extremes in temperature and climate. More importantly, they provide vital nutrients to malnourished nations.

Commercial additives are developed by scientists, therefore, they have scientific or chemical names. Consider common words like air, vinegar and salt. A scientist refers to them as oxygen (Os), acetic acid (CH3COOH) and sodium chloride (NaC). When unfamiliar scientific terms appear on food lablels, many people become suspicious.

Important factors are involved in modifying any food product. Consider the time element. If a product is developed to stay fresh for six months, whether or not an additive can extend that life cannot be determined until the six months have elapsed. There's no short-cut method to speed up a shelf life test.

One thing is certain. Food additives will continue to be a much discussed issue. The Manufacturing Chemists' Association, however, believes that this prediction can be made: With research on the increase--sponsored by industry, governing and universities, there is every assurance that Americans can continue to eat well; that the nations's health will continue to improve; and that the [illegible] supply will be even [illegible] tasting of better qualit[illegible] enjoyable and more co[illegible]

Widowhood

Grief and how to deal with it

> "People need to build inner resources and come to grips with the world as God made it. We are born, grow up, mature, grow old and die."

The Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of the First Christian Church, suggests from his counseling experiences over the last 25 years, that the distraught should be willing to "release the dead person to God" and use inner resources to fall back on.

These inner resources, he says, are developed by a faith and a belief in God and the acceptance of the truths of the Bible. A religious person is constantly developing resources. "Every prayer prayed, every hymn that is sung and every act of love given or received is preparation." The key to overcoming grief, then, is to realize death will strike a loved one some day and lay a groundwork for the handling the situtation, he says.

However, Walker says those who are not religiously-oriented may have to resign themselves to death as an inner resource with the attitude of "Is that all there is?"

On the other hand, a woman who has developed inner resources can feel, "God will help me. God loves me and will see me through it."

Another resource can be the help of family and friends, he says. They can soothe the widow by saying anything truthful that "is kind, good or hopeful." For example, "Your husband was good to me, he made a wonderful contribution to the town or he always had a friendly greeting."

However, family members or close friends should not feel rebuffed, he said, if the widow asks for professional counseling from a minister, doctor or a lawyer. These people, he says, are more competent to analyze the widow's problems because they are free of prejudices and emotional conflicts a relative unavoidably may have. Also, Walker points out there are some personal problems that simply cannot be discussed with family members.

When a widow is "unable to function efficiently because of depression, unexpressed feelings, constant weeping or bitterness," she should seek professional counseling. He says if the widow cannot relate to her own minister she should not hesitate to find another she has confidence in. Walker says 90 per cent of his counseling cases are nonmembers of the church.

A widow, trying to come to grips with grief, may go through several stages of grief, especially when the husband's death was unexpected. A widow may zip through several stages but linger in another for months, Walker said. Also there is no comparison between the way older women and young widows, perhaps with children, grieve. Expressions of grief are based on personality, Walker said.

The first stage could be nonacceptance of the fact the husband is dead. A widow may ask herself, "Why did this happen to me?" Walker said that sometimes widows, even when standing beside the casket, refuse to believe the husband is dead.

Just as preparing that turkey for the Thanksgiving table requires preparation, there are steps you should take before cleaning your rugs in anticipation of holiday company, says Lynn Raasch, consumer information specialist for a major wax company.

"Whether you use a liquid rug shampoo or a spray foam," Ms. Raasch advises, "your first step is to test the rug for colorfastness if you're cleaning it for the first time. This is best done by applying some of your cleaning agent to a remnant of the rug if aviable or to an out-of-the-way area of the rug. If it is colorfast none of the color will rub off on your cloth. If some bleeding does occur, consult the manufacturer, the dealer or a professional rug cleaner for proper cleaning instructions."

The second step, she suggests, is vacuuming the rug thoroughly. "This is something that should be done regularly anyway because ground-in dirt and sand particles can cut fibers."

Ms. Raasch says the final precleaning step is covering the legs of furniture remaining in the room with waxed paper, plastic bags or aluminum foil to protect both the rug and furniture finish alike.

"Now you're ready to clean your rug," she points out, "but be sure that your cleaning agent is a recognized product for results consistent with the quality of your rug."

Food gifts are hassle-free

This Christmas, instead of the usual scarves and socks, give gifts of food. Delicious food gifts can be hassle-free. In the twinkling of an eye, you're out of the kitchen and set for holiday gift giving. Best of all, presents such as delectable drinks can be enjoyed by everyone. Champagne Punch Concentrate and Hot Mocha Mix are two to make now, give later from an unusual collection of no-cook recipes. Pour the mixtures into glass containers, tie a ribbon around each and label with serving instructions.

Champagne punch concentrate is a unique gift for those who like to entertain. When mixed with two bottles (four fifths quart) of champagne and one bottle (28 ounces) of club soda, it makes about 15 cups of punch:

2 cups apricot brandy

Combine the juice and brandy in a bowl and stir until well-blended. Pour into a glass container; seal, label and keep chilled until ready to serve. At serving time, mix the concentrate with champagne and club soda in a large punch bowl. Garnish with ice and thin slices of lemon.

Hot mocha is delicious on cold winter nights. Just add boiling water to the mix and serve in coffee mugs. This recipe makes 6 ½ cups:

2 cups sugar
2 cups nonfat dry milk powder
2 cups dry nondairy coffee creamer
½ cup instant coffee
1 vanilla bean, cut into quarters

1. Combine cocoa, sugar, milk powder, coffee creamer, instant coffee and vanilla bean pieces in a large dry bowl; stir until well-blended.
2. Pack into jars, making sure a piece of vanilla bean is in each jar. Seal and label. Store in the refrigerator at least a week before using to allow vanilla flavor to be absorbed into the mix.
3. For drinking, use three level tablespoonfuls for every six ounces of boiling water. Top with a marshmallow or whipped cream.

Household hints

Honey may replace part, but not all, the sugar in a jam or jelly recipe. The color of your preserves will be darker than when made with all sugar.

Turkey not originally traditional

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - The word "turkey" will be on everyone's lips come Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 27. So maybe it's time to shed some light on this flavorsome, odd-looking, tiny-brained creature.

Researchers at Hallmark, whose Thanksgiving cards and party goods often portray the ungainly gobbler, maintain for instance that turkeys were not served at the Pilgrims' original Thanksgiving feast in 1621. Instead, the menu consisted of venison, goose, duck, eels and seafood. Plus corn bread, leeks, watercress, plums, dried berries and wine. But no turkey, no cranberry sauce and no pumpkin pie.

In later years, these research experts say, Benjamin Franklin pleaded with Congress to have the turkey made America's national symbol instead of the bald eagle, which he called "a bird of bad moral character . . generally poor and often very lousy." Franklin described the turkey as "much more respectable and withal a true original native of America."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - The word "turkey" will be on everyone's lips come Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 27. So maybe it's time to shed some light on this flavorsome, odd-looking, tiny-brained creature.

Researchers at Hallmark, whose Thanksgiving cards and party goods often portray the ungainly gobbler, maintain for instance that turkeys were not served at the Pilgrims' original Thanksgiving feast in 1621. Instead, the menu consisted of venison, goose, duck, eels and seafood. Plus corn bread, leeks, watercress, plums, dried berries and wine. But no turkey, no cranberry sauce and no pumpkin pie.

In later years, these research experts say, Benjamin Franklin pleaded with Congress to have the turkey made America's national symbol instead of the bald eagle, which he called "a bird of bad moral character . . generally poor and often very lousy." Franklin described the turkey as "much more respectable and withal a true original native of America."

Just as preparing that turkey for the Thanksgiving table requires preparation, there are steps you should take before cleaning your rugs in anticipation of holiday company, says Lynn Raasch, consumer information specialist for a major wax company.

"Whether you use a liquid rug shampoo or a spray foam," Ms. Raasch advises, "your first step is to test the rug for colorfastness if you're cleaning it for the first time. This is best done by applying some of your cleaning agent to a remnant of the rug if aviable or to an out-of-the-way area of the rug. If it is colorfast none of the color will rub off on your cloth. If some bleeding does occur, consult the manufacturer, the dealer or a professional rug cleaner for proper cleaning instructions."

The second step, she suggests, is vacuuming the rug thoroughly. "This is something that should be done regularly anyway because ground-in dirt and sand particles can cut fibers."

Ms. Raasch says the final pre-cleaning step is covering the legs of furniture remaining in the room with waxed paper, plastic bags or aluminum foil to protect both the rug and furniture finish alike.

"Now you're ready to clean your rug," she points out, "but be sure that your cleaning agent is a recognized product for results consistent with the quality of your rug."

Food gifts are hassle-free

This Christmas, instead of the usual scarves and socks, give gifts of food. Delicious food gifts can be hassle-free. In the twinkling of an eye, you're out of the kitchen and set for holiday gift giving. Best of all, presents such as delectable drinks can be enjoyed by everyone. Champagne Punch Concentrate and Hot Mocha Mix are two to make now, give later from an unusual collection of no-cook recipes. Pour the mixtures into glass containers, tie a ribbon around each and label with serving instructions.

Champagne punch concentrate is a unique gift for those who like to entertain. When mixed with two bottles (four fifths quart) of champagne and one bottle (28 ounces) of club soda, it makes about 15 cups of punch:

2 cups apricot brandy

Combine the juice and brandy in a bowl and stir until well-blended. Pour into a glass container; seal, label and keep chilled until ready to serve. At serving time, mix the concentrate with champagne and club soda in a large punch bowl. Garnish with ice and thin slices of lemon.

Hot mocha is delicious on cold winter nights. Just add boiling water to the mix and serve in coffee mugs. This recipe makes 6 ½ cups:

1 cup unsweetened cocoa
2 cups sugar
2 cups nonfat dry milk powder
2 cups dry nondairy coffee creamer
½ cup instant coffee
1 vanilla bean, cut into quarters

1. Combine cocoa, sugar, milk powder, coffee creamer, instant coffee and vanilla bean pieces in a large dry bowl; stir until well-blended.

2. Pack into jars, making sure a piece of vanilla bean is in each jar. Seal and label. Store in the refrigerator at least a week before using to allow vanilla flavor to be absorbed into the mix.

3. For drinking, use three level tablespoonfuls for every six ounces of boiling water. Top with a marshmallow or whipped cream.

Household hints

Honey may replace part, but not all, the sugar in a jam or jelly recipe. The color of your preserves will be darker than when made with all sugar.

Trellis stitch may be a part of heritage

By ELSA WILLIAMS

The trellis may well have come over on the Mayflower on a piece of needlework a colonist's wife brought with her to the New World. It's one of those lovely filling stitches used for hundreds of years to enrich Jacobean designs. Try it to create a little hill at the base of a tree of life design and to fill flower petals or leaf shapes.

The trellis consists of long stitches, from one end to the other of the area being filled. A second set of long stitches crossing the first is then taken. You'll find the long stitches will appear only on the right side of the design with short stitches following the outside edge of the design on the reverse side. It's advisable to use a hoop when you do this stitch.

The layers of stitches need not be at right angles; they can form diamond or oblong shapes as well as squares. To hold them in place, couching stitches are needed at each intersection. This may be a single small couching stitch or a tiny cross stitch in the same color as the trellis or in a contrasting color. If there's enough room between the long stitches, you can achieve a very decorative effect by working another set of trellis stitches in a second color on top of the first.

Use your imagination to fill the trellis: a lazy daisy stitch, French knots, miniscule cross stitches or stars, separately or in combination, can add a delightful patterned look to your work. Or add a series of stitches to your trellis in graduated shades of one color.

Even skilled embroiderers often fail to reaize that they can use the trellis stitch as surface design and vary it by weaving another color into it, and another color underneath. You can create a great many distinctive variations. Often the colors you incorporate into the couched trellis stitch are just what's needed to relate the colors used elsewhere in your design.

Through the couched trellis is centuries old, it adapts beautifully to contemporary designs and offers a splendid opportunity to mix both colors and yarns.

Dear Elsa,

I've run into a great deal of trouble in making a bargello pillow. When I miscount the threads and take the mistakes out I find I split the yarn of the previous stitch when I come up through the canvas to take a new stitch. This is almost impossible to take out. V.R.C.

Dear V.R.C.,

If you've made an extensive mistake, there's usually nothing to do but cut away the stitches that are wrong, taking care not to cut the threads of the canvas. When it's only a matter of a stitch or two, you'll find it easier if you remember one important rule: "Come up through the empty hole, go down through the filled one" as you stitch along a row. When a little care you'll find you're much less likely to split the thread of the stitch above when you work down through the canvas instead of coming up with the needle through a thread already in place.

Ann Landers

Absence of love blamed on college education

Dear Ann Landers: For years I've been too embarrassed to ask other parents. Will you please do it for me..

We had a large family. Fifty per cent of the children to whom we gave college educations have cut us out of their lives completely. They are no longer speaking to us.

Is this normal? How many children who have not had college educations still love their parents? While I'm sure there are no accurate statistics would you please express your personal opinion.. ++Outside Looking In

Dear Out: Your letter suggests that you believe there is some correlation between a college education and a child's love for his parents -- the conclusion being that the better educated the child, the less likely he is to love his mother and father.

I don't agree. My guess is that it's six of one and a half dozen of the other. If anyone out there has evidence to the contrary please let me know.

Dear Ann: I've been keeping a scrapbook of your best columns for several years. Some are hilarious -- others deal with life's problems that have hit very close to home. Many are in support of my position on teen-age behavior. You know when Ann Landers says it, the kids pay attention because they think she is "cool."

Why don't you put out a book that contains a collection of your favorite columns.. I'd love to have such a book and I'll bet a good many of your readers would, too. Please consider it, Ann. ++An Admirer In Seattle.

Dear Admirer: The book you want went on sale last week in bookstores and airports all over the world – wherever paperbacks are sold. It is called, "Ann Landers Speaks Out" -- price $1.50 (published by Fawcett).

It's more than a collection of columns. I've written an essay for each chapter and added bits and pieces of my personal philosophy. Thanks for providing me with the perfect opportunity to plug my own book -- for a change.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for 28 years. In all that time we have been alone exactly six months. We've had his parents, his sister, our married children, nieces and nephews or a grandchild with us. Now both my parents have moved in and they are driving me crazy.

My mother and dad pay us $150 a month for room and board. (The food they eat and the medicine they need costs at least that much.) My mother fights with the neighbors and insults everyone who comes to the house.

I can't ask them to move because Mom isn't able to handle Dad alone. He has had several strokes and she refuses to put him in a nursing home.

My husband goes directly to a bar after work to "kill a few hours." I'm a nervous wreck. What should I do.. -- Going Out Of My Mind

Dear Friend: I believe in the commandment "Honor thy father and thy mother," but this doesn't mean you should let them ruin your marriage and wreck your life.

Where were your parents living before they moved in with you.. Their own apartment or home, I'll bet. That's where they should be now. Start to find other quarters for them at once, even if it means helping them financially. It's cheaper than a mental hospital, dear. What's more, it's time you and your husband enjoyed some privacy.There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen- Age Sex -- Ten Ways to Cool It." Miss Teenage America receives gold medallion

TULSA, Okla.--The 15th Annual Miss Teenage America Pageant concluded recently in an exciting climax with Cathy Durden, Miss Teenage Honolulu, being chosen as 1976 Miss Teenage America before a national television audience at Mabee Center, Oral Roberts University.

Miss Durden, age 16, was selected over 45 other outstanding Miss Teenage America candidates.

She was crowned in Miss Teenage America's special way, with a distinguished medallion around her neck instead of the traditional pageant crown. The medallion has been a Miss Teenage America trademark during its 15 years.

The newly chosen Miss Teenage America was mobbed by family, friends and other candidates following the telecast. She follows in the footsteps of Miss Karen Petersen of Ohio who, while Miss Teenage America 1975, traveled America. Her travels included a White House visit to meet President Gerald Ford.

Since this is the Bicentennial year, the 1976 Miss Teenage America can expect to participate in birthday celebrations around the country. Her first official function, following a celebration ball and midnight supper after her national telecast selection, will be in Tulsa's annual Christmas parade within two weeks.

National PTA launches alcohol abuse education

To drink or not to drink... that is the question. And it's a vital one which confronts every young person, beginning as early as nine years of age. The next question is – whatever the decision about drinking, how does a young person exercise it responsibily?

Deeply concerned with these questions and others, the National PTA has received funding from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcholism (NIAAA), an institute in the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, to launch an alcohol education project for the fourth, consecutive year. In response to the growing awareness of alcohol abuse by pre-teenagers and teens, the project is designed to utilize parents, teachers, and students themselves, to teach young people and their families about the responsible use and non-use of alcohol.

The National PTA is using part of the current NIAAA grant of more than $200,000 to award 20 state PTAs-PTSAs (Parent-Teacher-Student Associations) funds to conduct community-based educational programs of various types in the implementation of the project. These awards bring to 60 the total number of state PTAs-PTSAs receiving NIAAA money since 1972. Title of the 1975-76 project is, "Alcohol: A Family Affair."

According to Mrs. Walter G. Kimmel, National PTA president: "Alcohol education has been a focal point of the National PTA in recent years -- always moving toward the ultimate goal of making it a part of comprehensive health education programs in schools and communities throughout the nation, along with such related subjects as drug abuse, smoking and health, venereal disease, nutrition and parenthood and family life. It is our belief that activities geared toward prevention are of the greatest importance, and that developing good health habits early in life -- as early as kindergarten, and extending through grade 12 -- is the most direct route to this objective.

"We also believe in providing young people, as well as parents and teachers, with information that will assist them in making informed, responsible decisions about the use or non-use of alcohol. Living in a society where drinking is acceptable, and where alcohol is accessible to most young people -- in the home or elsewhere -- the decision of whether or not to drink confronts each individual. If he decides to drink, the real question is how to promote the kind of respect for himself and others that will lead to responsible decisions about the use of alcohol, and an understanding of alcoholism. At the same time, any individual who determines not to drink should feel supported and accepted by society in this decision too."

Goals of the alcohol education project, in addition to providing opportunities for parents and school children to learn about the responsible use and nonuse of alcoholic beverages, are to create roles for and foster involvement of parents, teachers, and students in the development of prevention projects, curriculums, and materials; to encourage young people to develop and conduct their own educational programs for their peers or younger children; and to increase parents' awareness of their impact upon their children's drinking behavior.

The 20 state PTA-PTSA projects, selected from among a number of proposals submitted to the National PTA's Alcohol Education Project Advisory Committee, will be conducted in large urban and suburban area of such states as New York and California, as well as in isolated rural areas of such states as Oregon and Washington. Various techniques will be utilized, to appeal to people from different age groups, and geographic, racial, ethnic, and educational backgrounds. These will include workshops, mobile vans, and audtio-visual presentations.

The following state PTA-PTSA projects were selected to receive grants from the National PTA: Alaska ($2,000); Arkansas ($2,100); California ($2,550); Colorado ($3,400); Connecticut ($2,750); Florida ($1,810); Hawaii ($3,000); Illinois ($2,950); Massachusetts ($1,000); Michigan ($2,500); Minnesota ($3,000); Missouri ($1,000); Nevada ($2,135); New Jersey ($2,100); New York ($2,650); Oregon ($3,000); Rhode Island ($1,000); Tennessee ($1,628); Utah ($1,000); and Washington ($3,000).

In addition to state efforts, the National PTA will supplement the 20 projects with instructional materials, technical assistance and a leadership conference. This meeting, which will be held in early January 1976 for alcohol education project directors from the various states, members of the national advisory committee, and other experts in the field, will acquaint project directors with new PTA and NIAAA instructional aids, as well as advise them on methods for designing their projects to meet the specialized needs of parents, teachers, and students in various parts of the country.

The new PTA materials include a filmstrip, "Just Like You " and a brochure, "How to Talk to Your Teenager About Drinking and Driving." The brochure is a joint effort of the PTA and the U.S. Department of Transportation. Both the filmstrip and brochure were created to help parents understand their own roles in teaching their children about alcohol use and nonuse.

In discussing the 1974-75 alcohol education project, Richard L. Spoonster, director of the project for the National PTA, said: "By focusing on alcohol education rather than alcoholism education, (only 10 per cent of the drinking population in this country is alcoholic,) the PTA project was better able to deal with the more sensitive aspects of use and abuse. Parents and teachers could cope more comfortably with their own attitudes regarding alcohol, when 'responsible' drinking became a viable option and nonuse was no longer linked exclusively with the fear of alcoholism. Students could then make decisions in a less anxious atmosphere and view the problems of youthful drinking in a more objective manner."

The National PTA anticipates that the 1975-76 alcohol education project will be even more successful than the previous year. During 1974-75, each of the 18 state PTA-PTSA projects donated an average of $15,000 -- or a total of more than a quarter-of-a- million dollars -- in volunteered hours, goods and services. Donations of goods and services included professional consultation from outside organizations, meeting space and cash contributions.

In addition, nearly half-a-million (471,000) youths and adults participated in the project last year. Thus, it only cost the federal government approximately 20 cents per person to educate half-a-million people, based on the NIAAA investment of $100,000.

Tuna tacos move indoors

For a change of pace, make the featured dish Tuna Tacos, a new version of a 'South of the Border' favorite. Canned tuna in vegetable oil, a complete protein food, has been a standard ingredient in sandwiches and salads all summer long. Now it's adapting to the coming fall and winter months in this hot Mexican sandwich filled with a spicy tuna sauce.

Prepare the easy-to-fix sauce the night before; keep it in the refrigerator in an insulated container. To serve tuna tacos, heat the tuna mixture and spoon into taco shells... top with the crisp vegetables and shredded cheese.

Here are some practical hints on the art of eating tacos. . . A good way to keep the contents from squirting out the ends is to bend the taco slightly and hold the far end closed and slightly raised. Remember, when you bite to keep your lips from having a squeezing effect.

If you'd like to serve a more conventional sandwich, make these hot tuna heroes. This seasoned dish can be prepared outdoors and spooned onto warmed hero rolls.

Remember, after you've packed away your outdoor food equipment, you can still make these tuna treats indoors. . . after all, canned tuna's a food for all seasons.

TUNA TACOS

2 Tbsp. salad oil
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1½ tsp. chili powder
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
8 taco shells
1 cup shredded lettuce
1 tomato, chopped

YIELD: 8 tacos; 4 servings.

HOT TUNA HEROES

3 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 cup chopped onion
3 to 4 Tbsp. vinegar
1 to 2 Tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup catsup
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. dired leaf oregano
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ cup chopped parsley
6 hero rolls

Drain vegetable oil from tuna and heat in skillet or saucepan: add onion and cook until tender. Stir in vinegar, lemon juice and catsup. Add tuna, salt, oregano, pepper and parsley. Cook about 10 minutes over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Spoon on split warmed hero rolls.

YIELDS: 6 servings

Need inspiration for decorating holiday cookies? Copy the design of Christmas tree ornaments. Use ready-to-spread frosting then decorate with candies, colored sugars, candied fruits' coconut or nuts. Families love home-baked cookies and it's easy to be artistic. You may find some creations unusual enough to use as ornaments on the tree itself.

Public comment solicited on home mortgage interest

ST. LOUIS — The department of Housing and Urban Development has invited public comment on the revised home mortgage interest subsidy program designed to house families priced out of the new home market because of high interest rates and soaring construction costs.

The proposed regulations for the revised Section 235 Home Ownership Program appeared in the Federal Register Nov. 7.

Interested persons are invited to submit comments by Dec. 10 to the Rules Docket Clerk, Office of General Counsel, Room 10245, Department of Housing and Urban Development, 451 7th Street, SW, Washington, D.C. 20410.

The comments will be available for public inspection at the above address during regular business hours before and after the close of the comment period.

The proposed regulations specify that the applicant shall have an adjusted annual income not in excess of 80 per cent of median income for the area, with adjustments for smaller or larger families. Although the actual income limits will vary substantially by market area. The usual income eligible range will be $9,000-$11,000.

The mortages ceiling for a new home is $21,600 for a family of four or $25,200 for larger families. In designated high cost areas, the limits are$25,200 for a four- member family, and $28,800 for larger familes.

For a $25,000 mortgage, down payments are expected to be about $1,500. Maximum mortgage term would be 30 years.

The proposed rules specify that no more than 30 per cent of the ection 235 homes, or a limit of 40, whichever is less, will be eligible for mortgage assistance in a subdivision.

The department is developing specific features of a counseling program, proposed by the published rules, which may include use of buyer education material, counseling through local organizations and other measures to assist home purchasers to better understand and deal with the responsibilities of homeownership.

The subsidized home can be a new or substantially rehabilitated single- family detached, townhouse, condominium or cooperative unit.

The proposed rules define "substantially rehabilitated" as a dwelling whose cost to rehabilitate is at least 25 per cent of the value of the property after rehabilitation.

About 250,000 single-family units will be subsidized under the revised section 235 program with a funding level of $264.1 million over the next two years.

The revised program will apply to mortgages approved for insurance after Jan. 1, 1976, but properties may qualify if construction or rehabilitation started after Oct. 17, 1975, under an FHA commitment for mortgage insurance.

Copies of the summary of the proposed regulations for the revised section 235 may be reviewed at the St. Louis area office, 210 N. 12th St., St. Louis, copies of the regulations themselves will be available as soon as possible at that office.

Household hints

Ice-cream sundaes are easy to assemble for company desserts. They're fun to serve in the heavy, glass, old-fashioned ice-cream sundae dishes that are now being reproduced.

Having green thumb is purely mythical

When it comes to horticulture, beginners are lucky because nature is on their side. All the brown-thumb myths suggest other-wise: Some folks, when it comes to plants, are born losers or so it would seem.

But the reality of the world of growing things is contrary to the myth. Nature's basic zest is to sprout and push and probe and sneak through sidewalk cracks and take over lattices and climb fences; to re-forest and re-jungle and, if possible, repatriate so-called civilization into a wilderness.

So the notion that one must possess special power or wisdom or luck in order to succeed as a gardener is simply not the case. To care enough about plants to work at the job of growing them is the vital secret.

You can begin simply and inexpensively with the space available -- a tiny plot in the side yard or some pots in the living room or a windowbox. You can plant a tree or shrub or flowers or vegetables. Your local nursery garden center can provide the necessary materials and can also give you the advice and literature that will guide you in your new adventure.

With persistence you will have more successes than you expected and your few failures can be turned into learnings. You will have hit on a hobby that can be made to fit into your schedule while providing personal satisfaction and adding beauty to your surroundings.

Tuna tacos move indoors

For a change of pace, make the featured dish Tuna Tacos, a new version of a 'South of the Border' favorite. Canned tuna in vegetable oil, a complete protein food, has been a standard ingredient in sandwiches and salads all summer long. Now it's adapting to the coming fall and winter months in this hot Mexican sandwich filled with a spicy tuna sauce.

Prepare the easy-to-fix sauce the night before; keep it in the refrigerator in an insulated container. To serve tuna tacos, heat the tuna mixture and spoon into taco shells... top with the crisp vegetables and shredded cheese.

Here are some practical hints on the art of eating tacos. . . A good way to keep the contents from squirting out the ends is to bend the taco slightly and hold the far end closed and slightly raised. Remember, when you bite to keep your lips from having a squeezing effect.

If you'd like to serve a more conventional sandwich, make these hot tuna heroes. This seasoned dish can be prepared outdoors and spooned onto warmed hero rolls.

Remember, after you've packed away your outdoor food equipment, you can still make these tuna treats indoors. . . after all, canned tuna's a food for all seasons.

TUNA TACOS

2 Tbsp. salad oil
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1½ tsp. chili powder
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
8 taco shells
1 cup shredded lettuce
1 tomato, chopped

YIELD: 8 tacos; 4 servings.

HOT TUNA HEROES

3 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 cup chopped onion
3 to 4 Tbsp. vinegar
1 to 2 Tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup catsup
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. dired leaf oregano
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ cup chopped parsley
6 hero rolls

Drain vegetable oil from tuna and heat in skillet or saucepan: add onion and cook until tender. Stir in vinegar, lemon juice and catsup. Add tuna, salt, oregano, pepper and parsley. Cook about 10 minutes over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Spoon on split warmed hero rolls.

YIELDS: 6 servings

Public comment solicited on home mortgage interest

ST. LOUIS — The department of Housing and Urban Development has invited public comment on the revised home mortgage interest subsidy program designed to house families priced out of the new home market because of high interest rates and soaring construction costs.

The proposed regulations for the revised Section 235 Home Ownership Program appeared in the Federal Register Nov. 7.

Interested persons are invited to submit comments by Dec. 10 to the Rules Docket Clerk, Office of General Counsel, Room 10245, Department of Housing and Urban Development, 451 7th Street, SW, Washington, D.C. 20410.

The comments will be available for public inspection at the above address during regular business hours before and after the close of the comment period.

The proposed regulations specify that the applicant shall have an adjusted annual income not in excess of 80 per cent of median income for the area, with adjustments for smaller or larger families. Although the actual income limits will vary substantially by market area. The usual income eligible range will be $9,000- $11,000.

The mortages ceiling for a new home is $21,600 for a family of four or $25,200 for larger families. In designated high cost areas, the limits are$25,200 for a four- member family, and $28,800 for larger familes.

For a $25,000 mortgage, down payments are expected to be about $1,500. Maximum mortgage term would be 30 years.

The proposed rules specify that no more than 30 per cent of the ection 235 homes, or a limit of 40, whichever is less, will be eligible for mortgage assistance in a subdivision.

The department is developing specific features of a counseling program, proposed by the published rules, which may include use of buyer education material, counseling through local organizations and other measures to assist home purchasers to better understand and deal with the responsibilities of homeownership.

The subsidized home can be a new or substantially rehabilitated single- family detached, townhouse, condominium or cooperative unit.

The proposed rules define "substantially rehabilitated" as a dwelling whose cost to rehabilitate is at least 25 per cent of the value of the property after rehabilitation.

About 250,000 single-family units will be subsidized under the revised section 235 program with a funding level of $264.1 million over the next two years.

The revised program will apply to mortgages approved for insurance after Jan. 1, 1976, but properties may qualify if construction or rehabilitation started after Oct. 17, 1975, under an FHA commitment for mortgage insurance.

Copies of the summary of the proposed regulations for the revised section 235 may be reviewed at the St. Louis area office, 210 N. 12th St., St. Louis, copies of the regulations themselves will be available as soon as possible at that office.

When it comes to horticulture, beginners are lucky because nature is on their side. All the brown-thumb myths suggest other-wise: Some folks, when it comes to plants, are born losers or so it would seem.

But the reality of the world of growing things is contrary to the myth. Nature's basic zest is to sprout and push and probe and sneak through sidewalk cracks and take over lattices and climb fences; to re-forest and re-jungle and, if possible, repatriate so-called civilization into a wilderness.

So the notion that one must possess special power or wisdom or luck in order to succeed as a gardener is simply not the case. To care enough about plants to work at the job of growing them is the vital secret.

You can begin simply and inexpensively with the space available -- a tiny plot in the side yard or some pots in the living room or a windowbox. You can plant a tree or shrub or flowers or vegetables. Your local nursery garden center can provide the necessary materials and can also give you the advice and literature that will guide you in your new adventure.

With persistence you will have more successes than you expected and your few failures can be turned into learnings. You will have hit on a hobby that can be made to fit into your schedule while providing personal satisfaction and adding beauty to your surroundings.

Government plans to issue cancer alerts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is planning to issue public "toxic alerts" when its animal tests disclose possible cancer-causing properties in widely used chemical compounds.

Based on the same principle as the familiar pollution alerts, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says it will caution regulatory agencies, industry, labor unions and the public when a chemical is found to produce cancer in rodents.

The National Cancer Institute has targeted about 450 highly suspicious compounds for two-year studies. The chemicals are fed orally to 100 rats and 100 mice, evenly divided between males and females, for 18 months. The animals are observed for another six months before they are sacrified for microscopic tissue examination.

The first four compounds for which preliminary testing has been completed showed evidence of being carcinogenic, according to the institute. All four are widely used and all have or have had the potential of showing up in human food supplies.

They are the pesticides chlordane and heptachlor, now in the process of being banned by the Environmental Protection Agency; trichlorcethlene, once used to make decaffeinated coffee; and ethylene dibromide, used for a number of purposes including agricultural fumigation and drug manufacture.

Umberto Saffiotti, an associate director of the cancer institute, sent a series of memos recently to the HEW toxicology committee advising it of the preliminary findings on the four chemicals.

In the case of chlordane and heptachlor, hewrote, "the preliminary results are that both compounds will show carcinogenic activity in mice."

"Both the these materials have significant commercial production and are used massively as pesticides," Saffiotti said.

He is releasing preliminary findings in advance, he said, so "appropriate agencies may be made aware of our concerns with this matter."

The institute tests suggested that ethylene dibromide and trichlorethylene have a "strong carcinogenic activity both in rats and in mice," primiarly in stomach tumors, two other memos said. The United States produces about 350 million pounds of ethylene dibromide annually for use as an agricultural fumigant, a solvent, a lead scavenger in motor fuels and as an intermediate in the production of dyes and pharmaceuticals.

The Saffiotti memos emphasized that the information at this point "represents only a statement of concern and that no definite conclusions as to the carcinogenicity" of the chemicals can be reached until all of the test data has been evaulated.

Privacy: Freedom from search and seizure

By Alan Barth

Procedure sometimes seems dull; and one often hears procedural rules dismissed carelessly as "mere legal technicalities." Yet Justice Frankfurter did not exaggerate in saying that "the history of liberty has largely been the history of observance of procedural safeguards." Thus far we have looked at the development of three great substantive guarantees of the First Amendment— freedom to speak, to publish, to join hands for the advancement of common interests. The balance of the Bill of Rights, especially Amendments IV, V, and VI, is concerned largely with procedural rights of Americans, that is, with the ways in which government must behave in relation to its citizens.

This article will deal with one of the most complex of these limitations on governmental power, the Fourth Amendment. It guarantees "the right of people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures." It promises that no search warrants can be issued except "upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized." Nothing is more important to freedom or to the exercise of other rights assured by the Constitution than to be secure against arbitrary arrest and imprisonment and against random invasion of one's privacy by nosy, power-hungry agents of government.

"REASONABLE" SEARCH AND SEIZURE

The Fourth Amendment, we should remember, forbids only "unreasonable" searches and seizures. Reasonableness is a disputed term but over the years the courts have defined its main characteristics.

First, a search, to be "reasonable," must have "probable cause"—something more than the searcher's mere guesswork or suspicion—to justify it. In short, there must be information, sworn to by some responsible person, sufficient to justify a reasonable man in believing that stolen property or the instruments of a crime or certain kinds of evidence may be found by an authorized search.

Second, to be reasonable, a search must be approved in advance (with rare exceptions) by a neutral judge.

And, third, to be reasonable, a search must be specific in regard to the place to be searched and the object to be sought. Rummaging and ransacking premises on "fishing expeditions" are not "reasonable."

The rules regarding arrest are a little looser. Arrests may be made without getting an arrest warrant in advance but only when the police have "probable cause" to charge someone with a particular crime. Then they must take the arrested person without unnecessary delay before a magistrate to determine the validity of the arrest. The Constitution, in brief, allows policemen to arrest but delegates to judicial authorities the decision to detain.

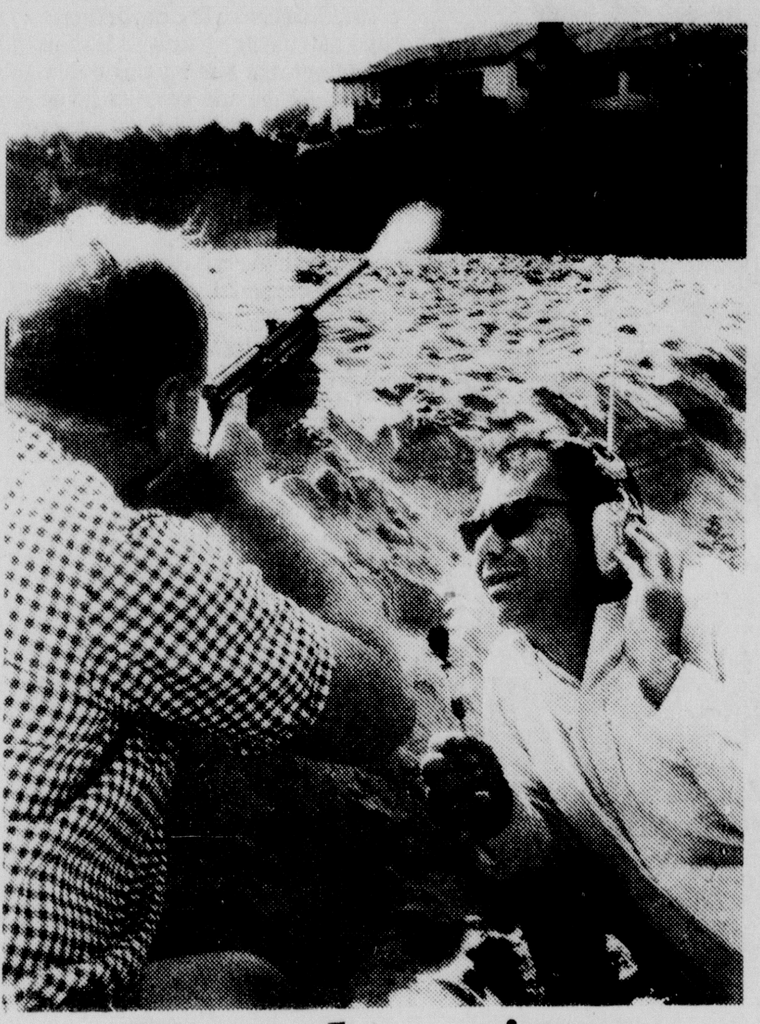
The development of the law governing search and seizure has been erratic. Long-standing common law tradition held that courts should ignore police practices in obtaining evidence so long as the police did not resort to physical coercion and so long as the evidence presented was competent and relevant.

In a landmark case decided in 1914, however, the Supreme Court ruled unanimously that in federal trials it would no longer accept evidence obtained through violation of the Constitution. The case (Weeks v. United States) involved the seizure of some papers in plain violation of the Fourth Amendment. "If letters and private documents can thus be seized and held and used in evidence against a citizen accused of an offense," the Court declared, then the citizen's "right to be secure against such searches and seizures is of no value, and, so far as those thus placed are concerned, might as well be stricken from the Constitution."

Note that was in a federal trial. As late as 1949 (in Wolf v. Colorado), the Court ruled that the admission in state trials of evidence obtained by an unreasonable search and seizure was not in violation of the federal Constitution. Not until 1961 did the Court change its mind, as it does from time to time, and decide (in Mapp v. Ohio) that "all evidence obtained by searches and seizures in violation of the Constitution is, by that same authority, inadmissible in a state court."

A CHIEF GRIEVANCE

The men who wrote the Fourth Amendment—the gist of which had already been embodied in a number of state constitutions—preceding the ratification of the federal Constitution, were no mere theorists. They were all too familiar with random searches and arbitrary arrests conducted under the authority of writs of assistance and general warrants by King George III's redcoats.



Eavesdropping

Indeed, these were among the chief grievances that led to the American rebellion. The idea that a man's home was his castle—that, however humble it might be, the king's men could not enter it without a proper warrant—was already firmly established in England. The colonists felt that they were entitled to the same right of privacy.

Privacy is nowhere mentioned in the Constitution under that term. At best it is an elusive and elastic concept, and just what degree of it the authors of the Constitution meant to assure has sparked much argument.

A great debate on the subject grew out of a landmark case (Olmstead v. United States) that came before the Supreme Court in 1928—the first case testing whether the tapping of a telephone constituted an "unreasonable search" in the sense forbidden by the Fourth Amendment. A gang of bootleggers had been selling liquor smuggled into the State of Washington in clear violation of the Volstead Act. Over a period of many months, federal prohibition agents tapped telephones in the homes and offices of the bootleggers and listened to them take orders for liquor and direct their far-flung enterprises. Stenographic notes of these conversations were used to convict the bootleggers. Did this constitute an unreasonable search?

The Court, dividing five to four, said No. "The [Fourth] Amendment," Chief Justice Taft wrote for the majority, "does not forbid what was done here. There was no searching. There was no seizure. The evidence was secured by the sense of hearing and that only. There was no entry of the houses or offices of the defendants." In short, since there was no trespass on the defendants' premises, there was no Fourth Amendment violation.

UNWARRANTED INTRUSION

In an impassioned dissent, however, Justice Louis D. Brandeis pleaded for a broader, more imaginative interpretation of the Fourth Amendment. It was designed, he argued, not merely to protect private premises against unwarranted intrusion but also to safeguard a right of privacy essential to the ideas of human dignity and political liberty.

"The makers of our Constitution," he put it, "undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. . . . They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone—the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men. To protect that right, every unjustifiable intrusion by the Government upon the privacy of the individual, whatever the means employed, must be deemed a violation of the Fourth Amendment."

It took almost 40 years for the court to come round to endorsing Brandeis' dissenting view. In the course of those years, electronic eavesdropping devices had become far more sophisticated and pervasive. Complicated surveillance systems were being used indiscriminately by the government to detect political dissension as well as criminal conduct. The assumptions lying behind the 1928 decision had been outflanked by technological developments. Intrusions upon privacy had become a menace to liberty—a menace to the exercise of the very rights of free speech and free association guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Freedom of communication between free citizens is the very essence of the democratic process. In 1967, therefore, the Court abandoned the "trespass" doctrine enunciated by Chief Justice Taft and declared instead that the Fourth Amendment protects people and not simply "areas" against unreasonable searches and seizures. Today wiretapping or bugging of private conversations is unconstitutional unless authorized and its limits defined in advance by a competent judicial authority. In 1968, Congress adopted legislation authorizing such electronic searches.

Law enforcement, of course, would be easier, and perhaps more efficient, if the police could arrest and interrogate suspects at will or if police could eavesdrop or conduct surprise searches wherever they supposed a crime was being plotted or contraband concealed. But these are the identifying characteristics of a police state. Where governments have such unregulated power, citizens are powerless.

In handcuffing the police to safeguard popular liberty, the authors of the Fourth Amendment realized that they were to some extent sacrificing efficiency for the sake of privacy. The price seemed to them well worth paying. It is, in fact, the inescapable price of liberty.

The half-hour "Family" series, the nation's top-rated show for six out of eight weeks this season, will start its repeats at 3 p.m. EST each day, when NBC's hour-long "Another World" begins.

While it's not the first time a network has put repeats of a nighttime situation comedy in its daytime lineup, it is the first time a series from producer Norman Lear's successful nighttime series emporium has been scheduled for daytime television.

It's a bit ironic, since CBS — as well as NBC and ABC — rejected Lear's new "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" comedy-cum-soap opera series as a Monday-through-Friday show for daytime viewers.

Lear, who is proceeding with the series anyway and syndicating it to stations, said in an interview last September that CBS turned it down after he balked at basic changes he said CBS wanted made.

He said Fred Silverman, CBS' program chief when he proposed the series, wanted "Hartman" as a once-a-week nighttime show that ran an hour and was taped before a studio audience.

But Donald "Bud" Grant, CBS' daytime programming chief and the man responsible for scheduling "All in the Family" repeats for daytime TV, said rejection of "Hartman" as a daytime series was his idea, not Silverman's.

UNWARRANTED INTRUSION

In an impassioned dissent, however, Justice Louis D. Brandeis pleaded for a broader, more imaginative interpretation of the Fourth Amendment. It was designed, he argued, not merely to protect private premises against unwarranted intrusion but also to safeguard a right of privacy essential to the ideas of human dignity and political liberty.

"The makers of our Constitution," he put it, "undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. . . . They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone—the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men. To protect that right, every unjustifiable intrusion by the Government upon the privacy of the individual, whatever the means employed, must be deemed a violation of the Fourth Amendment."

It took almost 40 years for the court to come round to endorsing Brandeis' dissenting view. In the course of those years, electronic eavesdropping devices had become far more sophisticated and pervasive. Complicated surveillance systems were being used indiscriminately by the government to detect political dissension as well as criminal conduct. The assumptions lying behind the 1928 decision had been outflanked by technological developments. Intrusions upon privacy had become a menace to liberty—a menace to the exercise of the very rights of free speech and free association guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Freedom of communication between free citizens is the very essence of the democratic process. In 1967, therefore, the Court abandoned the "trespass" doctrine enunciated by Chief Justice Taft and declared instead that the Fourth Amendment protects people and not simply "areas" against unreasonable searches and seizures. Today wiretapping or bugging of private conversations is unconstitutional unless authorized and its limits defined in advance by a competent judicial authority. In 1968, Congress adopted legislation authorizing such electronic searches.

Law enforcement, of course, would be easier, and perhaps more efficient, if the police could arrest and interrogate suspects at will or if police could eavesdrop or conduct surprise searches wherever they supposed a crime was being plotted or contraband concealed. But these are the identifying characteristics of a police state. Where governments have such unregulated power, citizens are powerless.

In handcuffing the police to safeguard popular liberty, the authors of the Fourth Amendment realized that they were to some extent sacrificing efficiency for the sake of privacy. The price seemed to them well worth paying. It is, in fact, the inescapable price of liberty.

The half-hour "Family" series, the nation's top-rated show for six out of eight weeks this season, will start its repeats at 3 p.m. EST each day, when NBC's hour-long "Another World" begins.

While it's not the first time a network has put repeats of a nighttime situation comedy in its daytime lineup, it is the first time a series from producer Norman Lear's successful nighttime series emporium has been scheduled for daytime television.

It's a bit ironic, since CBS — as well as NBC and ABC — rejected Lear's new "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" comedy-cum-soap opera series as a Monday-through-Friday show for daytime viewers.

Lear, who is proceeding with the series anyway and syndicating it to stations, said in an interview last September that CBS turned it down after he balked at basic changes he said CBS wanted made.

He said Fred Silverman, CBS' program chief when he proposed the series, wanted "Hartman" as a once-a-week nighttime show that ran an hour and was taped before a studio audience.

But Donald "Bud" Grant, CBS' daytime programming chief and the man responsible for scheduling "All in the Family" repeats for daytime TV, said rejection of "Hartman" as a daytime series was his idea, not Silverman's.

When Patricia Hearst made her tortuous way into the Symbionese Liberation Army, she became a startling example of the search for rebirth, the compulsion to exchange the old life for new, that is sweeping America today, sometimes with strange results, says Theodore Roszak, author and professor at California State University at Hayward, Calif.

Roszak makes this point in his new book, "Unfinished Animal," published by Harper & Row, in which he discusses the change-of- consciousness circuit that is leading people to seek self-realization in ways apart from the orthodox. He covers a wide range of such outlets -- the highest occult doctrines, etherealized healings, orgone boxes, indiscriminate mind-blowing, satanic cults, drugs and other techniques – pointing out that the Aquarian frontier is a very mixed bag of rich insights and vulgar counterfeits.

"Patricia Hearst's experience and passionate conversion to the cause of her captors show that not everything that promises rebirth brings the experience of transcendence," he writes. "There are many bad, secular substitutes on the scene, as well as many forms of 'spiritual fascism' which only exploit our need, rather than fulfilling it."

Miss Hearst's change of consciousness, he points out, is "an absolute parody" of true religious rebirth, since "in this instance, it is the religion of violent revolution and blood vengeance that consumes the life of the disciple.

"This example," he continues, "should remind us that people filled with enough self-loathing and desperation are apt to seize upon anything that offers them an explosive catharsis and a decisive break with the past – and to love the hand that drives them to their ordeal. Every totalitarian mass movement of modern times has borrowed and perverted the psychology of rebirth for its own purposes."

The droves of people flocking to the Aquarian frontier crying out to be born again guarantee us no humane results "unless the experience of renewal they find there prove to be ethical as well as ecstatic," he concludes. Yet the need to be reborn is "among the great constants of our human condition," he emphasizes. "It is the tidal rhythm of life that keeps the personality from stagnating in its accumulated guilt, regret, and failure" that enables us to exchange old life for new.

Other books by Roszak include "The Making Of A Counterculture" and "Where The Wasteland Ends."

When the Pilgrims sat down to their now famous feast over 300 years ago, they partook of food harvested from a rich nine inches of topsoil. Today this precious crust on the surface of our American earth, through the forces of wind and water, has been gradually whittled away to an average five- or six-inch layer.

While nature can produce an inch of topsoil every 500-600 years, the erosion process, set in motion by man's intervention in nature's balance, skims off approximately an inch every hundred years.

This appalling rate of loss has long preoccupied conservationists, agriculturalists and government officials, who have instituted many measures to save the land. Their efforts, of course, will continue.

Yet their activity, focused principally on farmland and forests, will have less effect on the every-expanding urban and suburban territory from which, every year, the elements make off, grain by grain, with tons of topsoil. This is where the individual can, as a partner with nature, intervene in a modest through important way.

The most effective means of conserving that rare and costly topsoil in your yard is by the use of a variety of forms of plant life. Shrubs and vines planted on steep slopes will impede the harmful effects of water, not only by holding the soil in place with deep-running roots but also by breaking up raindrops as they fall to earth.

Efficient plantings where soil is sandy and subject to windstorms help greatly in halting soil drift. A 40 mile-per-hour wind has about four times as much power to pick up soil as a 20 mile-per-hour wind. When its velocity is reduced by half, the dust-carrying capacity of a 40-mile wind is reduced 75 per cent. Trees and shrubs planted to utilize this simple relationship effectively help prevent a common form of soil erosion.

If the unique problems of your yard have not yielded to your efforts, the American Association of Nurserymen recommends you contact your local nursery garden center for green survival advice on the best approach to restoring or keeping your yard in a stable, healthy and attractive condition.

We may not be able to put back the soil lost since our Mayflower ancestors harvested their first crops, but we can honor their memory and serve ourselves and our heirs by making wise use of the land that remains.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — If your white shoes have spots on them, clean with your favorite flouride toothpaste. The spots will come right off and the shoes are really clean. — BETH.

DEAR POLLY — Mary wanted to know how to clean bronze flatware that came from Bangkok. Ours came from the same place and we clean it with fresh lemon juice. If there are any stains they can be wiped off with a paste made of lemon juice and cold cigarette ashes. This was the local recommendation given to us and it works perfectly. — C.B.S.

DEAR MARY — C.B.S. did not say so but, of course, after cleaning with the lemon juice it would all be washed with soap and hot water, rinsed and carefully dried. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Thank you so much for the Pointer for cleaning the deposits from my aluminum whistling tea kettle. It worked great using the water conditioner with the help of the few marbles I added. Now I am using my kettle again.!!

When I find I have a little time to trim the dead roses from my bushes and so on, I just grab the pruning shears and the garbage can lid and get to work. No scouting for a container to put the cuttings in. When finished I just tip the top into the plastic bag in the garbage can, put the top back on, shears away and I am finished. Thank you for past help. — MILDRED.

DEAR POLLY — Someone wrote that she had a mercurochrome stain on a rug and I found that dissolving an effervescent denture cleaning tablet in one cup of hot water is very effective to use for removing this medicine from clothing so it should work on a rug, too, but do test first. I would use a sponge or wash cloth to apply the solution sparingly. This also works for completely removing old blood stains from sheets. I merely soak the stained part in the cup of solution and it can be repeated if need be. — BETTY.

DEAR POLLY — Driftwood is most decorative but I often use brown liquid shoe polish to freshen its drab appearance. Some spray it white or gold — it is a matter of taste and one's color scheme. Everyone loves a winner — hope this is mine. — B.J.

Missouri PTA sponsors alcohol abuse workshops

Will my abusive drinking affect members of my family? That's one of the Decisions That Count (title of the 1975-6 alcohol education project) to be discussed at eight regional workshops of the Missouri PTA. Parents and children will learn how abusive drinking of an individual family member can affect all members of his family, be they children or adults.

"I hope participants will take home the information we give them at the workshops and assimilate it so they can talk about alcohol abuse in their homes, schools and communities," Teresa Dean of Independence, project chairwoman said.

The Missouri PTA has just received a National PTA grant to hold these workshops as a vehicle for promoting the responsible use and nonuse of alcohol. Participants will also talk about other Decisions That Count -- using or not using alcohol; misusing or abusing it; and drinking and driving or foregoing one of the two activities.

"Our greatest achievement would be if students at the conference took their knowledge of alcohol back to their classes and social groups," Mrs. Dean said. "After all, young people are turned on by other young people. They won't stand around and listen to adults lecture them but they will listen to their peers."

Missouri is one of 20 state PTAs-PTSAs (parent- teacher - student associations) to receive such a grant. The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholissm (NIAAA) has awarded more than $200,000 to the National PTA for this year's project. (NIAAA is an institute in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.) The 1975-76 program marks the fourth consecutive alcohol education project of the National PTA.

The project committee of the Missouri PTA also will urge local schools and PTAs-PTSAs to schedule the PTA mobile van to visit their area at the same time the regional workshops will be held. The van will be stocked with literature, slide films and displays on alcohol education.

The project advisory committee of the National PTA used stringent criteria to select the 20 best projects from the state proposals submitted. Projects had to be innovative in approach, easily duplicated and involve all members of a community.

Each of the state PTA-PTSA projects earned a grant of $1,000- $3,400. The state grants went to: Alaska, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah and Washington.

Herbs can grow in kitchen windows

To be cutting some sprigs of chives into your baked potato or dropping some broadleaf sorrel into your homemade soup or sprinkling basil into your salad dressing, hardly unusual for most cooks.

But what if all these were fresh herbs that had been grown in your own kitchen window? That would be unusual, but not so hard as it may seem. Many people are learning how simple it is to grow herbs in their homes and are discovering what a different these fresh spices make in the tastiness of home cooking.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, such herbs as dill, savory, parsley, thyme, borage, sage, marjoram and basil are some that can easily be grown during any season in pots in your home.

Many herbs can be bought in seed form and some may be obtained as live plants from your local nursery garden center. If you start with seeds, you can get free consultation on how to prepare the soil, how to plant and water the seeds and how much heat and light to provide.

Try your hand at herb gardening by starting with a few plants – no more than four or five. Then when you see how well you do and how your family responds to your fresh spices, you'll probably be expanding your indoor farm and sharing your crop with envious neighbors.

The droves of people flocking to the Aquarian frontier crying out to be born again guarantee us no humane results "unless the experience of renewal they find there prove to be ethical as well as ecstatic," he concludes. Yet the need to be reborn is "among the great constants of our human condition," he emphasizes. "It is the tidal rhythm of life that keeps the personality from stagnating in its accumulated guilt, regret, and failure" that enables us to exchange old life for new.

Save rich topsoil by planting shrubs

When the Pilgrims sat down to their now famous feast over 300 years ago, they partook of food harvested from a rich nine inches of topsoil. Today this precious crust on the surface of our American earth, through the forces of wind and water, has been gradually whittled away to an average five- or six-inch layer.

While nature can produce an inch of topsoil every 500-600 years, the erosion process, set in motion by man's intervention in nature's balance, skims off approximately an inch every hundred years.

The irreplaceable topsoil is, as we know, an indispensable element in sustaining all life. Our survival depends on it.

This appalling rate of loss has long preoccupied conservationists, agriculturalists and government officials, who have instituted many measures to save the land. Their efforts, of course, will continue.

Yet their activity, focused principally on farmland and forests, will have less effect on the every-expanding urban and suburban territory from which, every year, the elements make off, grain by grain, with tons of topsoil. This is where the individual can, as a partner with nature, intervene in a modest through important way.

The most effective means of conserving that rare and costly topsoil in your yard is by the use of a variety of forms of plant life. Shrubs and vines planted on steep slopes will impede the harmful effects of water, not only by holding the soil in place with deep-running roots but also by breaking up raindrops as they fall to earth.

Efficient plantings where soil is sandy and subject to windstorms help greatly in halting soil drift. A 40 mile-per-hour wind has about four times as much power to pick up soil as a 20 mile-per-hour wind. When its velocity is reduced by half, the dust-carrying capacity of a 40-mile wind is reduced 75 per cent. Trees and shrubs planted to utilize this simple relationship effectively help prevent a common form of soil erosion.

If the unique problems of your yard have not yielded to your efforts, the American Association of Nurserymen recommends you contact your local nursery garden center for green survival advice on the best approach to restoring or keeping your yard in a stable, healthy and attractive condition.

We may not be able to put back the soil lost since our Mayflower ancestors harvested their first crops, but we can honor their memory and serve ourselves and our heirs by making wise use of the land that remains.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — If your white shoes have spots on them, clean with your favorite flouride toothpaste. The spots will come right off and the shoes are really clean. — BETH.

DEAR POLLY — Mary wanted to know how to clean bronze flatware that came from Bangkok. Ours came from the same place and we clean it with fresh lemon juice. If there are any stains they can be wiped off with a paste made of lemon juice and cold cigarette ashes. This was the local recommendation given to us and it works perfectly. — C.B.S.

DEAR MARY — C.B.S. did not say so but, of course, after cleaning with the lemon juice it would all be washed with soap and hot water, rinsed and carefully dried. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Thank you so much for the Pointer for cleaning the deposits from my aluminum whistling tea kettle. It worked great using the water conditioner with the help of the few marbles I added. Now I am using my kettle again.!!

When I find I have a little time to trim the dead roses from my bushes and so on, I just grab the pruning shears and the garbage can lid and get to work. No scouting for a container to put the cuttings in. When finished I just tip the top into the plastic bag in the garbage can, put the top back on, shears away and I am finished. Thank you for past help. — MILDRED.

DEAR POLLY — Someone wrote that she had a mercurochrome stain on a rug and I found that dissolving an effervescent denture cleaning tablet in one cup of hot water is very effective to use for removing this medicine from clothing so it should work on a rug, too, but do test first. I would use a sponge or wash cloth to apply the solution sparingly. This also works for completely removing old blood stains from sheets. I merely soak the stained part in the cup of solution and it can be repeated if need be. — BETTY.

DEAR POLLY — Driftwood is most decorative but I often use brown liquid shoe polish to freshen its drab appearance. Some spray it white or gold — it is a matter of taste and one's color scheme. Everyone loves a winner — hope this is mine. — B.J.

Missouri PTA sponsors alcohol abuse workshops

Will my abusive drinking affect members of my family? That's one of the Decisions That Count (title of the 1975-6 alcohol education project) to be discussed at eight regional workshops of the Missouri PTA. Parents and children will learn how abusive drinking of an individual family member can affect all members of his family, be they children or adults.

"I hope participants will take home the information we give them at the workshops and assimilate it so they can talk about alcohol abuse in their homes, schools and communities," Teresa Dean of Independence, project chairwoman said.

The Missouri PTA has just received a National PTA grant to hold these workshops as a vehicle for promoting the responsible use and nonuse of alcohol. Participants will also talk about other Decisions That Count -- using or not using alcohol; misusing or abusing it; and drinking and driving or foregoing one of the two activities.

"Our greatest achievement would be if students at the conference took their knowledge of alcohol back to their classes and social groups," Mrs. Dean said. "After all, young people are turned on by other young people. They won't stand around and listen to adults lecture them but they will listen to their peers."

Missouri is one of 20 state PTAs-PTSAs (parent- teacher - student associations) to receive such a grant. The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholissm (NIAAA) has awarded more than $200,000 to the National PTA for this year's project. (NIAAA is an institute in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.) The 1975-76 program marks the fourth consecutive alcohol education project of the National PTA.

The project committee of the Missouri PTA also will urge local schools and PTAs-PTSAs to schedule the PTA mobile van to visit their area at the same time the regional workshops will be held. The van will be stocked with literature, slide films and displays on alcohol education.

The project advisory committee of the National PTA used stringent criteria to select the 20 best projects from the state proposals submitted. Projects had to be innovative in approach, easily duplicated and involve all members of a community.

Each of the state PTA-PTSA projects earned a grant of $1,000- $3,400. The state grants went to: Alaska, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah and Washington.

Herbs can grow in kitchen windows

To be cutting some sprigs of chives into your baked potato or dropping some broadleaf sorrel into your homemade soup or sprinkling basil into your salad dressing, hardly unusual for most cooks.

But what if all these were fresh herbs that had been grown in your own kitchen window? That would be unusual, but not so hard as it may seem. Many people are learning how simple it is to grow herbs in their homes and are discovering what a different these fresh spices make in the tastiness of home cooking.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, such herbs as dill, savory, parsley, thyme, borage, sage, marjoram and basil are some that can easily be grown during any season in pots in your home.

Many herbs can be bought in seed form and some may be obtained as live plants from your local nursery garden center. If you start with seeds, you can get free consultation on how to prepare the soil, how to plant and water the seeds and how much heat and light to provide.

Try your hand at herb gardening by starting with a few plants – no more than four or five. Then when you see how well you do and how your family responds to your fresh spices, you'll probably be expanding your indoor farm and sharing your crop with envious neighbors.

Dexter: off and running

DEXTER -- Its residents say it was named after Dexter, the race horse -- and he must have been a real runner, because Dexter is one of the faster growing cities in the bootheel.

The population has increased almost nine per cent in the past five years, from about 6,000 in the 1970 census to about 6,500 residents today.

The increase is largely due to the influx of industry in the town. Dexter industries employ nearly 2,000 people. The largest employer , Arvin Industries, a manufacturer of automobile exhausts, started production in March, 1974, and employs 625 .

Mayor Willis Conner, elected in 1966 is an easily approachable mayor. Townspeople talk about his "always being on the job", and awards and certificates on the walls of his insurance agency attest to his American sense of pride and his loyalty to the community. One minute Conner may be talking on the telephone about insurance- the next minute he will be talking about municipal funds.

Dexter's citizens pray in any one of 23 churches. They send their 2,000 students to two elementary schools, a junior high school, and a high school.

The city is served by Dexter Memorial Hospital, a 50- bed medical facility, completed in 1968, and by the Dexter City Administration Building, also completed in 1968.

Recent plans in Dexter call for a new seven-acre park, to be located north of the high school football field; a proposed study of the city's sewage system; and planning for an application for a $400,000 grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which, City Council members say would be used to build a new water plant.

Cotton prices higher; trading shows increase

HAYTI—Trading increased on local Missouri cotton markets last week, according to Paul W. Karban, officer in charge of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Hayti Classing Office.

Demand picked up and prices were higher. December New York futures traded mostly in the range of 52.00 to 53.30 cents during the week. This was about 50 to 100 points higher than the previous week's levels.

The buying basis of local merchants was firm and spot prices averaged ¾ to a cent a pound above the previous weeks levels. Crop lots that averaged grade 41 staple 34 brought farmers from 49.75 to 51.00 cents a pound. Lots containing mostly grades 51 and 42 sold in the range of 48.00 to 49.25 cents. Ginyard prices for cottonseed were steady at 80 to 85 dollars a ton as is.

Disappearance of cotton during 1975-76 is expected to total 10.3 and 11.3 million bales according to the Department of Agriculture's Interagency Commodity Estimates Committee for Cotton. This is up from a disappearance of 9.8 million bales last season.

Domestic mill use prospects have brightened in recent weeks, but foreign demand for U.S. cotton continues weak. The projected mill use of cotton here in the U.S. is expected to rise to 6.8 to 7.3 million bales. Prospective exports remain at 3.5 to 4.0 million bales. This means stocks will be worked down as the season progresses reducing the carryover next summer to 3.6 to 4.6 million bales.

The Agricultural Marketing Service's Hayti Classing Office had classed a season's total of 165,000 samples for farmers through Nov. 14. Cotton classed at the office last week graded mostly 41 and 42 with 34 and 35 staples. Ninety-four per cent miked in the base range of 3.5 to 4.9 and 4 per cent miked 3.4 and lower. For additional market information call 314-359-1920.

Cotton growers are a little more optimistic about 1976 than they were a couple of months ago and with an improvement in price, planting may exceed this year's 260,000 acres in Southeast Missouri.

Bond to speak at banquet

JEFFERSON CITY--Gov. Christopher S. Bond will speak at 8:15 p.m. Monday following a banquet at the ninth annual, Governor's Conference on Agriculture, to be held today, Monday and Tuesday at the Ramada Inn. In his address, Bond will discuss some of the problems facing Missouri agriculturalists.

Two panel discussions will be presented Monday afternoon at the conference. "Contending with Agricultural price Fluctuations," moderated by Bill Powell of Princeton, a member of the Governor's Advisory Council, will be discussed by panel members John Dotson, Far-Mar-Co, St. Joseph; Chester Polson, Kansas City Board of Trade; Don Callis, Sedalia, Governor's Advisory Council; and Dennis Baker, Lockwood, Governor's Advisory Council.

Wide fluctuation in the pricing of many agricultural products is a main concern today for many farmers, James B. Boillot, director of the Missouri Department of Agriculture, recently noted.

"Agricultural Research Funding" will be the topic of another panel discussion Monday. Boillot pointed out that the prevailing attitude today is that American farmers already have fulfilled their responsibility to produce at fullest capacity. Concern for further improvements in agricultural operations, therefore, has waned.

"We've probably negated our responsibility for research geared toward agriculture. We need a strong commitment to continue the improvement of food and fiber production. And this will come through research," Boillot said. "Agriculture affects every segment of society. The urban consumer will benefit from agricultural improvements just as the farmer, the production man."

The panel will be comprised of Charles F. Cromwell, superintendent of the Delta Research Center, Portageville; Calvin Harris, Lebanon, Governor's Advisory Council; Jack Tipton, Caruthersville, Governor's Advisory Council; Dean Elmer Kiehl, University of Missouri-Columbia; and Dr. Phillip Hamm, Monsanto Chemical Co., St. Louis. Louis. Peter Myers, Sikeston, Governor's Advisory Council, will moderate the discussion on price fluctuations.

Panel discussions scheduled for Tuesday include "Investing in Agriculture-An Outside View," moderated by Jim Sprake, St. Joseph, Governor's Advisory Council. The panel members will be Roy Meier, farmer, Jackson; Tom DePew, Arrowhead Products Co., St. Louis; Lee Schuster, Oppenheimer Industries, Inc., Kansas City; William Hoskins, First National Bank, Libertyville, Il.; and Pete Gattermeir, B.C. Christopher & Co., Kansas City.

Persons may register for the Governor's Conference on Agriculture from 2 to 8 p.m. today and beginning at 8 a.m. Monday at the Ramada Inn. Persons may register in advance by contacting the Missouri Department of Agriculture by phone at 751-3359.

Farm group plans annual state meet

JEFFERSON CITY—The 61st annual state meeting of the 54,600-member Missouri Farm Bureau Federation and affiliated companies will be held Dec. 7-9 at Tan-Tar-A Lodge, President C.R. Johnston has announced.

He said highlights of the three-day meeting will include Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz as guest keynote speaker on Dec. 8.

Other highlights will include the final decision on which of 31 beautiful candidates will represent Missouri Farm Bureau as the 1976 queen. Johnston also said six young district Future Farmers of America speech winners will be trying to talk their way toward cash prizes, while youthful and adult talent contestants do their many things.

Cotton growers more optimistic

By JOE H. SCOTT
State Agronomy
Specialist

In checking with Paul Karban of USDA, ginners and area agronomy specialists in Hayti, it now appears we will make our November estimates of 190,000 bales.

Growers are a little more optimistic about 1976 than they were a couple of months ago. With an improvement in price, we may exceed 260,000 acres planted in 1975.

Cost of production will remain high in 1976 but supplies should be more plentiful for next year's crop. Growers should be able to plan a cropping program and carry it out, barring any weather set back.

Careful attention should be given to fertilization program. Cropping history and soil analysis should be used in determining fertilizer needs. You can't go too much by last year's results as no two seasons are alike.

We should be able to stay ahead of the weeds in 1976 as at present there is no indication of a shortage of herbicides. More accuracy in application is needed as some cotton was hurt by excessive rates.

Insects could be a problem next season so careful periodic scouting of fields will be necessary. Early planting and a good fall helped in getting more cotton to mature and harvested which offset some insect losses.

Now is the time to make plans for next year's planting seed. There is no substitute for high quality planting seed. A recommended seed and soil fungicide will also help insure a stand of cotton. For the Bootheel as a whole, medium to early maturing varieties will give us the most cotton.

Last but not least, nothing will substitute for good field drainage. We need to get water off as quickly as possible. Something we have to work on all the time is our drainage system in the Bootheel.

JEFFERSON CITY--Gov. Christopher S. Bond will speak at 8:15 p.m. Monday following a banquet at the ninth annual, Governor's Conference on Agriculture, to be held today, Monday and Tuesday at the Ramada Inn. In his address, Bond will discuss some of the problems facing Missouri agriculturalists.

Two panel discussions will be presented Monday afternoon at the conference. "Contending with Agricultural price Fluctuations," moderated by Bill Powell of Princeton, a member of the Governor's Advisory Council, will be discussed by panel members John Dotson, Far-Mar-Co, St. Joseph; Chester Polson, Kansas City Board of Trade; Don Callis, Sedalia, Governor's Advisory Council; and Dennis Baker, Lockwood, Governor's Advisory Council.

Wide fluctuation in the pricing of many agricultural products is a main concern today for many farmers, James B. Boillot, director of the Missouri Department of Agriculture, recently noted.

"Agricultural Research Funding" will be the topic of another panel discussion Monday. Boillot pointed out that the prevailing attitude today is that American farmers already have fulfilled their responsibility to produce at fullest capacity. Concern for further improvements in agricultural operations, therefore, has waned.

"We've probably negated our responsibility for research geared toward agriculture. We need a strong commitment to continue the improvement of food and fiber production. And this will come through research," Boillot said. "Agriculture affects every segment of society. The urban consumer will benefit from agricultural improvements just as the farmer, the production man."

The panel will be comprised of Charles F. Cromwell, superintendent of the Delta Research Center, Portageville; Calvin Harris, Lebanon, Governor's Advisory Council; Jack Tipton, Caruthersville, Governor's Advisory Council; Dean Elmer Kiehl, University of Missouri-Columbia; and Dr. Phillip Hamm, Monsanto Chemical Co., St. Louis. Louis. Peter Myers, Sikeston, Governor's Advisory Council, will moderate the discussion on price fluctuations.

Panel discussions scheduled for Tuesday include "Investing in Agriculture-An Outside View," moderated by Jim Sprake, St. Joseph, Governor's Advisory Council. The panel members will be Roy Meier, farmer, Jackson; Tom DePew, Arrowhead Products Co., St. Louis; Lee Schuster, Oppenheimer Industries, Inc., Kansas City; William Hoskins, First National Bank, Libertyville, Il.; and Pete Gattermeir, B.C. Christopher & Co., Kansas City.

Persons may register for the Governor's Conference on Agriculture from 2 to 8 p.m. today and beginning at 8 a.m. Monday at the Ramada Inn. Persons may register in advance by contacting the Missouri Department of Agriculture by phone at 751-3359.

Farm group plans annual state meet

JEFFERSON CITY—The 61st annual state meeting of the 54,600-member Missouri Farm Bureau Federation and affiliated companies will be held Dec. 7-9 at Tan-Tar-A Lodge, President C.R. Johnston has announced.

He said highlights of the three-day meeting will include Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz as guest keynote speaker on Dec. 8.

Other highlights will include the final decision on which of 31 beautiful candidates will represent Missouri Farm Bureau as the 1976 queen. Johnston also said six young district Future Farmers of America speech winners will be trying to talk their way toward cash prizes, while youthful and adult talent contestants do their many things.

Cotton growers more optimistic

By JOE H. SCOTT
State Agronomy
Specialist

Sunny weather last week enabled most cotton producers to complete their harvest for the season.

In checking with Paul Karban of USDA, ginners and area agronomy specialists in Hayti, it now appears we will make our November estimates of 190,000 bales.

Growers are a little more optimistic about 1976 than they were a couple of months ago. With an improvement in price, we may exceed 260,000 acres planted in 1975.

Cost of production will remain high in 1976 but supplies should be more plentiful for next year's crop. Growers should be able to plan a cropping program and carry it out, barring any weather set back.

Careful attention should be given to fertilization program. Cropping history and soil analysis should be used in determining fertilizer needs. You can't go too much by last year's results as no two seasons are alike.

We should be able to stay ahead of the weeds in 1976 as at present there is no indication ot a shortage of herbicides. More accuracy in application is needed as some cotton was hurt by excessive rates.

Insects could be a problem next season so careful periodic scouting of fields will be necessary. Early planting and a good fall helped in getting more cotton to mature and harvested which offset some insect losses.

Now is the time to make plans for next year's planting seed. There is no substitute for high quality planting seed. A recommended seed and soil fungicide will also help insure a stand of cotton. For the Bootheel as a whole, medium to early maturing varieties will give us the most cotton.

Last but not least, nothing will substitute for good field drainage. We need to get water off as quickly as possible. Something we have to work on all the time is our drainage system in the Bootheel.

Humphrey introduces legislation to encourage direct marketing

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey has introduced legislation in the U.S. Senate to encourage the direct marketing of agricultural commodities from farmers to consumers.

"There has been an enhanced interest in recent years in roadside stands, city markets, house-to-house marketing and other such direct marketing methods," he told the Senate.

"This bill would build upon that experience and interest and encourage the further use of direct food marketing where it is feasible."

The legislation, also introduced in the House by Rep. Joseph P. Vigorito, D-Pa., directs the USDA's Economic Research Service to conduct a survey of direct marketing arrangements.

"This bill would build upon that experience and interest and encourage the further use of direct food marketing where it is feasible."

The legislation, also introduced in the House by Rep. Joseph P. Vigorito, D-PA., directs the USDA's Economic Research Service to conduct a survey of direct marketing arrangements.

It provides for both state and federal government agencies to assist in the establishment and operation of direct marketing arrangements.

At least one extension marketing specialist in each state would be designated as responsible for activities designed to promote direct marketing.

The legislation directs the USDA's Farmer Cooperative Service, in cooperation with consumer organizatrions and agencies, to foster "innovative arrangements whereby farmers and consumers might jointly develop and operate food marketing facilities."

Humphrey noted that, "The Farmer Cooperatiave Service is specifically instructed -- either itself or through public or nonprofit private contractors -- to develop at least five distinct direct marketing arrangements over a period of three years."

Finally, the bill provides for the secretary of agriculture to report annually to the Congress on progress made in facilitating farmer-to-consumer marketing arrangements.

Humphrey noted that the Office of Management and Budget "felt compelled to oppose this measure, because it would involve spending the modest sum of around $8 million over three years."

However, he pointed out that hearings have indicated "extensive support" for this concept by farm organizations, including the National Farmers Union and the National Farmes Organization.

"In addition," Humphrey said, "the witnesses of the Department of Agriculture indicated that this bill would be helpful in terms of providing the department with tools to stimulate direct marketing of commodities which would not be carried out otherwise."

Farm-city week being observed

JEFFERSON CITY — The national observance of Farm-City Week began Friday and will continue through Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, according to John L. Sanders, chairman of the Missouri Farm-City Committee, who said Farm-City Week was established to promote better understanding between rural and urban citizens and to increase their knowledge and appreciation for the American way of life.

"A Declaration of Interdependence" has been set as the theme for 1975 Farm-City Week. Sanders said the theme points up the need for mutual understanding and cooperation between the nation's rural and urban sectors, each of which has become increasingly dependent on the other for prosperity.

Since 1950, output per man hour in farming has increased annually more than twice as fast as in other American industries. This rapid increase in farm productivity provides the United States with an abundance of food and fiber at a relatively low cost. It also provides jobs for urban as well as rural citizens.

Although a large percentage of rural dwellers have moved to the cities in past years, many urban jobs are dependent on agricultural production on the farms. Agriculture creates more than 16 million jobs, most of which are held by urban workers. About one-fifth of the nation's total working force is employed by agricultural jobs.

American farmers, of course, depend on urban consumers to provide a demand for their products. In order to operate profitably, rural producers must taylor their production to the needs and desires of urban consumers.

Each group, therefore, looks to the other for support. National Farm-City Week provides an opportunity for farmers, consumers, business people and all Missourians to help improve rural-urban understanding.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Speakers at the Ag Time agribusiness seminar Tuesday predicted improved cattle prices, a continuing strong hog market and some weakness in grain prices.

William Helming, president of Livestock Business Advisory Services, told about 400 persons he foresees some strengthening in cattle pricees because the cattle inventory is decreasing and because the number of nonfed cattle coming to market will start to decline about the first of the year.

as a result, grain-fed beef will become a more important part of the market and the weight of the average animal coming to market will increase in the coming months, he said.

Helming said the higher numbers of cattle going on feed now, compared with the same period last year, will mean an increase in meat at the supermarket beginning about February.

But until then, he said, "I don't see any reason why total red meat supplies won't be under a year ago."

Farmers find drying grain sorghum pays

By THOMAS A BROWN
Area Agronomy

BLOOMFIELD — Stoddard County farmers who produce grain sorghum are finding that the provision of drying and storage facilities for this crop is a paying proposition. Several new or relatively new producers learned this lesson the hard way this season in spite of the fact that more market outlets bought grain sorghum in the county this year.

Grain sorghum is mature when the seeds are fully colored and have begun to harden at which time the grain contains 18 to 20 per cent moisture. Sorghum can be harvested successfully at this stage, but will, of course, need to be dried.

Being smallseeded with corresponsingly less air space around the kernels in storage so that air movement is less, the grain needs to be dried down to 13 per cent moisture for winter storage and from 11 to 12 per cent for long-term storage.

Grain sorghum not only tends to dry rather slowly in the field, but in case of rainy, humid weather such as is common in this area, it will often regain several per cent in moisture and may require as much as 10 days to two weeks to dry to the former level.

A lengthy stay in the field often results in heavy losses from stalk lodging, weathering of the grain, and other causes. It should also be emphasized that dessication or chemical field drying of grain sorghum is not nearly as effective in drying sorghum grain down to harvestable moisture levels as some people seem to think.

Several local growers became somewhat alarmed when elevators stopped buying sorghum for a few days this season. Elevator operators reported that their storage facilities were full and that railroad cars could not be obtained to move the grain out as soon as they were needed.

Elevator operators with drying facilities also reported that grain was coming in faster than they could dry and handle high-moisture sorghum. In addition to discontinued buying, some elevators also lowered the moisture level at which they would accept sorghum grain in order to make it possible for them to more adequately handle the grain.

Local elevators were able to handle the sorghum crop with very little difficulty in 1969 when approximately 5,000 acres were produced in the county. But this year, when it is estimated that over 20,000 acres were produced and yields were good due to increased knowledge of sorghum production and a favorable growing season, this became a somewhat different situation.

To be sure, there were problems involved in harvesting and marketing grain sorghum this season -- both for the farmer and the grain buyer. Just think what the situation would have been like, however, if we had experienced a wet harvest season such as we had in 1973.

The provision of on-the-arrm grain drying and storage facilities will help to insure that the grain sorghum crop is harvested and sold. It will also enable the farmer to store his sorghum for sale at a later date rather than having to sell his crop at harvest time when prices are low.

Indications are that the farmer can realize some profit from storing sorghum grain almost every year and that an excellent profit can be realized during some seasons.

This may become even more important during the next few years as indications are that the grain sorghum acreage in Stoddard County and surrounding area will continue to increase.

Assistance in planning grain drying and storage systems may be obtained upon request from the county University of Missouri Extension Center.

MFA group testifies favoring Eagleton flood amendment

WASHINGTON, D. C. — L. C. Carpenter, vice president of Midcontinent Farmers Association, has testified in favor of the Eagleton amendments to the Flood Disaster Protection Act and the National Flood Insurance Act.

"Only 15 of 114 Missouri counties have adopted planning and zoning which would enable them to comply with federal flood insurance program regulations," Carpenter told a Senate subcommittee hearing on housing and urban affairs.

"Although MFA members support the concept of land-use planning, we are against it being imposed through the back door by means of the flood insurance program,," Carpenter said.

The Eagleton amendments would:

1. Make federal flood insurance available to an individual if that individual agrees to comply with relevant HUD construction standards on his own property, but regardless of what the community as a whole may do.

2. Modify the penalty provisions of the act to exclude the probhibition against commercial loans for construction in a flood plain area.

"If there must be sanctions in order to encourage compliance, let them follow the precedent of other federal legislation and thus be directed toward the community and not the individual," Carpenter told the senators.

Carpenter said that some industry must be located in flood-prone areas. Grain terminal elevators, other industries which transport their products on the nation's waterways, those which need access to rivers for cooling wasted heat and for those which use vast amounts of water in processing their products were given as examples of business that must be located near the water.

"If we are to continue exporting grain in support of our national interest, and if others are to continue transporting and processing products which rely upon waterways, we must be permitted to maintain, improve and expand our facilities within the flood areas," Carpenter explained.

Carpenter said that by adopting the Eagleton amendments industries which must locate along our rivers could choose between (1) complying with HUD requirements and securing federal insurance and financing from a federally insured institution, or (2) not complying and being permitted to borrow from commercial lending institutions which are willing to make such a loan.

JOHN AND ENDY INNOCENTLY HELP YOUNG HEIRESS EVADE HER BODYGUARDS, ON "THREE FOR THE ROAD," NOV. 23

Pete Karras has been assigned to photograph the daughter of an international shipping magnate while she is visiting Los Angeles, but he arrives to find that threats have b een made on the young girl's life and that the job has been given to someone else, on "Three for the road," Sunday, Nov. 23 (6:00 - 7:00 PM CST) on the CBS Television Network. Herschel Daughterty directed from a script by Dick Nelson.

John and Endy, anxious to see Los Angeles, are joined by a young foreign exchange student for a day of sightseeing. The boys are unaware that she is really the tycoon's daughter, and that they are helping her escape her father's bodyguards so she can meet a young man accused of being a fortune hunter.

THE WALTONS' "The Thanksgiving Story"

Thanksgiving, Thursday, November 27, 1975, 7:00-9:00 PM, CST

THE WALTONS' Emmy-winning two-hour special, "The Thanksgiving Story," will be reprised on the CBS Television Network on Thanksgiving day, November 27, at 7:00 PM, CST. Thish highly praised drama, which won an Emmy Award for writer Joanna Lee, tells the story of an accident that blurs John-Boy's vision and threatens his future.

The holiday special takes the Walton family through a crisis in which they realize a much deeper appreciation of the meaning of the country's oldest holiday. John-Boy seems to have much to be grateful for as Thanskgiving approaches. His grades have earned him the right to try and qualify for a scholarship, and his special girlfriend Jenny, played by Sian Barbara Allen, is coming home after a year's absence. But the accident, a blow on the head from a loose pulley belt in his father's lumber mill, blurs his vision just as he is about to take his tests. Although he can't study, John-Boy pretends not to be injured and attempts the exams anyway. He is unable to read the questions,and is taken to a hospital.

Through a series of anguished moments, during which John Walton blames himself for the accident, the Waltons ultimately arrive at the realization that with their health and their love for each other, nothing else is needed to make Thanksgiving a truly meaningful occasion.

COL. POTTER SINGLE-HANDEDLY TRIES TO CURB EPIDEMIC AND BOOST 4077TH MORALE, ON "MASH," NOV. 28

A fever of epidemic proportions is striking down front-line soldiers, filling the hospital's beds to overflowing, and on the theory that it may be caused by rat-borne mites and fleas, Colonel Potter adds rat control to Frank Burns' already designated duties as rumor control officer, on "MASH," Friday, Nov. 28 (7:30-8:00 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network. Gene Reynolds directed from a script by Linda Bloodworth.

Meanwhile, morale in the 4077th is suffering, prompting Potter to suggest that the enlisted men enter a "soldier of the month" contest, which sends the winner to Tokyo for six days. With dress and knowledge of history among the criteria for judging the winner, Klinger takes the drastic step of abandoning his dresses for regular GI khaki, and Radar begins history study by boning up on the Bible.

NBC SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES: "Night Flight From Moscow" -- Yul Brynner and Henry Fonda star in a drama of treason and treachery in the perilous world of counterespionage. Dirk Bogarde and virna Lisa co-star. (Color)

Yul Brynner and Henry Fonda co-star in "Night Flight From Moscow," a tense drama set in the aftermath of a Soviet Secret agent's defection, to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Nov. 29 (8-10 p.m. CST).

Brynner stars as Colonel Vlassov, a senior official of the Soviet KGB who volunteers a list of all of the Kremlin's double agents operating in all countries of Western Euorpe, except England.

Vlassov convinces the authorities of his sincerity by passing all of the sophisticated tests they administer to determine his reliability. Almost immediately, two of the exposed agents in Germany apparently commit suicide and another is the victim of a suspicious drowining.

CIA Director Allan Davies (Henry Fonda) travels to warn his British counterpart, Philip Boyle (Dirk Bogarde), that there also may be operatives in England.

In time, a pair of French intelligence officers come under suspicion and two British diplomats flee to Moscow, apparently substantiating Vlassov's claims. However, Vlassov again becomes suspect and the drama concludes with startling revelations about who has spied on whom.

Gene Aldrich, his mother and Mayor (Dr.) Preswell on Gene Aldrich Day, in 1942,

BY ROBERT VAUGHAN

I sat in the kitchen with Mrs. Audrey Beck and listened to a tape recording sent to her by her brother, Gene Aldrich. The recording was made in February of 1973. In it, he told his sister that he was dying.

Gene made a joke of something, and laughed richly over it. "I suppose some people would think it's funny to be laughing at something on the tape while I'm telling you what the doctor said," Gene said. "But I don't think there's anything so glum that you can't find some humor. There is beauty in life, even in this, and I'm going to continue to enjoy it as much as I can. I want you to take that attitude too, and not be worried."

Gene, who had taken on the sea and beaten it during those 34 days during World War II, was now facing another, much more terrible enemy; cancer. Cancer killed Gene Aldrich, but it did not defeat him.

After the three men on the raft, Dixon, Pastula, and Gene Aldrich made it safely to an island, they were picked up by a U.S. Navy ship and brought back to the United States where they were given a much deserved hero's welcome.

Sikeston turned out en masse for Gene Aldrich day, and a large parade was held to honor him. Stories of the men's exploits appeared in LIFE, READER'S DIGEST, was serialized in newspapers, published in hardbound and soft-cover books, and comic books.

These stories fired the public's imaginationand provided genuine heroes for a war worried country. But these stories did not make Gene Aldrich, nor Tony Pastula rich men. Both men were naturally modest, quiet and unassuming . . . the stuff from which America's traditional heroes are made. If there were times when they disagreed with what was happening with the exploitation of their adventure, they

ROBERT VAUGHAN

On November 13th, the Sikeston High School Band, under the direction of Mr. Pat Curry, presented a Marching Band Concert at the Sr. High School. It was an outstanding success, and well received by the crowd who attended.

A day before the concert I received permission from Mr. Curry to wander around and take pictures during a rehearsal. I wanted to get some behind-the-scenes observations of one of Sikeston's best known, and most talented organizations.

It has been over twenty years since I was in the band, but within moments old familiar things began returning to me. The smells of slide oil, wet valve pads and brass polish came back, not as a faint memory, but as an old friend. The sights and sounds, the feel and atmosphere of a bandroom bridged the twenty year gap as if it had been only minutes.

I took an empty seat in the band and looked toward the front. I half expected to see Mr. Collins standing there, glaring at me for one of the minor infractions I used to commit, such as poking my fingers in the soft plaster of the wall, or changing slides on Kendal Stalling's horn, or leaving my horn in the front vestibule of the school. (On one such occasion some of my "friends" ran the horn up the flagpole, and there it dangled for an entire weekend. I never found out who did that for sure, but I believe it was either Jerry Aufdenberg, Harold Ragains, or Bob Suchman.)

The music sounds different when you are sitting in the middle of the band. There is an immediacy to it, an excitement which you can't capture if you aren't there. Even though I was holding a camera instead of the French Horn I used to play, I was a part of it, and I could feel the collective excitement as the band began to play.

We played several bars, and I looked around at the faces of the young musicians, at the intensity and enthusiasm. There were several interesting facial studies, and I wished I had the photographic talent to bring them out ... the wrinkled brows, the puffing cheeks, the tightly stretched lips as young people brought forth music.

"No, no, no," Mr. Curry suddenly said, slapping his baton on the stand.

The music stopped then, with the exception of one person who was so engrossed in playing that he didn't catch the director's signal. His note extended on, hanging loud and clear until in his embarrassment he realized he was the only one, then it too, fell into abrupt silence.

Finally everyone was quiet and they looked toward the front.

"This part has got to be sharp and distinct," Mr. Curry said. "Ta - ta - ta-," he added illustrating it, "not la - la - sloppy la. Let me hear the baritones. Someone is a little out of key."

Individually each baritone played a note and I remembered how difficult it used to be for me to play one, clear note under the scrutiny of the director. A nervousness in the pit of the stomach as each horn in turn played the note until finally it became my time and I sneaked in on it, waiting for that terrible flutter, or the false start. Then, when I knew I had it, I would blow loud and proud, lifting my middle "C" over the rest of the band, fearing no reprisals from anyone.

"Okay," Mr. Curry said, bringing me back to today. "We've got it now. Let's take it from the beginning, and this time pay attention to your horn presentation. We are a marching band, giving a concert in uniform. Much of our audience appeal is visual. We can't march around in the auditorium, but we can show a little flash, so bring those instruments up with a flourish. And do it right or it's really going to look Mickey Mouse."

During the music I moved from chair to chair and section to section, sometimes following along on the sheet music at the stand nearest me, sometimes studying the face of the players, sometimes just watching the flowing movement of Mr. Curry's baton.

Toward the end of the rehearsal I found myself in the percussion section. At about that time the band played the song, CATHEDRAL CHORUS, and a totally different mood came over everyone. It was one of those moments when everything came together, and to a person everyone lost themselves in the music. The timpani rolled and the symbols crashed like thunder. Brass and woodwind poured forth music as rich in tone and tint as the prayers of a thousand generations of cathedral worshipers and over it all was the clarion ring of the chimes. It was a very moving piece, and as the number ended there was a lump in my throat which lingered for several moments.

On the night of the thirteenth a change had taken place. Blue jeans, sweatshirts and letter jackets had given way to the crisp red and black uniforms of the marching band. The band met in the bandshell a few minutes before the concert and the last minute preparations were made. Instruments were tuned, music was marked, uniforms were adjusted, the program was confirmed and the band was ready for its performance.

Before the ordeal began, Gene Aldrich and Tony Pastula were little more than shipboard acquaintances. They were much closer to each other in age than Harold Dixon, and the two younger men became very good friends, not only during the ordeal, but afterwards as well.

When Gene returned to the United States he was reassigned to Pensacola, Florida. He also met a young lady . . . in fact, the sister of Tony Pastula. Gene married Tony's sister, and to further cement the family relationship, one of Tony's brothers married one of Gene's sisters.

Gene went to work for the Navy after the war, as did Tony. Both of them moved to California, and became not only close friends and brothers-in-law, but neighbors.

Though Gene spent the rest of his life in California, he returned to Sikeston frequently for vacations, and always regarded it as one of the high spots of his year. He raised a fine family, made many good friends, and provided the nation with an example of courage and humility.

It is true that he died at a relatively early age. But I have a feeling that Gene Aldrich never feared death again after conquering it on the sea. And I think that, like Lou Gehrig, if Gene had been called on to make a comment on his life he would have considered himself a very lucky man. After all, the final measure of a man's life is in what he leaves behind him. And by that standard, Gene Aldrich's life is full measure indeed.

I left the bandshell a few minutes early and went to the auditorium to wait for the band's entry. The seats were already full and a buzz of conversation hung over the audience. Finally, at seven twenty-five, the band entered in single file. A few moments later, with the band in position, Mr. Curry raised his baton, held it for a second, then brought it down sharply to begin the piece.

The twirlers were present, and in uniform, sitting to one side. There were two numbers where they performed, but even on those numbers they didn't perform, it was easy to tell that they were with the band spiritually and emotionally. With every number the band played, the twirlers would keep time, or, with very small and unobtrusive movements, duplicate the routine they had performed with the number when the band had performed during the football season just passed.

The last number of the evening was the Red and Black. I looked through the audience to pick out people who were parents of the present bandmembers, and who I knew had once been bandmembers themselves. In the face of practically everyone there came an instant where their eyes opened windows to their souls, and I could see all the way inside. I liked what I saw.

BY HAL FOSTER
VALETA UNDULATES GRACEFULLY ACROSS THE DECK, HER LASHES FLUTTERING, DIMPLES SHOWING. "OH, HECTOR, YOU ARE ALWAYS READING! IS IT ABOUT WARRIORS BOLD AND LADIES FAIR?"
"NO, I AM TRYING TO STUDY, SO IF YOU DON'T MIND....." SHE IGNORES THAT REMARK AND CONTINUES: "YOU MEN GO LAUGHING INTO DANGER WHILE WE TENDERHEARTED MAIDS CAN ONLY WAIT AND HOPE."
KAREN HAS A DIFFERENT APPROACH: "HI, HECK, PUSH OVER, I WANT TO SIT DOWN. HAS YOUR SWORD BEEN BLOODED YET?" "I HAVE NO SWORD. I AM A STUDENT," HE ANSWERS. "THEN GET ONE, FOR HOW ELSE CAN YOU PROVE YOUR WORTH EXCEPT IN BATTLE!"
DESPITE THE RISING WIND KAREN TAKES OFF HER HAIR RIBBON. "HERE, HECTOR, IS MY GAGE. WEAR IT ON YOUR SWORD ARM IN BATTLE." "HOW ROMANTIC!" SIGHS VALETA. "AND WE WILL TEND YOUR WOUNDS WHEN YOU RETURN."
"I AM NOT A WARRIOR, BUT A STUDENT!" HE DECLARES ANGRILY. "YOU GIRLS MAKE ME SICK!" HIS WORDS ARE PROPHETIC FOR JUST THEN THE SHIP HEAVES AND SO DOES HECTOR.
"HECTOR IS POOR MATERIAL FOR ROMANCE," GRUMBLES KAREN. "HE DOES NOT HAVE THE SOUL OF A POET," ADMITS VALETA.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR FOLKS:

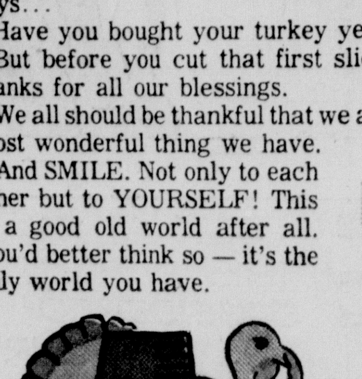
Have you bought your turkey yet?

But before you cut that first slice, don't forget to give a few thanks for all our blessings.

We all should be thankful that we are even living! Life itself is the most wonderful thing we have.

And SMILE. Not only to each other but to YOURSELF! This is a good old world after all. You'd better think so — it's the only world you have.



Remember that I love you dearly... and wish each and every one of you a Happy Thanksgiving.

Heloise

A PRIZEWINNER

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a suggestion my mother gave me.

Then as the children go through life, they can see what they have won and the awards are not lost in a drawer or closet.

Pauline E. Cook

DEAR HELOISE:

Sometimes when I want to polish my nails, the top of the nail polish won't come off.

I take some nail-polish remover and a cotton swab. Put some remover on the cotton swab. Then turn the bottle upside down and press the cotton swab against the side of the bottle near the cap so the polish remover drips underneath the cap.

Wait a few seconds and presto the cap comes off.

BUDGET ITEM

DEAR HELOISE:

Know what to do with that "has-been" of a shower curtain, that you were going to throw away?

Moreover, you can make a tailor-made table cover for the backyard table; pink or scallop the edges or just leave it plain. Use the nearly half that's left over for bench covers. (And if you don't like these ideas, please send me your old shower curtains! Ha!Ha!)

Nancy

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

If you can tell us in-our-seventies people just what we actually did come for when we go to another room, we will be grateful forevermore.

Of course, there are usually two or three things that we can do when we get to the designated place, so time spent there isn't entirely wasted, but, oh, me! why should we retrace our steps to make another trip to do what we should have done in the first place!

Anyway, thanks for all the tips to make life easier and more pleasant for all of us. And now, if you'll excuse me, I must lean back in the recliner and take a little cat nap.

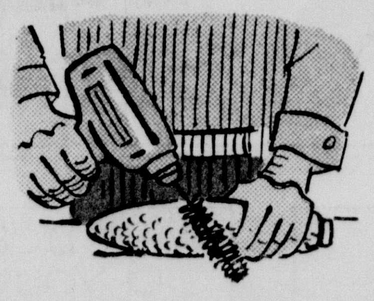
IT'S A "CORNY" IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

Who said husbands are never creative? Mine has just found a way to make that tedious job of silking corn easy.

He used one of those bristle-type baby bottle washers and removed the circle at the bottom. Then he took the drill bit out of his electric drill and inserted the wire end of the brush into the drill.



Now just go up and down the ear of corn and all the silks are removed as the brush revolves!

Mrs. Corny A. Tate

Is this, as well as your name, for real? Sounds "corny" to me, but if it works, what a time-saver!

I don't have a drill, so am not going to try it, but let's hear from some of you men out there. Does it work? Would we love you for an answer!

Heloise

COOKIE CUT-UPS

DEAR HELOISE:

We like peanut butter cookies, so as a time-saver instead of using a fork to press them down, I use a potato masher.

All I do is dip it in granulated sugar first and smash the ball of dough. Then I sprinkle granulated sugar on it with an old salt shaker.

Mrs. Sheryl Schroeder

THIS'LL FLOOR YOU!

DEAR HELOISE:

I read in your book about using cornstarch and water to clean windows.

My kitchen inlaid linoleum has been on the floor for almost 25 years.

When I mop it, I use a half cup of cornstarch to almost a gallon of lukewarm water.

It gives a lustre—not quite as good as wax—but it's not slippery.

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found a marvelous way to poach eggs so they won't spread or stick to the skillet.

If you will put about two tablespoons of vinegar in an inch of water before putting in the eggs, they turn out perfectly.

Randy McBeth

+ + +

And for those who don't like "runny" yellows, break the yoke while the egg is still in the saucer. Then gently slide it into the water.

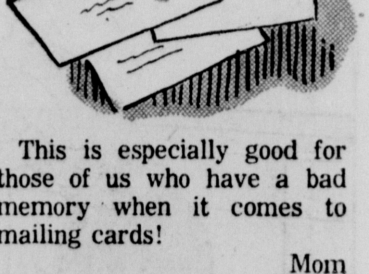
DEAR HELOISE:

For those of us who buy special-occasion cards, such as birthday, anniversary, etc., ahead of mailing time, here is what I do.

Write the date the card should be mailed in the area where the postage stamp will be placed. When you put the stamp on, it covers the date so no one will know!



This is especially good for those of us who have a bad memory when it comes to mailing cards!

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Sleeve is shorter. 2. Collar is missing. 3. Newspaper is different. 4. Grapes are missing. 5. Hair is different. 6. Skirt is shorter.

BULLETIN BOARD

"SELECT a card from either pile," says the magician, pointing to two stacks of cards on the table. "Now, insert it in the other pile, and shuffle that pile." He then looks through the second pile and discovers the card you've selected.

How it's done: In one stack are all the odd cards—ace, three, five, seven, nine, jack and king. The other stack has all the even cards.

Of course, when a card is taken from one pile and placed in the other, the performer can spot it immediately as soon as he starts to look through the stack. This one's not so easily guessed by friends.

- NAME GAME! Cities that bear the first names of men and women include Everett, Wash., Ogden, Utah, Lynn, Mass., Enid, Okla. Can you think of some others? Give it a try.
- Unquestionably! Honey and money have one thing in common. What's that?

The word one.

- Four brothers have only two bicycles and therefore can go on bike rides only two at a time. In how many different pairs can they go?

In six different pairs.

BULLETIN BOARD

"SELECT a card from either pile," says the magician, pointing to two stacks of cards on the table. "Now, insert it in the other pile, and shuffle that pile." He then looks through the second pile and discovers the card you've selected.

How it's done: In one stack are all the odd cards—ace, three, five, seven, nine, jack and king. The other stack has all the even cards.

Of course, when a card is taken from one pile and placed in the other, the performer can spot it immediately as soon as he starts to look through the stack. This one's not so easily guessed by friends.
